THE CONSTITUTION OF INDIA

Preamble

WE, THE PEOPLE OF INDIA, having solemnly resolved to constitute India into a ¹[SOVEREIGN SOCIALIST SECULAR DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC] and to secure to all its citizens :

JUSTICE, social, economic and political;
LIBERTY of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship;
EQUALITY of status and of opportunity ;
and to promote among them all
FRATERNITY assuring the dignity of the individual and the ²[unity and integrity of the Nation];

IN OUR CONSTITUENT ASSEMBLY this twenty-sixth day of November, 1949, do HEREBY ADOPT, ENACT AND GIVE TO OURSELVES THIS CONSTITUTION.

Notes on preamble

Basic Structure

The objectives specified in the Preamble contain the basic structure of our Constitution, which cannot be amended in exercise of the power under article 368 of the Constitution. For the theory of "basic structure", see the following judgments of the Supreme Court :

- (i) Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461, paragraphs 292, 437, 599, 682 and 1164.
- (ii) Indira Gandhi v. Raj Narain, AIR 1975 SC 2299, paragraphs 251-252 (Khanna, J.), paragraphs 664, 665 and 691 (Chandrachud, J.), paragraphs 555 and 575 (Beg. J.) (3 Judges out of 5).
- (iii) Minerva Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 1789 (majority).

Interpretation by preamble

The preamble may be invoked to determine the ambit of-

- (a) Fundamental rights; and
- (b) Directive principles of State Policy.

See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461.
- (ii) Chandra Bhawan v. State of Mysore, AIR 1970 SC 2042, paragraph 13.
- (iii) Dharwad Employees v. State of Karnataka, (1990) 2 SCC 396, paragraphs 14 -27.

A living law

Constitution is not to be construed as a mere law, but as the machinery by which laws are made. A Constitution is a living and organic thing which, of all instruments has the greatest claim to be construed broadly and liberally; Goodyear India v. State of Haryana, AIR (1990) SC 781, 791, paragraph 17.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec.2, for "SOVEREIGN DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC" (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-Second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 2, for "unity of the Nation" (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

Powers

Powers must be derived from specific provisions of the Constitution; Synthetics & Chemicals Ltd v. State of U.P., (1990) SCC 109 (7 Judges Bench).

Ideals

The ideals of socialism, secularism and democracy are elaborated by the enacting provisions.

See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Bhim v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 234, paragraphs 39, 71-72.
- (ii) State of Kerala v. Thomas, AIR 1976 SC 490, 531; Waman Rao v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 271.

The word "Socialist", read with articles 14 and 16, enabled the court to deduce a fundamental right to equal pay for equal work. The same word, when read with article 14, enabled the court to strike down a statute which failed to achieve the socialist goal to the fullest extent. Undermentioned decisions are relevant on this point :

- (i) Excel Wear v. Union of India, AIR 1979 SC 25, paragraph 24.
- (ii) Atam Prakash v. State of Haryana, AIR 1986 SC 859, paragraph 5.
- (iii) Randhir v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 879, paragraph 8.
- (iv) Nakara v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 130, paragraphs 33-34.
- (v) Minerva Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 1789, paragraphs 62 and 111.
- (vi) Dharwad Employees v. State of Karnataka, (1990) 2 SCC 396, paragraph 14-17.

Social Justice

Social justice enables the courts to uphold legislation—

- (a) to remove economic inequalities;
- (b) to provide a decent standard of living to the working people;
- (c) to protect the interests of the weaker sections of the society.

See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Lingappa v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1985 SC 389, paragraphs 14, 16, 18 and 20.
- (ii) Nakara v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 130, paragraphs 33-34.
- (iii) Sadhuram v. Polin, AIR 1984 SC 1471, paragraphs 29, 70 and 73.

Some Fundamental Aspects of the Indian Constitution

The Indian Constitution, adopted by the Constituent Assembly on November 26, 1949 is a comprehensive document containing 395 articles and several Schedules. Besides dealing with the structure of Government the Constitution makes detailed provisions for the rights of citizens and other persons in a number of entrenched provisions, and for the principles to be followed by the State in the governance of the country, labelled as "Directive Principles of State Policy".

Historical and geographical factors have been responsible for the build of the Constitution, which is the second longest Constitution in the world. The framers of the Constitution were keen to preserve the democratic values to which Indians had attached the highest importance in their struggle for freedom. But they were also keen to make provisions considered to be necessary in the light of the social and economic backwardness of certain sections of society. They had also before them the precedent of the Government of India Act, 1935 whose detailed provisions were found suitable for adoption in the interests of continuity and certainty. Some precautions for the constitutional image being distorted or being impaired in its essential features, were also required. All this has contributed to the length of the Indian Constitution.

Sources of the Constitution

Sources of the Indian Constitution can be best explained with reference to its principal parts. The structural part of the Constitution is, to a large extent, derived from the Government of India Act, 1935. The philosophical part of the Constitution has other sources. Part III on fundamental rights partly derives its inspiration from the Bill of Rights, enshrined in the American Constitution, and so also Part IV on directive principles of State policy from the Irish Constitution. The political part (the principle of Cabinet Government and the relations between the executive and the Legislature) have been largely drawn from the British experience.

The Union-State relations find a similarity in the Act of 1935 and also in the Canadian Constitution, though the expanded concurrent list in the Seventh Schedule has a model in the Australian Constitution. Part XIII, dealing with trade, commerce and intercourse, also appears to derive inspiration from the Australian Constitution. Some indigenous institutions like "panchayats" have been specifically encouraged and new ideals, such as, promotion of international peace and security, have been woven into the fabric of the Constitution. The Constitution specifically provides for the privileges of the members of Parliament and of the State Legislature, to some extent following the Australian model.

The Nature of the Polity (the Preamble)

The preamble declares India to be a sovereign, socialist, secular, democratic republic. It is declared that the Constitution has been "given by the people to themselves", thereby affirming the republican character of the polity and the sovereignty of the people. The democratic character of the Indian polity is illustrated by the provisions conferring, on the adult citizens, the right to vote, and by the provisions for elected representatives and responsibility of the executive to the Legislature.

The socialist character of the Indian Constitution is also emphasised in the Preamble, which spells out the aspiration of the people to secure to all citizens, social, economic and political justice. The Preamble also affirms a determination to secure liberty of thought, expression, belief, faith and worship and equality of status and opportunity, and to promote amongst the people a feeling of fraternity, ensuring the dignity of the individual and the unity of the nation.

Being a sovereign State, India is free from any type of external control. It can acquire foreign territory and, if necessary, cede a part of the territory in favour of a foreign State, subject to certain constitutional requirements; Maganbhai Ishwarbhai Patel v. Union of India, (1970) 3 SCC 100.

The Preamble is part of the Constitution; Keshvananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461.

Secularism

The Constitution of India stands for a secular State. The State has no official religion. Secularism pervades its provisions which give full opportunity to all persons to profess, practise and propagate any religion of their choice. The Constitution not only guarantees a person's freedom of religion and conscience, but also ensures freedom for one who has no religion, and it scrupulously restrains the State from making any discrimination on grounds of religion. A single citizenship is assured to all persons irrespective of their religion.

Fundamental law

The Constitution operates as a fundamental law. The governmental organs owe their origin to the Constitution and derive their authority from, and discharge their responsibilities within the framework of the Constitution. The Union Parliament and the State Legislature are not sovereign. The validity of a law, whether Union or State, is judged with reference to their respective jurisdictions as defined in the Constitution. The judiciary has power to declare a law unconstitutional, if the law is found to have contravened any provision of the Constitution.

The Indian Union

The Constitution describes India as a Union of States, thereby implying the indestructible nature of its unity. No unit constituting the Indian Union can secede from it [VII Constituent Assembly Debates 43]. The country is divided into several units, known as States or Union Territories, and the Constitution lays down not only the structure of the Union Government, but also the structure of the State Governments.

Federal Structure

The Indian Constitution is basically federal in form and is marked by the traditional characteristics of a federal system, namely, supremacy of the Constitution, division of power between the Union and State Governments, existence of an independent judiciary and a rigid procedure for the amendment of the Constitution. It establishes a dual polity, with clearly defined spheres of authority between the Union and the States, to be exercised in fields assigned to them respectively. There is an independent judiciary to determine issues between the Union and the States, to be exercised in fields assigned to them respectively. There is an independent judiciary to determine issues between the Union and the States, or between one State and another. An amendment in the respective jurisdictions of the Union and the States can be brought about only by invoking a special procedure in Parliament and ratification by a majority of the State. However, there are marked differences between the American federation (which is the classical federal model) and the Indian federation. First, in America, there is a dual citizenship, whereas, in India, there is only one citizenship; Indian citizens, wherever they reside, are equal in the eye of the law. Secondly, the States in America have a right to make their own constitutions, where no such power is given to the States in India. Thirdly, the Indian Constitution exhibits a centralising tendency in several of its provisions e.g. the adoption of a lengthy Concurrent List, the power of Parliament to re-organise the political structure of the country, supremacy of Parliament over State Legislatures if there is a direct conflict between their respective jurisdictions, vesting of the residuary legislative power in Parliament, and powers of Governors to reserve Bills for the consideration of the President of the Republic. Fourthly, in certain circumstances, the Union is empowered to supersede the authority of the State, or to exercise powers otherwise vested in the States.

Sovereign

The word 'sovereign' means that the State has power to legislate on any subject in conformity with constitutional limitations; Synthetics v. State of U.P., (1990) 1 SCC 109, paragraphs 35-37, 56-64, 106-108.

Contracts are subject to Constitution; D.T.C. v. Mazdoor Congress, AIR 1991 SC 101 (7 judges).

Parens Patriae

The doctrine of Parens Patriae can be invoked by reason of sovereignty; Charan Lal Sahu v. Union of India, (1990) 1 SCC 613, paragraphs 35-37, 63, 74 and 100 (CB).

THE UNION AND ITS TERRITORY

1. Name and territory of the Union.—(1) India, that is Bharat, shall be a Union of States.

- ¹[(2) The States and the territories thereof shall be as specified in the First Schedule.]
(3) The territory of India shall comprise—
(a) the territory of States;
²[(b) the Union territories specified in the First Schedule; and]
(c) such other territories as may be acquired.

Notes on Article 1

The Union of India is a federal Union, with a distribution of powers, of which the judiciary is the interpreter. Although there has been considerable controversy whether India is or is not a federation and although some writers have called it "quasi federal", it would seem that essentially the Indian Constitution is a federal one; special reference of 1956, AIR 1965 SC 745, 762.

Territory of India

The expression "territory of India", wherever used, means the territory which, for the time being, falls within article 1(3). See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1955 SC 504.
(ii) Masthan Sahib v. Chief Commissioner, Pondicherry, AIR 1962 SC 797, 803.

Territorial waters

Section 3(2) of the Territorial Waters, Continental Shelf, Exclusive Economic Zone and other Maritime Zones Act, 1976 now provides that the limit of the territorial waters is the line, every point of which is at a distance of twelve nautical miles from the nearest point of the appropriate base line. Another notification of the Government dated 15 January, 1977 has extended the "exclusive economic zone" of India upto a distance of 200 nautical miles into the sea from the share base line. This has been done under the Territorial Waters, Continental Shelf, Exclusive Economic Zone and other Maritime Zones Act, 1976, passed after the Constitution (40th Amendment) Act, 1976.

Action subsequent to acquisition

Foreign territories which become part of India on acquisition may (i) either be admitted into the Union, or (ii) constituted into new States under article 2, or (iii) merged into an existing State under article 3(a) or 3(b), or (iv) formed into a Union territory. Of course, a foreign territory would not come under article 1(3) (c) until there is legal transfer of territory to India, so as to constitute its "acquisition" in international law. See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Harivansh v. State of Maharashtra, (1971) 2 SCC 54, 56.
(ii) Masthan Sahib v. Chief Commissioner, Poidicherry, AIR 1962 SC 797, 803.
(iii) Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1955 SC 504.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec.2, for clause (2).
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec.2, for sub-clause (b).

Law applicable to acquired territory

On acquisition of territory, the pre-acquisition laws and the rights acquired therein may continue, only if the new Government chooses to recognise them unequivocally; Vinod Kumar v. Gangadhar, AIR 1981 SC 1946, paragraphs 29-30.

2. Admission or establishment of new States.—Parliament may by law admit into the Union, or establish, new States on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

¹A. Sikkim to be associated with the Union.—[Rep. by the Constitution (Thirty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1975, sec.5 (w.e.f. 26-4-1975).]

3. Formation of new States and alteration of areas, boundaries or names of existing States.—Parliament may by law—

- (a) form a new State by separation of territory from any State or by uniting two or more States or parts of States or by uniting any territory to a part of any State;
- (b) increase the area of any State;
- (c) diminish the area of any State;
- (d) alter the boundaries of any State;
- (e) alter the name of any State:

²[Provided that no Bill for the purpose shall be introduced in either House of Parliament except on the recommendation of the President and unless, where the proposal contained in the Bill affects the area, boundaries or name of any of the States³the Bill has been referred by the President to the Legislature of that State for expressing its views thereon within such period as may be specified in the reference or within such further period as the President may allow and the period so specified or allowed has expired.]

⁴[Explanation I.—In this article, in clauses (a) to (e), "State" includes a Union territory, but in the proviso, "State" does not include a Union territory.

Explanation II.—The power conferred on Parliament by clause (a) includes the power to form a new State or Union territory by uniting a part of any State or Union territory to any other State or Union territory.]

Notes on Article 3Effects of re-organisation of territory on existing laws

The principles relating to a change of sovereignty in international law are not applicable to a re-organisation of territory of a State under article 3. When such an adjustment or re-organisation of territories takes place, the existing laws as well as administrative orders in a particular territory continue to be in force and continue to be binding upon the successor State, so long as they are not modified, changed or repudiated by the successor State. See the undermentioned decision :

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Thirty-fifth Amendment) Act, 1974, sec.2 (w.e.f. 1-3-1975).
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Fifth Amendment) Act, 1955, sec.2, for the proviso.
3. The words and letters "specified in Part A or Part B of the First Schedule" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec.29 and Sch.

State of Punjab v. Balbir, AIR 1977 SC 629, paragraphs 13-14.

Reference of Bills

Once the original Bill is referred to the State or States, the purpose of the proviso is served and no fresh reference is required every time an amendment to the Bill is moved and accepted according to the rules of procedure in Parliament. Parliament is not bound to accept or act upon the views of the State Legislature, even if those views are received in time; Babulal v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 SC 51, 54.

4. Laws made under articles 2 and 3 to provide for the amendment of the First and the Fourth Schedules and supplemental, incidental and consequential matters.—(1) Any law referred to in article 2 or article 3 shall contain such provisions for the amendment of the First Schedule and the Fourth Schedule as may be necessary to give effect to the provisions of the law and may also contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to representation in Parliament and in the Legislature or Legislatures of the State or States affected by such law) as Parliament may deem necessary.

(2) No such law as aforesaid shall be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368.

CITIZENSHIP

5. Citizenship at the commencement of the Constitution.—At the commencement of this Constitution, every person who has his domicile in the territory of India and—

- (a) who was born in the territory of India; or
- (b) either of whose parents was born in the territory of India; or
- (c) who has been ordinarily resident in the territory of India for not less than five years immediately preceding such commencement, shall be a citizen of India.

Notes on Article 5

Every person

The expression "every person" includes—

- (a) a prisoner;
- (b) a member of the armed forces (but subject to article 33).

See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) State of Maharashtra v. Prabhakar, AIR 1966 SC 424, 426.
- (ii) Sunil Batra v. Delhi Admn., AIR 1978 SC 1675.
- (iii) Lt. Col. Prithi Pal Singh Bedi v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 1413, paragraph 45.

One domicile

Under the Indian Constitution, there is only one domicile viz., the domicile of the country and there is no separate domicile for a state: Pradeep v. Union of India, AIR 1984 SC 1420, paragraphs 8-9.

6. Rights of citizenship of certain persons who have migrated to India from Pakistan.—Notwithstanding anything in article 5, a person who has migrated to the territory of India from the territory now included in Pakistan shall be deemed to be a citizen of India at the commencement of this Constitution if—

- (a) he or either of his parents or any of his grand-parents was born in India as defined in the Government of India Act, 1935 (as originally enacted); and
- (b) (i) in the case where such person has so migrated before the nineteenth day of July, 1948, he has been ordinarily resident in the territory of India since the date of his migration, or
 - (ii) in the case where such person has so migrated on or after the nineteenth day of July, 1948, he has been registered as a citizen of India by an officer appointed in that behalf by the Government of the Dominion of India on an application made by him therefore to such officer before the commencement of this Constitution in the form and manner prescribed by that Government :

Provided that no person shall be so registered unless he has been resident in the territory of India for at least six months immediately preceding the date of his application.

7. Rights of citizenship of certain migrants to Pakistan.—Notwithstanding anything in articles 5 and 6, a person who has after the first day of March, 1947, migrated from the territory of India to the territory now included in Pakistan shall not be deemed to be a citizen of India :

Provided that nothing in this article shall apply to a person who, after having so migrated to the territory now included in Pakistan, has returned to the territory of India under a permit for resettlement or permanent return issued by or under the authority of any law and every such person shall for the purposes of clause (b) of article 6 be deemed to have migrated to the territory of India after the nineteenth day of July, 1948.

8. Rights of citizenship of certain persons of Indian origin residing outside India.—Notwithstanding anything in article 5, any person who or either of whose parents or any of whose grand-parents was born in India as defined in the Government of India Act, 1935 (as originally enacted), and who is ordinarily residing in any country outside India as so defined shall be deemed to be a citizen of India if he has been registered as a citizen of India by the diplomatic or consular representative of India in the country where he is for the time being residing on an application made by him therefore to such diplomatic or consular representative, whether before or after the commencement of this Constitution, in the form and manner prescribed by the Government of the Dominion of India or the Government of India.

9. Persons voluntarily acquiring citizenship of a foreign State not to be citizens.—No person shall be a citizen of India by virtue of article 5, or be deemed to be a citizen of India by virtue of article 6 or article 8, if he has voluntarily acquired the citizenship of any foreign State.

Notes on Article 9

Obtaining Passport

Mere proof of the fact that the person has obtained a passport from a foreign country is not sufficient to sustain an order for deportation or prosecution, unless there has been a decision of the Central Government under section 9(2), Citizenship Act. The inquiry by the Central Government under section 9(2), Citizenship Act is quasi-judicial. See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Govt. of A.P. v. Syed Md., AIR 1962 SC 1778; State of U.P. v. Roshan, (1969) 2 SCWR 232.
- (ii) State of U.P. v. Rahimullah, AIR 1971 SC 1382; State of Gujarat v. Ibrahim, AIR 1974 SC 645, paragraph 8.
- (iii) Ayub Khan v. Commissioner of Police, (1965) 2 SCR 884; Moinuddin v. Govt. of India, (1967) 2 SCR 401.

Section 9(2), Citizenship Act

The Central Government, is vested, by section 9(2), Citizenship Act, with exclusive jurisdiction to determine the question whether a person, who was a citizen of India, has lost that citizenship by having voluntarily acquired the citizenship of a foreign State. This question cannot be determined by any court, either by suit or in a proceeding under article 226 or under article 32. If this question arises in such proceedings, the court should stay the proceedings to enable the parties to obtain the determination of the Central Government under section 9(2), Citizenship Act, or restrain the Government from giving effect to the order of deportation until the question under section 9(2) is determined by the Central Government.

A State Government has no jurisdiction to determine this question unless the function is delegated by the Central Government, under article 258 of the Constitution. Undermentioned decisions support the above propositions :

- (i) Govt. of A.P. v. Syed Md., AIR 1962 SC 1778; State of U.P. v. Roshan, (1969) 2 SCWR 232, 233.

- (v) Anwar v. State of J. & K., (1971) 3 SCC 104, 107.

10. Continuance of the rights of citizenship.—Every person who is or is deemed to be a citizen of India under any of the foregoing provisions of this Part shall, subject to the provisions of any law that may be made by Parliament, continue to be such citizen.

11. Parliament to regulate the right of citizenship by law.—Nothing in the foregoing provisions of this Part shall derogate from the power of Parliament to make any provision with respect to the acquisition and termination of citizenship and all other matters relating to citizenship.

PART III

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHTS

General

12. Definition.—In this Part, unless the context otherwise required, “the State” includes the Government and Parliament of India and the Government and the Legislature of each of the States and all local or other authorities within the territory of India or under the control of the Government of India.

Notes on Article 12

State action

The historical context in which the doctrine of “State action” evolved in the U.S. is irrelevant for India. But the principle behind the doctrine (State aid, control and regulation so impregnating a private activity as to give it the colour of “State action”) is of interest to us to the limited extent to which it can be Indianised and harmoniously blended with our constitutional jurisprudence; M.C. Mehta v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 1086.

Local authorities : Writ by

A local authority having a legal grievance may be able to take out a writ. Thus, a writ was issued on the petition of a local authority against a public utility concern, for the latter’s failure to fulfil its statutory obligation to supply power to the local authority, a consumer; Corporation of Nagpur v. N.E.L & P.Co., AIR 1985 Bom 498.

State

The definition of “State” is not confined to a Government Department and the Legislature, but extends to any action—administrative (whether statutory or non-statutory), judicial or quasi-judicial, which can be brought within the fold of ‘State action’ being action which violates a fundamental right. See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Ramana v. International Airport Authority of India, AIR 1979 SC 1628, 1638, paragraphs 14-16; State of Punjab v. Raja Ram, AIR 1981 SC 1694, paragraph 5.
- (ii) Gulam v. State of U.P., AIR 1981 SC 2198, paragraph 23.
- (iii) Som Prakash v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 212, paragraphs 34, 37.

Even a private body may be “State”; Mahabir Auto Stores v. Indian Oil Corporation, (1990) 3 SCC 752.

Other authorities

Judicial decisions have given a wide scope to the expression “other authorities” in article 12. The main theory evolved is that of “instrumentality or agency” of Government. This is a concept wider than a “department of the Government”. It embraces every public authority exercising statutory powers, every authority created under statute and even a non-statutory authority exercising public functions.

Undermentioned decisions may be seen in this connection:

- (i) Som Prakash v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 212; Tajinder Singh v. Bharat Petroleum Corp. Ltd., (1986) 4 SCC 237.

- (viii) Masthan Sahib v. Chief Commissioner, Pondicherry, AIR 1962 SC 797.

What is, and what is not a "State" has been the subject- matter of rich case law under article 12. From the numerous decisions on the subject, a judgment of the Andhra Pradesh High Court has culled out certain propositions; B. Hassan Ali Khan v. Director of Higher Education, A.P., (1987) 4 Reports 198 (A.P.), decided on 23rd January, 1987 (Writ Petition No. 3065 of 1978). The judgment says that the essential tests to determine whether a particular institution is "other authority" within the meaning of article 12 are substantial financial aid, control by the Government, performance of public functions and entrustment of governmental activities. All of these are not essential, and, in a particular case, one or a combination of more than one of them may suffice. In the leading case of Ajay Hasia v. Khalid Mujib, 1981 SC 481 (Registered Society), the Regional Engineering College was held to be a "State". P.N. Bhagwati, J. observed as under in that case —

"The constitutional philosophy of a democratic socialist republic requires the Government to undertake a multitude of socio-economic operations and the Government, having regard to the practical advantages of functioning through the Legal device of a corporation embarks on myriad commercial and economic activities by resorting to the instrumentality or agency of a corporation, but this contrivance of carrying on such activities through a corporation cannot exonerate the Government from its basic obligation to respect the Fundamental Rights and not to override them. The mandate of a corporation may be adopted in order to free the Government from the inevitable constraints of red-tapism and slow motion but by doing so, the Government cannot be allowed to play truant with the basic human rights. Otherwise, it would be the easiest thing for the Government to assign to a plurality of corporations almost every State business such as Post and Telegraph, TV and Radio, Rail Road and Telephones-in short every economic activity-and thereby cheat the people of India out of the Fundamental Rights guaranteed to them."

In the above judgment of the Supreme Court Mr. Justice Bhagwati enunciated the following test for determining whether an entity is an instrumentality or agency of the State:—

"(1) One thing is clear that if the entire share capital of the corporation is held by Government, it would go a long way towards indicating that the corporation is an instrumentality or agency or Government.

(2) Where the financial assistance of the State is so much as to meet almost entire expenditure of the corporation, it would afford some indication of the corporation being impregnated with governmental character.

(3) It may also be a relevant factor whether the corporation enjoys monopoly status which is the State conferred or State protected.

(4) Existence of deep and pervasive State control may afford an indication that the corporation is a State agency or instrumentality.

(5) If the functions of the corporation of public importance and closely related to governmental functions, it would be a relevant factor in classifying the corporation as a instrumentality or agency of Government.

(6) Specifically, if a department of Government is transferred to a corporation, it would be a strong factor supportive of this inference of the corporation being an instrumentality or agency of Government."

The Delhi Transport Corporation is "State"; D.T.C. v. Mazdoor Congress, AIR 1991 SC 101.
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALESB7RseosPhQQ>

Agency outside India

A instrumentality or agency of the State having operations outside India must comply with Indian labour legislation; Lena Khan v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 1515; (1987) 2 SCC 402.

Examples of authorities held to be State

The Children Aid Society should be treated as a State within the meaning of article 12, as it is undoubtedly an instrumentality of State. The society has, therefore, to regulate its activities, not only in accordance with the statutory requirements, but also act in a manner satisfying the requirements of the constitutional provisions in articles 21 and 24, as also the Directive Principles of the State Policy; Sheela Barse v. The Secretary, Children Aid Society, AIR 1987 SC 656 (P.N. Bhagwati, C.J. and R.S. Pathak, J.).

The Rajasthan State Electricity Board is 'State' within the meaning of that expression used in article 12 of the Constitution so that is amendable to the writ jurisdiction under article 226 of the Constitution. For the same reason, it is obvious that if a case of violation of a right under article 14 of the Constitution is made out by the petitioner against the Board, then there would be no impediment in granting relief under article 226 of the Constitution; D.C.M. Ltd. v. Assistant Engineer (H.M.T. Sub-division), Rajasthan State Electricity Board, Kota, AIR 1988 Raj 64.

There are tests formulated by several cases of the Supreme Court to find out whether an institution is a "State". There cannot indeed be a straight jacket formula. It is not necessary that all the tests should be satisfied or reaching the conclusion either for or against holding an institution to be "State". In a given case, some of the features may emerge so boldly and prominently that a second view may not be possible. There may yet be other cases where the matter would be on the border line and it would be difficult to take one or other view outright; Tekraj v. Union of India, AIR 1988 SC 469.

Private Body

A private body which is an agency of the State may be a "State"; Star Enterprises v. City and Industrial Development Corpn. of Maharashtra, (1990) 3 SCC 280.

Co-operatives

The Co-operative Societies are not created by the Co-operative Societies Act and they are not statutory bodies. They are only functioning in accordance with the provisions of the Act. Moreover, the Government has no shares in the Co-operative Societies. There is no deep and pervasive State Control. The management of the societies does not vest in the Government, or in the representatives of the Government Bank. The management is, under the effective control of committee elected by the members of the society. The statutory regulation or restriction in the functioning of the societies is not "an imprint of the State under article 12". Hence no writ will lie against a co-operative society governed by the Kerala Co-operative Societies Act; P. Bhaskaran v. Additional Secretary, Agricultural (Co-operation) Department, Trivandrum, AIR 1988 Ker 75.

Right to shelter

In a Supreme Court judgment, there are dicta (Sabyasachi Mukherji, J.) that shelter is one of our fundamental rights; Prabhakaran Nair v. State of T.N., (1987) 4 SCC 231, 261, paragraph 36: AIR 1987 SC 2117.

13. Laws inconsistent with or in derogation of the fundamental rights.—(1) All laws in force in the territory of India immediately before the commencement of this

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Constitution, in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this Part, shall, to the extent of such inconsistency, be void.

(2) The State shall not make any law which takes away or abridges the rights conferred by this Part and any law made in contravention of this clause shall, to the extent of the contravention, be void.

(3) In this article, unless the context otherwise requires,—

(a) "law" includes any Ordinance, order, bye-law, rule, regulation, notification, custom or usages having in the territory of India the force of law;

(b) "laws in force" includes laws passed or made by a Legislature or other competent authority in the territory of India before the commencement of this Constitution and not previously repealed, notwithstanding that any such law or any part thereof may not be then in operation either at all or in particular areas.

¹[(4) Nothing in this article shall apply to any amendment of this Constitution made under article 368.]

Notes on Article 13

The main object of article 13 is to secure the paramountcy of the Constitution in regard to fundamental rights. The first clause relates to the laws already existing in force and declares that pre-Constitution laws are void to the extent to which they are inconsistent with the fundamental rights. The second clause relates to post-Constitution laws and prohibits the State from making a law which either takes away totally or abrogates in part a fundamental right. The expression "the State" is to be construed in conformity with article 12 as judicially interpreted. The ambit of the expression "law" is defined in article 13(3)(a) itself, so as to ensure that the paramountcy of the Constitution extends also to :

- (a) temporary laws, such as ordinances acts as well as permanent;
- (b) statutory instruments in the nature of subordinate legislation, specifically described as "order, bye-law, rule, regulation, notification having in the territory of India the force of law";
- (c) non-legislative sources of law, that is to say, custom or usage having in the territory of India the force of law.

The object of the definition in article 13 is to ensure that instruments emanating from any source of law—permanent or temporary, legislative or judgment or any other source—will pay homage to the constitutional provision relating to fundamental rights. At the same time, clause (4) seeks to ensure that a constitutional amendment does not fall within the definition of law in article 13, and its validity cannot be challenged on the ground that it violates a fundamental right. But it should be noted that fundamental rights as such, while not immune from constitutional amendment, may, in some cases, from part of the theory of basic features, enunciated in certain decisions by the Supreme Court. The chronology of important of Supreme Court decisions on the subject is as under:

- (i) Golak Nath v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 1643.
- (ii) Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461, which, while upholding the validity of the Constitution (24th Amendment) by which article 13(4) was inserted, laid down (by majority) the theory that there were certain basic features which could not be amended under the amending power.
- (iii) Minerva Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 1789, which declared that even though the 42nd Amendment sought to amend article 368 (relating to the amending power) to declared that there shall be no limitation whatsoever on the constituent power of Parliament to amend, by way of addition, variation or repeal, the provisions of the Constitution under article 368, a Constitution amendment which relates to a basic feature (e.g. total exclusion of judicial review) would be void.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

- (iv) Waman Rao v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 271, paragraph 15, re-affirming the above limitation on the Constituent power.
- (v) Bhim Singhji v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 234.
- (vi) S.P. Gupta v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 149 and Sampath Kumar v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 366, both being decisions which, while upholding the validity of a particular amendment, impliedly proceed on the proposition that a constitutional amendment cannot override a basic feature.

Working of Act

How an Act has been worked may be looked at for assessing validity; Charanlal Sahu v. Union of India, 1990 1 SCC 613, 667.

Basic features

The "basic features" of the Constitution cannot be amended by exercising the power of amendment under article 368. The Constitution (42nd Amendment) Act, 1976, which inserted in article 368(5) a provision that there is no limitation on the constituent power of the Parliament to amend the Constitution, has been invalidated by the Supreme Court, adhering to the doctrine of basic features. Though fundamental rights, as such, are not immune from amendment en bloc, particular rights or parts thereof may be held as basic features. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461, paragraphs 759, 850, 1574, 1582, 1595, 1840, 1916, 2079 (overruling Golaknath Case).
- (ii) Minerva Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 1789.
- (iii) Waman Rao v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 271, paragraph 15.
- (iv) Srinivasa v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1987 SC 1518.

Right to Equality

14. Equality before law.—The State shall not deny to any person equality before the law or the equal protection of the laws within the territory of India.

Notes on Article 14

Source : The source of article 14 lies in the American and the Irish Constitutions. It may be mentioned that the Preamble to the Indian Constitution speaks of equality of status and of opportunity and this article gives effect to that principle in the text of the Constitution. In a sense, the demand for equality is linked up with the history of the freedom movement in India. Indians wanted the same rights and privileges that their British masters enjoyed in India and the desire for civil rights was implicit in the formation of the Indian National Congress in 1885. The Commonwealth of India Bill, 1925, in clause 8 demanded, inter alia equality before the law and provided especially that there was to be "no disqualification or disability on the ground only of sex", along with the provision that all persons were to have equal right to the use of "roads, courts of justice and all other places of business or resort dedicated to the public". See Chakravarty and Bhattacharya, Congress in Evolution, (1940), page 27. The right to equality finds place in the report drawn up by Motilal Nehru as Chairman of the Committee appointed to determine principles of the Constitution for India (1928). The Karachi resolution (March 1931) reiterated, inter alia, this right in the resolution on fundamental rights and economic and social change. Chakravarty and Bhattacharya, Congress in Evolution, (1940), page 28. The Sapru Report (1945) incorporating the proposals of the Sapru

Committee, while laying emphasis on "minorities" did enunciate the fundamental rights and in page 260 of the report, described the fundamental rights of the proposed new Constitution as a standing warning to all—

"that what the Constitution demands and expects is perfect equality between one section of the community and another in the matter of political and civic rights, equality of liberty and security in the enjoyment of the freedom of religion, worship, and the pursuit of the ordinary applications of life."

Scope: Article 14 is to be understood in the light directive principles; Indra Sawhney v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 447, Paragraph 4.

Limitations : Broadly speaking, judicial decisions interpreting article 14 while recognising the paramount nature of the fundamental rights, recognise the need on considerations of reality to have certain limitations. It is often stated that equality before the law guaranteed by the first part of article 14, is a negative concept while the second part is a more positive concept. Neither part of the article is above the recognition of exceptions and qualifications on special grounds. Thus, while the first part which is mentioned by Dicey (Dicey, Law of the Constitution, 9th edition, page 202) as a second corollary of the rule of law would rule out any special 'privilege' for any authority or person. But Constitution does give certain privileges to the President and the Governors (and also to Members of Parliament and State Legislatures). Moreover some of its provisions, as interpreted, result in a certain element of discrimination. For example, the liability of the State in tort is even today in India not necessarily the same as the liability of any private employer. According to current theory, no suit lies against the Government for an injury in the course of exercise of the 'sovereign' functions of the Government; State of Rajasthan v. Vidyawati, AIR 1962 SC 933, 935; Kasturi Lal v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 1039; Shyam Sundar v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1974 SC 890, paragraph 21.

Similarly, in the statutory framework of India, one does unfortunately come across provisions which introduce or maintain a certain amount of inequality between Government officers and ordinary citizens. For example for a suit against the Government or against a Government officer for an act purporting to be done by the latter in his official capacity a two month notice is ordinarily required under section 80 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908. Similarly, where a public servant who is not removable from his office except by or with sanction of the Government, is accused of an offence committed by him while acting or purporting to act in the discharge of his official duties, criminal courts are barred from taking cognizance of such an offence without previous sanction of the Central Government or the State Government, (as the case may be) under section 197 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.

The test : In determining the validity of such provisions, courts in India have followed the general principle that equal protection of the laws means the right to equal treatment in similar circumstances. Courts have upheld legislation containing apparently discriminatory provisions where the discrimination is based on a reasonable basis. By 'reasonable', it is meant that the classification must not be arbitrary but must be rational. The classical test as judicially enunciated requires the fulfilment of two conditions, namely,

- (1) The classification must be founded on an intelligible differential which distinguishes those that are grouped together from others.
- (2) The differential must have a rational relation to the object sought to be achieved by the law under challenge. Judicial decisions laying down the important propositions on the subject are the following :-
 - (i) Chiranjit Lal v. Union of India, (1950) SCR 869.
 - (ii) State of West Bengal v. Anwar Ali, (1952) SCR 289.
 - (iii) Dhirendra Kumar Mandal v. Superintendent and Legal Remembrancer of Legal Affairs, (1955) 1 SCR 244.

Reasonableness : An important consequence of the rights to equality is the element of reasonableness. Classification which is unreasonable is open to challenge and to this extent the policy of legislation is open to judicial review. This aspect is illustrated inter alia, in the following decisions :—

- (i) Northern India Caterers v. State of Punjab, AIR 1967 SC 1581.
- (ii) NMCS Mills v. Ahmedabad Municipality, AIR 1967 SC 1801, 1810.
- (iii) Nagpur Improvement Trust v. Luther, AIR 1973 SC 689, 694.

Equals and Unequals: Unequals are not only permitted to be treated unequally but also they have to be so treated; St. Stephens' College v. University of Delhi, (1992) 1 SCC 558, paragraphs 97-100.

Flexibility

Article 14 has an in built flexibility to allow reasonable classification passed on an objective basis; Granites v. State of Tamil Nadu, JT (1994) 1 SC 374.

Arbitrary action and discretion

Legislation which give a wide power to the executive to select cases for special treatment, without indicating the policy, may be set aside as violative of equality. On the one hand, provisions which lay down policy are likely to be upheld. But on the other hand, provisions which fail to give such guidance are likely to be upheld. But, on the other hand, provisions which fail to give such guidance are likely to be invalidated. Important judicial decision on this subject are:

- (i) State of West Bengal v. Anwar Ali, (1952) SCR 913.
- (ii) Meenakshi Mills v. Vishwanath, AIR 1955 SC 13.
- (iii) Avinder v. State of Punjab, AIR 1979 SC 321, paragraph 9.

In Shri Sita Ram Sugar Co. Ltd. v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1277, 1297, the Supreme Court (Mr. Justice Thommen) has laid down, that "any act of the repository of power, whether legislative or administrative or quasi-judicial is open to challenge, if it is in conflict with the Constitution or the governing Act or the general principles of the law of the land, or if it is so arbitrary or unreasonable that no fair minded authority could ever have made it".

These observations were made in the context of a challenge to an order for the price fixation of levy sugar under the Essential Commodities Act, 1955. In Footnote 8 to paragraph 52 of the judgment, the following English and American cases as well as Canadian and Australian cases, have been collected :

Executive Action

Occasionally administrative action which violates equality comes up for scrutiny before the courts. Such action may be based on statute or may be purely executive action of an administrative nature, that is, of non-statutory character. In either case, a statutory or non-statutory order of the executive which is arbitrary may be set aside. The courts here are not concerned with the validity of the parent law, but with the mode of its exercise of (in the second case) with the exercise of executive powers by the competent authority. The undermentioned decisions bring out this aspect:

- (i) Gopi Chand v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1959 SC 609.
- (ii) Iron & Metal Traders v. Jaskiel, AIR 1984 SC 629.
- (iii) Vishnu Das v. State of M.P., AIR 1981 SC 1636.
- (iv) Indian Express Newspapers v. Union of India, AIR 1986 SC 319.
- (v) Suman v. State of J & K, AIR 1983 SC 1283, paragraph 6.

Uncanalised discretion vested in administrative authority is not permissible; D.T.C. v. Mazdoor Union, AIR 1991 SC 101, paragraphs 276, 279 and 280.

Contacts and tenders

Where a regulation made under the Housing Board Act provides for the allotment of property to eligible persons "by draw of lots" or in such other manner, it does not mean allotment in any arbitrary manner. It implies, that none is to be favoured or preferred by any means, logic or reason. In the matter of allotment of property, and, understandably, there should be no discrimination; Daljit Singh v. Chandigarh Housing Board, AIR 1990 P&H 144.

It is not an absolute rule that authority inviting tenders cannot relax the qualifications prescribed by the tender form. But the relaxation should not be arbitrary and should not prejudice other persons; G.J. Fernandez v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1990 SC 958, paragraph 16.

Contracts

Government cannot give a contract, or sell or lease out its property, for a consideration which is less than the highest that can be obtained for it, unless of course, there are other considerations which render it reasonable and in the public interest to do so; Kashmiri Lal v. State of J & K, AIR 1980 SC 1992; (1980) 4 SCC 1. But the selection of a firm having a basis in a particular State, is justified; Artee Minerals v. State of U.P., AIR 1983 All 816. If a contract has to be awarded on a consideration of competing tenders, the State may extend the time initially prescribed or, where tenders are received but the tenderers have omitted to furnish any particulars the State may permit them to furnish those particulars; Karnataka Mechanical, Civil Engineering Contractors v. State, AIR 1990 Kar 206. Writ petition to quash impugned orders of the Delhi Development Authority cancelling the allotment of plots by auction is inadmissible. The rules are framed under the Delhi Development Act, 1957 and the wit is not in the realm of contract, but is against the breach of a statutory obligation; Phoenix Properties Pvt. Ltd. v. Union of India, AIR 1990 NOC 104 (Delhi); (1989)
<http://DelhiLawyer326.suunchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

In an agreement for the appointment of authorised dealers for the distribution and sale of foodgrains and sugar, a clause authorising termination without assigning reasons is not unconstitutional. These are essential commodities: Jagat Bahadur v. District Supply Officer, AIR 1990 All 113 (DB).

For admission to LL.B. course in the Department of Laws in the Punjab University, reservation of seats for employees of the University and their wards is unconditional. It has no reasonable nexus with the object of selection; Parveen Hans v. Registrar, AIR 1990 NOC 107 (P&H): (1990) I Serv LR 808. Such reservations cannot be made as a measure of welfare. Following decisions were referred:

- (i) Prasanna Dinkar Sohali v. Director-in-charge, Laxminarayan Institute of Technology, Nagpur, AIR 1982 Bom 176.
- (ii) Ajay Kumar v. Chandigarh Administration, AIR 1983 P&H 8.
- (iii) Ajay Kumar Mittal v. Haryana Agricultural University, AIR 1984 P&H 278.
- (iv) Ashwinder Kaur v. Punjab University, AIR 1989 P&H 190.

The High Court of Madhya Pradesh has held that the Madhya Pradesh Government Rules for selection for Post Graduate Medical course 1984 Rule 8.5 (b) (iii) which allots marks for participation in NCC (the National Cadet Corps) is arbitrary and void for the following reasons :

- (i) It has no nexus with the object of selection,
- (ii) All institutions do not have NCC facilities,
- (iii) The rule does not provide for any (level of) achievement by the candidate. All certificates ABC are given weightage.

In the same judgment, it has been held that a rule giving choice of discipline to only the children of Government servants, is void. Besides this, the judgment invalidates a rule which provides that 10 marks shall be added for securing distinction in each subject. Such a rule has no rational basis. A candidate securing distinction has already an edge. Giving further advantage amounts to double advantage for single performance; P.S. Doshi v. State of MP, AIR 1990 MP 171, 185, 186 (DB) (V D Gyani & A G Qureshi JJ) (June).

Similarly Rule 95 (a) and (b) Madhya Pradesh Rules, which provides for the weightage of marks to Assistant Surgeons on the basis of their rural service, is arbitrary. It has not nexus with the object of selecting the best candidate for Post Graduate courses; P.S. Doshi v. State of M.P., AIR 1990 MP 171. (Rules for Post Graduate Medical courses).

On the question of reservation in educational institutions (particularly medical institutions) see further the following cases :-

- (i) State of Rajasthan v. Ashok Kumar Gupta, AIR 1989 SC 177.

Education

Rules of admission (to medical courses) specifying length of service for purposes of claiming admission in the quota reserve for children of ex-servicemen, are valid; G. Beena v. A.P. University of Health Sciences, AIR 1990 AP 252, paragraph 16 (Full Bench of 5 judges). The reservation made in favour of the children of ex-servicemen is not one of the categories mentioned in article 15(4) of the Constitution. But such reservations have been upheld by the courts on the ground of reasonable classification."

Service

Rule for termination of service of permanent employee without reason is void; DTC v. Mazdoor Congress, AIR 1991 SC 101, paragraphs 199, 244, 257, 262-264, 267.

In service, there could be only one norm for confirmation or promotion of persons belonging to the same cadre. No junior shall be confirmed or promoted without considering the case of his senior. Any deviation from this principle will have demoralising effect in service, apart from being contrary to article 16(1) of the Constitution.

Where the High Court directed that an employee be confirmed with reference to a particular date and because of the faulty implementation of the High Court's order he was given promotions superseding many of his seniors even though they were eligible and suitable for promotion, the promotion given to him being totally unjustified and arbitrary, the Government could rectify the same, refix the seniority and consequently revert him; Bali Kishan v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1990 SC 100 (K Jagannatha Shetty and A.M. Ahmadi, JJ).

The doctrine of 'equal pay for equal work' does not come within Article 14 as an abstract doctrine. But if any classification is made relating to pay scales and such classification is unreasonable and if unequal pay is based on no classification, then Article 14 will at once be attracted and such classification should be set at naught and equal pay may be directed to be given for equal work. In other words, where unequal pay as brought about a discrimination within the meaning of Article 14, it will be a case of 'equal pay for equal work' as envisaged by Article 14. If the classification is proper and reasonable and has a nexus to the object sought to be achieved, the doctrine of equal pay for equal work will not have any application. So long as it is not a case of discrimination under Article 14, the abstract doctrine of equal pay for equal work as envisaged by Article 39 (d) has no manner of application nor is it enforceable in view of Article 37; Supreme Court Employees Welfare Association v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 334 (Murari Mohan Dutt and T. Kochu Thommen, JJ).

Classification in favour of skilled workers is permissible; Paras Nath v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 298, paragraph 5.

Article 14

On the question whether service rules would violate article 14, the under mentioned decisions may be seen :

- (i) Air India v. Nergis Mirza, (1981) 4 SCC 335.
- (ii) Satish Chandra Sarkar v. Tata Iron and Steel Company, (1983) 3 SCC 369.

Air Hostesses and Deputy Chief Air Hostesses belong to the same class, in view of the duties performed by them. However, as the Air India Corporation had already adopted the policy of avoiding discrimination the writ petition had become infructuous; Lena Khan v. Union of India, (1987) 2 SCC 402 [Case subsequent to Air India v. Nergis Mirza, (1981) 4 SCC 335].

Tax

The Supreme Court has upheld the validity of section 10 (10C) of the Income Tax Act, 1961 which grants certain tax exemptions to employees in the Public Sector who retire voluntarily. An objection was raised against this provision in Shashi Kant v. Union of India, JT 1990 (3) SC 267 (Judgment dated 20 July 1990), on the ground that article 14 had been violated. But the court held that there was a rational nexus between the legislation and its object. A number of Public Sector Undertakings who had formulated a scheme for Qualitative Requirements and Finance Act, 1981 had introduced this scheme to exempt payment received by them. In accordance with the approved scheme compensation package in public sector is much lower than that of Private Sector Undertaking and for this reasons discrimination was justified. Moreover, one of the afflictions of the public sector were surplus staff which are to be streamlined. The scheme was ultimately beneficial to health, prosperous of the Public Sector.

Legislature can choose a method of taxing if it is not arbitrary; Kerala Hotel v. State, (1990) 2 SCC 502.

Sales tax on restaurants

Imposition of sales tax on the sale of cooked food in the more costly eating places, while exempting cooked food sold in modest eating houses at lesser prices, is not unconstitutional. The classification is made to bring, within the tax net hotels or eating houses of the higher status. The object is to tax cooked food, only to the extent necessary, because food is a vital need for sustenance. A blinkered perception of stark reality along can equate caviare served with champagne in a luxury hotel with the gruel and buttermilk in a village hamlet, on the realistic abstract hypothesis that both the meals have the equal efficacy to appease the hunger and quench the thirst of the consumer. Validity of a classification under our Constitution does not require such a perception; Kerala Hotel and Restaurant Association v. State of Kerala, AIR 1990 SC 913, Paragraphs 8-23, 24, 29, 31 and 32.

Exemption

Grant of exemption from tax to public sector employees (in regard to retirement benefit) is valid; Shashikant v. Union of India, (1990) 4 SCC 360.

A taxing provision should not be struck down under article 14 unless it is palpably arbitrary. Classification (in sales tax law) made on the basis of turnover justifies the grant of exemption from sales tax; Khadi & Village Industries Association v. State of Bihar, 67 QSC 233.

Services

A regulation of I.A.S. (Second Amendment) Regulation, 1989 which brings about classification of officers which is arbitrary and unreasonable is unconstitutional; T. Sham Bhat v. Union of India, JT (1994) 5 SC 165.

Scheduled Castes

Denial of benefits to migrating members of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes does not violate article 14 or article 19; See, JT (1994) 4 SC 423.

Stock Exchange

There are two categories of membership of the Delhi Stock Exchange -(i) those coming through public issue, and (ii) those coming through dilution of shareholding of existing members. Higher deposit demanded from the first category is constitutionally justifiable; Om Prakash Poplai v. Delhi Stock Exchange Association, JT (1994) 1 SC 114.

Interpretation

There is no discrimination where, owing to wrong interpretation some producers are exempted; Eskay v. C.C.E, (1990) 4 SCC 680.

Telephones

When a partnership firm is in default in payment of telephone dues, the phone of an individual partner can also be disconnected under Rule 443, Telegraphs Rules, 1951. Such a consequence does not ensue as regards companies. But this discrimination between companies and firms is not unconstitutional. A company is distinct from its shareholders, and its shareholders have only a limited liability. A Company and a firm cannot be compared; Indravadan Pranlal Shah v. Ahmedabad Telephones, AIR 1990 Guj 85 (DB).

Where a telephone subscriber files a complaint against excessive billing for phone calls (local and STD calls), the complaint cannot be rejected without considering the matter. Disconnecting the phone for non-payment is illegal. Besides this, rule 443, Telegraph Rules, does not vest the authorities with power to disconnect any other telephone working in the name of the same subscriber whether at same premises or elsewhere, on the ground of default in payments of bill of one of phones. Even for the defaulting phone. Notice is required, before disconnection; and "notice" means real and effective notice; Santokh Singh v. Divisional Engineer, AIR 1990 Gau 47.

Land ceiling

Section 4(7) of Urban Land (Ceiling and Regulation) Act, 1976, is not unconstitutional on the ground that it makes certain special provisions regarding Hindu individual families. Such a family is not a "person", and is not to be treated as a single unit for the purpose of ceiling limit. Under section 4(7), each individual member major or minor has a separate ceiling; Pratima Paul v. Competent Authority, AIR 1990 Cal 185 (DB) (A.M. Bhattacharjee, J.).

15. Prohibition of discrimination on grounds of religion, race, caste, sex or place of birth.—(1) The State shall not discriminate against any citizen on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, place of birth or any of them.

(2) No citizen shall, on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex place of birth or any of them, be subject to any disability, liability, restriction or condition with regard to—

- (a) access to shops, public restaurants, hotels and places of public entertainment; or

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALESb7RseosPhQQ>

(b) the use of wells, tanks, bathing ghats, roads and places of public resort maintain wholly or partly out of State funds or dedicated to the use of general public.

(3) Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any special provision for women and children.

¹[(4) Nothing in this article or in clause (2) of article 29 shall prevent the State from making any special provision for the advancement of any socially and educationally backward classes of citizens or for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes.]

Notes on Article 15

Relationship to Article 14

In a sense, the general and abstract principle of equality laid down in article 14 is spelt out for certain situations in greater detail in article 15 and in some of the succeeding articles. But it should be noted that article 15 is limited to citizens, while article 14 extends to all persons. Secondly, article 15, clause (1) and article 15(2) are both limited to discrimination on the ground of religion, race, sex, place of birth or any of them. Thirdly, the article permits the State to make special provisions for women and children. Fourthly, the article also permits the State to make any special provision for the following :-

- (a) Socially and educationally backward classes of citizens;
- (b) Scheduled castes; and
- (c) Scheduled tribes.

Article 14 prohibits the State from denying to any person equality before the law etc. Article 15(1) and article 16(2) project the citizen against discrimination; State of Sikkim v. Surandera Prasad Sharma, JT (1994) 3 SC 372.

Discrimination

The crucial word in this article is 'discrimination', which means 'making an adverse distinction with regard to' or 'distinguishing unfavourably from others'; Kathi Raniing Rawat v. State of Saurashtra, (1952) SCR 435, 442. Another crucial word is 'only' so that if the discrimination is based on some ground not connected with religion etc. but with some other rational factor, the discrimination would be valid.

Women

Clause (3), which permits special provision for women and children, has been widely resorted to and the courts have upheld the validity of special measures in legislation or executive orders favouring women. In particular, provisions in the criminal law, in favour of women, or in the procedural law discriminating in favour of women, have been upheld. The following decisions may be seen in this context :-

- (i) Girdhar v. State, AIR 1953 MB 147. (Section 354, Indian Penal Code).
- (ii) Yusuf v. State of Bombay, AIR 1954 SC 321, 322. (Section 497, Indian Penal Code).
- (iii) Choki v. State, AIR 1957 Raj 10 (Bail).
- (vi) Shahbad v. Abdulla, AIR 1967 J & K 120, 127. (Service of summons on men only in civil cases).

Similarly, provisions providing for reservation of seats for women in local bodies or in educational institutions are valid. Undermentioned decisions may be seen :

1. Added by the Constitution (First Amendment) Act, 1951, sec. 2.

- (i) Dattatraya v. State of Bombay, AIR 1953 Bom 311.
- (ii) Sagar v. State, AIR 1968 AP 165, 174.

Backward Class

Clause (4) of article 15 may at the first sight, appear to be a blanket provision, protecting my kind of beneficial discrimination in the nature of special provisions for the benefit of the classes mentioned therein. However, apart from questions as to when a particular class can be legitimately regarded as backward class, discriminatory provisions of such a nature may be struck down as unreasonable in the circumstances. This is on the basis that the general right of equality guaranteed by article 14, would override the special provision under article 15(4), in such circumstances. Hence, reservation of an excessively high percentage of seats in technical institutions for each classes would be void. In fact, ordinarily speaking, reservation in excess of 50 per cent of available seats may not be upheld. The undermentioned decisions may be seen on this point :

- (i) State of A.P. v. Balram, AIR 1972 SC 1375, 1395.
- (ii) Rajendran v. Union of India, AIR 1968 SC 507.
- (iii) Balaji v. State of Mysore, AIR 1963 SC 649, 662.
- (iv) Jayashree v. State of Kerala, AIR 1976 SC 2381.
- (v) Periakarauppan v. State of Tamil Nadu, AIR 1971 SC 2303.
- (vi) Abdul Latif v. State of Bihar, AIR 1964 Pat 393, 395.
- (vii) Anil v. Dean, Govt. Medical College, Nagpur, AIR 1985 Bom 153, paragraph 6.

In making reservation by executive order by virtue of article 15(4), the State has to take care that it is not unduly wide. Apart from Schedule Castes and Schedules Tribes, the other classes eligible or reservation, if made by the State, is the category of "socially and educationally backward classes of citizens". In article 46, (a directive principle of State policy) it is the obligation of the state to promote with special care the educational and economic interests of "the weaker sections of the people", and in particular, "of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes" which is provided for. By article 335, it is provided that the claim of the members of the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes shall be taken into consideration consistently with the maintenance of efficiency in the administration, in the making of appointments to services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of a State. But this article does not mention backward classes. Virtually, the Supreme Court has held the element of efficiency of administration as a limitation on article 16(4). Incidentally, article 16(4) speaks of reservation of appointment of posts in favour of any backward class of citizens which, in the opinion of the State, is not adequately represented in the service under the State. But this article has to be interpreted in the background of article 335 as mentioned above. Undermentioned decisions may be seen on the above aspect :

- (i) K.C. Vasanthkumar v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1985 SC 1495, paragraphs 36, 57, 88 and 148 to 151.
- (ii) Comptroller and Auditor General v. Jagannathan, AIR 1987 SC 537, paragraphs 21-22 and 30-31.
- (iii) Deepak v. State of Bihar, AIR 1982 Pat 126, paragraph 12.
- (iv) Arti v. State of Jammu & Kashmir, AIR 1981 SC 1009, paragraphs 7 and 9.

Reservation in medical colleges is permitted; Ajay Kumar v. State of Bihar, JT (1994) 3 SC 662. <https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

16. Equality of opportunity in matters of public employment.—(1) There shall be equality of opportunity for all citizens in matters relating to employment or appointment to any office under the State.

(2) No citizen shall, on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex, descent, place of birth, residence or any of them, be ineligible for, or discriminated against in respect of, any employment or office under the State.

(3) Nothing in this article shall prevent Parliament from making any law prescribing, in regard to a class or classes of employment or appointment to an office¹ [under the Government of, or any local or other authority within, a State or Union territory, any requirement as to residence within that State or Union territory] prior to such employment or appointment.

(4) Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from making any provision for the reservation of appointments or posts in favour of any backward class of citizens which, in the opinion of the State, is not adequately represented in the services under the State.

²[(4A) Nothing in this article shall prevent the state from making any provision for reservation in matters of promotion of any class or classes of posts in the services under the State in favour of Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes which, in the opinion of the State are not adequately represented in the services under the state.]

(5) Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any law which provides that the incumbent of an office in connection with the affairs of any religious or denominational institution or any member of the governing body thereof shall be a person professing a particular religion or belonging to a particular denomination.

Notes on Article 16

Object

The main object of article 16 is to create a constitutional right to equality of opportunity and employment in public offices. This article is confined to citizens as distinguished from other persons. Further, it is confined to employment or appointment to an office 'under the State'.

Certain exceptions to the right created by clause (1) and clause (2) of article 16 flow from clauses (3), (4) and (5) of the article. These relate, respectively, to a requirement of residence if sanctioned by Parliamentary legislation, reservation for backward class of citizens, if not adequately represented in the State services and prescription of professing a particular religion or belonging to a particular denomination, if the office is in connection with the affairs of any religious or denominational institution.

Scheme

Article 16(4) is not an exception to but gives a permissible basis; Indra Sawhney v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 477.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for "under any State specified in the First Schedule or any local or other authority within its territory, any requirement as to residence within that State".
2. Ins. by the Constitution (Seventy-ninth Amendment) Act, 1995.

Discrimination

Besides the right to equality of opportunity in general terms, article 16(2) prohibits discrimination against a citizen on the ground of-

- (a) religion,
- (b) race,
- (c) caste,
- (d) sex,
- (e) descent,
- (f) place of birth, and
- (g) residence, subject, of course to article 16(3).

In case of this particular article, the courts have held that the general right given by the first two clauses should be construed liberally and the exceptions may be construed strictly. Decisions on this point are:

General Manager v. Rangachari, AIR 1962 SC 36, 41; Rajendran v. Union of India, AIR 1968 SC 507.

However, the provision in clause (4) regarding backward class of citizens seems to possess a double character. As regards person not belonging to such class, the provision may appear to be a sanction for discrimination against them for special reasons. But as regards the backward classes themselves, they view it as a corrective to remedy the imbalance which has resulted from historical causes. As a result, considerable controversy and uncertainty exists as to the extent to which the quantum of reservation may override the general right to equality. Broadly speaking, it may be stated that reservation excess of 50% may be, prima facie, regarded as discriminatory. Decisions relevant to this particular point are:

- (i) General Manager v. Rangachari, AIR 1962 SC 36.
- (ii) Rajendran v. Union of India, AIR 1968 SC 507.
- (iii) Triloki Nath v. State of J. & K., AIR 1967 SC 1283.
- (iv) Periakaruppan v. State of Tamil Nadu, (1971) SCR 430.

Other Safeguards

On the question whether article 16(4) is subject to any safeguard, it is relevant to point out that courts have insisted that it must be read with article 335 which directs that in taking into consideration the claims of members of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, the State should bear in mind that the claim should be consistent with the maintenance of efficiency of administration. This incidentally calls upon the judiciary to read together articles 16, 46 and 335. Decisions on this point are:

- (i) Devadasan v. Union of India, AIR 1985 SC 983, paragraph 1.
- (ii) Balaji v. State of Mysore, AIR 1963 SC 649, 664.
- (iii) A.B.S.Sagh v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 298.
- (iv) State of Kerala v. Thomas, AIR 1976 SC 490, paragraphs 168 and 179.
- (v) K.C. Vasanthkumar v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1985 SC 1495, paragraphs 36, 57, 88 and 148 to 151.
- (vi) Comptroller and Auditor General v. Jagannathan, AIR 1987 SC 537.

Employment

The words 'employment or appointment' are wide enough to include tenure, duration, emoluments and duties and obligations, whether the employment is temporary or permanent. They cover amongst themselves not merely the initial appointment, but also salary, increments, revision of pay, promotion, gratuity, leave, pension and age of superannuation. Decisions relevant to this point are:

- (i) Sukhnandan v. State of Bihar, AIR 1967 Pat 617.
- (ii) Champaklal v. Union of India, AIR 1964 SC 1854, 1860.
- (iii) Shiv Charan v. State of Mysore, AIR 1965 SC 280, 283.

(iv) Union of India v. Kashikar, AIR 1986 SC 431, paragraph 8.

(v) Prabhakar v. State of A.P., AIR 1986 SC 210, paragraph 22.

A Naib Subedar in the Army had not, as laid down in the relevant criteria for promotion, obtained the grade of "High Average" for three years during the last five years immediately preceding. The screening Board considered his case and he was not found fit in the medical examination. It was held that, he could not make any grievance on the ground that pursuant to the selection by the Board, five officers who were junior to the Naib Subedar in question were promoted to the next higher grade. In this connection, he could not urge that grading 'B' given in the particular year in the Confidential Record should be treated as high average, when in the C.R. form for Naib Subedar for the year in question, grading 'B' was shown to be 'average'; Ex Naib Subedar Katar Sing v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 17.

Arbitrariness

Article 16 is a spread of article 14. Hence non-arbitrariness is a part of article 16; DTC v. Mazdoor Congress, AIR 1991 SC 101, paragraph 258-280.

M, was given promotion when he approached the High Court. He was an employee belonging to backward classes. Another employee who was similarly placed was denied promotion. It was held that the discrimination was illegal; Vishwas Anna Sowant v. Municipal Corporation of Greater Bombay, JT (1994) 3 SC 573.

Article 14 guarantees to all persons equality before the law. Articles 15(1) and 16(2) protect citizens against discrimination; State of Sikkim v. Surendra Prasad Sharma, JT (1994) 3 SC 372.

Proviso to Rule 6(1), Orissa Recruitment Rules which invites applications from candidates of the dispute has been held to violate article 16(2); State of Orissa v. Sudhir Kumar Biswal, JT (1994) 5 SC 534.

Scheduled Caste or Scheduled Tribe status is not carried by a member when he migrates to another State; JT(1994) 4 SC 423.

17. Abolition of Untouchability.—"Untouchability" is abolished and its practice in any form is forbidden. The enforcement of any disability arising out of "Untouchability" shall be an offence punishable in accordance with law.

Notes on Article 17

Article 17 has been implemented by the Protection of Civil Rights Act, 1955 whose earlier title was 'The Untouchability (Offences) Act, 1955'. The principal object of article 17 is to ban the practice of untouchability in any form. This expression refers to the social disabilities imposed on certain classes of persons by reason of their birth in certain castes and does not cover social boycott based on conduct; Devarajiah v. Padmanna, AIR 1961 Mad 35, 39. A curious question was raised in a Madras case. The State legislature passed a law to improve the conditions of living of untouchables, by providing for the acquisition of land to construct a colony for them. The argument was advanced that such a construction would result in the segregation of those persons and would not be in conformity with article 17, but the argument was not accepted; Pavadai v. State of Madras, AIR 1973 Mad 458.

18. Abolition of titles.—(1) No title, not being a military or academic distinction, shall be conferred by the State.

(2) No citizen of India shall accept any title from any foreign State.

(3) No person who is not a citizen of India shall, while he holds any office of profit or trust under the State, accept without the consent of the President any title from any foreign State.

(4) No person holding any office of profit or trust under the State shall, without the consent of the President, accept any present, emolument or office of any kind from or under any foreign State.

Right to Freedom

19. Protection of certain rights regarding freedom of speech, etc.—(1) All citizens shall have the right—

- (a) to freedom of speech and expression;
- (b) to assemble peaceably and without arms;
- (c) to form associations or unions;
- (d) to move freely throughout the territory India;
- (e) to reside and settle in any part of the territory of India;¹ [and]

²[]

- (g) to practise any profession, or to carry on any occupation, trade or business.

³[(2) Nothing in sub-clause (a) of clause (1) shall affect the operation of any existing law, or prevent the State from making any law, in so far as such law imposes reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause in the interests of “[the sovereignty and integrity of India,] the security of the State, friendly relations with foreign States, public order, decency or morality, or in relation to contempt of court, defamation or incitement to an offence.”]

(3) Nothing in sub-clause (b) of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, in the interests of “[the sovereignty and integrity of India or] public order, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause.

(4) Nothing in sub-clause (c) of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, in the interests of “[the sovereignty and integrity of India or] public order or morality, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause.

(5) Nothing in ⁵[sub-clauses (d) and (e)] of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of any of the rights conferred by the said sub-clauses either in the interests of the general public or for the protection of the interests of any Scheduled Tribe.

(6) Nothing in sub-clause (g) of the said clause shall affect the operation of any existing law in so far as it imposes, or prevent the State from making any law imposing, in the interests of the general public, reasonable restrictions on the exercise of the right conferred by the said sub-clause, and, in particular, ⁶[nothing in the said sub-clause shall

Relationship

Article 19 is available against State action for the protection of freedoms enumerated in the article. Some controversy existed in the past as to whether the operation of this article is ruled out where articles 21 and 22 apply; but the current trend is not to regard these articles as mutually exclusive. Thus to take one example, a person whose freedom of movement has been taken away by imprisonment or detention does not thereby lose his freedom of expression, so long as it is exercised within the valid conditions relating to imprisonment or detention. Hence a detenu cannot be prevented from sending outside the jail for publication, matter which contains nothing prejudicial to the grounds or which he had been detained. The undermentioned decisions are relevant on the aspect mentioned in this paragraph:

- (i) State of Maharashtra v. Prabhakar, AIR 1966 SC 424.
- (ii) Fernandez v. State of Maharashtra, (1964) 66 Bom LR 185.
- (iii) Khan v. State, AIR 1967 Bom 254.
- (iv) Narayanan v. State, AIR 1973 Ker 97.
- (v) Haradhan v. State of West Bengal, AIR 1974 SC 2154, paragraphs 32 and 33.
- (vi) State of Maharashtra v. Basantibai, AIR 1986 SC 1466.
- (vii) Minerva Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 1789.
- (viii) Khudi Ram v. State of West Bengal, AIR 1975 SC 550, paragraph 12.
- (ix) Vatheeswaran v. State of Tamil Nadu, AIR 1983 SC 361.

Corporations as citizens

The freedoms under article 19 are limited to citizens and if literally construed these freedoms would not be available to corporations, because corporations cannot be talked of as having or possessing citizenship. But it has been held that shareholders can challenge the validity of a law on the ground of violation of their fundamental rights and the company may be joined in such proceeding with proper pleading. The decisions relevant to this point are the following:-

- (i) Amritsar Municipality v. State of Punjab, AIR 1969 SC 1100, 1106.
- (ii) Barium Chemicals v. Company Law Board, AIR 1967 SC 295, 305.
- (iii) Tata Engineering Co. v. State of Bihar, AIR 1965 SC 40, 48.
- (iv) Bennett Coleman v. Union of India, AIR 1973 SC 106.
- (v) D.F.O. v. Vishwanath Tea Co., AIR 1981 SC 1369, paragraph 7.

A company is not a "citizen" and cannot invoke article 19(1)(g). Dealing in intoxicants is not "trade" or business; Khoday Brewing & Distilling Industries Ltd. v. State of Tamil Nadu, AIR 1990 Mad 124.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Unincorporated associations

An unincorporated association cannot also be citizen and cannot claim these rights; All India Bank Employees Association v. National Industrial Tribunal, AIR 1962 SC 171, 180.

Burden of Proof

The scheme of article 19, broadly speaking, is that once a law prima facie violates a right guaranteed by any clause of the article, then the State must show how the legislation or other State action falls within the permissible limits allowed by clause (2) to (6) of the article and to place proper material to support that argument. The decisions in support of this proposition are the following:—

- (i) Vrijlal v. State of M.P., AIR 1970 SC 129, 135.
- (ii) Sagir Ahmad v. State of U.P., AIR 1954 SC 728.
- (iii) Chintaman Rao v. State of M.P., (1950) SCR 759.

Criteria of validity of law

The considerations which generally prevail in judging the validity of a law in the context of this article are:

- (a) Whether the law imposes a restriction on the freedom in question;
- (b) Whether the restrictions have been imposed by law;
- (c) Whether the restrictions are reasonable; and
- (d) Whether the restriction besides being reasonable, is imposed for one of the specified purposes relevant to the freedom in question as enumerated in the applicable clause out of clauses (2) to (6) of the article.

Each of these conditions must be satisfied.

The test of reasonableness

In applying the test of reasonableness (which is the most crucial consideration), the broad criterion is whether the law strikes a proper balance between social control on the one hand and the rights of the individual on the other hand. The court must take into account the following aspects:—

- (a) nature of the right infringed;
- (b) underlying purpose of the restriction imposed;
- (c) evils sought to be remedied by the law, its extent and urgency;
- (d) how far the restriction is or is not proportionate to the evil; and
- (e) prevailing conditions at the time.

Decisions relevant to these propositions are the following:—

- (i) Chintaman Rao v. State of M.P., (1950) SCR 759.
- (ii) Khare v. State of Delhi, (1950) SCR 519.
- (iii) Qareshi v. State of Bihar, (1959) SCR 629.
- (iv) Dwarka Prasad v. State of U.P., (1954) SCR 803.
- (v) State of Maharashtra v. Himmaithai, AIR 1970 SC 1157.
- (vi) Laxmi v. State of U.P., AIR 1981 SC 873.

Arbitrariness

Where policy is laid down, discretion is not of reasonableness—arbitrary; DTC v. Mazdoor Congress, AIR 1991 SC 101.

Substantive and procedural aspects

Reasonableness in this context covers substantive reasonableness, as well as procedural reasonableness. Thus, in ordinary circumstances, it will be unreasonable to make the exercise of a fundamental right depend on the subjective satisfaction of the executive; Khare v. State of Delhi, (1950) SCR 519; Gurbachan v. State of Bombay, (1952) SCR 737, 742; Virendra v. State of Punjab, AIR 1958 SC 986.

Freedom of expression

State cannot prohibit criterion of executive action; L.I.C.v. Manubhai Shah, AIR 1993 SC 171, paragraph 23

The Press

Freedom of the press is not expressly mentioned in article 19 but has been held to flow from the general freedom of speech and expression guaranteed to all citizens. As judicially construed, this freedom now includes not merely the freedom to write and publish what the writer considers proper (subject to reasonable restrictions imposed by law for specific purpose), but also the freedom to carry on the business so that information may be disseminated and excessive and prohibitive burden restricting circulation may be avoided. Decisions relevant to these aspects of press freedom are the following:-

- (i) Virendra v. State of Punjab, AIR 1958 SC 986.
- (ii) Express Newspapers v. Union of India, AIR 1958 SC 578.
- (iii) Bennett Coleman v. Union of India, AIR 1973 SC 106.
- (iv) Prabha v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 6.
- (v) Indian Express Newspapers v. Union of India, AIR 1986 SC 515.
- (vi) Sakal Papers v. Union of India, AIR 1962 SC 305.
- (vii) Indian Express Newspapers v. Union of India, AIR 1986 SC 872.
- (viii) Sharma v. Sri Krishna, AIR 1959 SC 395, 402.

Article 19(2) and advertisements

Government advertisements should be given to newspapers under a definite policy or uniform guidelines (Guidelines set out in the judgment); Ghulam Nabi v. State, AIR 1990 J & K 20, 21, for Right of reply see L.I.C. v. Manubhai Shah, AIR 1993 SC 171.

Freedom of Assembly

The freedom of assembly can be restricted for the purpose mentioned in article 19(3) by a reasonable law. Moreover, the freedom can be exercised only on public land. Restrictions imposed under article 19(3) would cover restrictions to maintain the sovereignty and integrity of India and public order, including the maintenance of traffic in the area concerned. But the restrictions cannot attain the status of absolute prohibition at least in normal times.

Right to know

A citizen has a right to know about the activities of the State, the instrumentalities, the departments and the agencies of the State. The privilege of secrecy which existed in old times, (namely) that the State is not bound to disclose the facts to the citizens or the State cannot be compelled by the citizens to disclose the facts, does not survive now to a great extent. Under article 19 there exists the right of freedom of speech. Freedom of speech is based on the foundation of freedom right to know. The State can impose and should impose reasonable restrictions in the rights where it affects the national security or any other matter affecting the nation's integrity. But the right is limited and particularly in the matter of sanitation and other allied matters, every citizen has a right to know how the State is functioning and why the State is withholding such information in such matters; L.K. Kootwal v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1988 Raj 2.

Freedom of association

The right to freedom of association covers a variety of rights, so long as the association is for a lawful purpose. The right includes the right to start or continue an association subject to reasonable restrictions in the interest of sovereignty or integrity of India, public order and morality. Decisions relevant to this right are the following:-

- (i) Kulkarni v. State of Bombay, AIR 1954 SC 73.
- (ii) O.K. Ghosh v. Joseph, AIR 1963 SC 812, 815.
- (iii) D.A.V. College v. State of Punjab, (1971) 2 SCC 269, 281.
- (iv) Delhi Police Sangh v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 379.
- (v) All India Bank Employees Association v. National Industrial Tribunal, AIR 1962 SC 171, 179.
- (vi) Sitharmachary v. Senior Deputy Inspector, AIR 1958 AP 78 (right of an individual to refuse to be member of an association upheld).
- (vii) State of Bihar v. Misra, AIR 1971 SC 1667 (Procedural aspect).
- (viii) Madhu Limaye v. S.D.M., AIR 1971 SC 2486.
- (ix) R.R.W. Union v. Registrar, AIR 1967 Cal 507, 508.

Freedom of movement

The freedom of movement guaranteed by clause (b) or article 19(1) is in addition to the right to personal liberty guaranteed under article 21. Orders of exterritorial and interment violate this right unless they fall within the permissible restrictions. While judicial decisions confine this article to physical movement, the intangible aspect of freedom may receive protection under article 21. For example, domiciliary visits by the police at night disturbing a person's sleep infringe personal liberty under article 21 and may not be constitutionally valid, except in the case of surveillance needed for the legitimate purpose of prevention of crime. In particular, entries in the 'Bad Character Register' at a police station, if mala fide, are subject to judicial scrutiny. A combined reading of article 19(1)(b) and article 21 has led to the proposition that residents of hilly areas have a right to be provided access to the roads, which access is necessary for the proper exercise of the right of life. Generally, a person proposed to be exterrited must be given a hearing. A permanent restriction on the freedom of movement is prima facie suspect. Decisions bringing out these propositions are the following:-

- (i) Khare v. State of Delhi, (1950) SCR 519.
- (ii) Kharak Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1953 SC 1295, 1303.
- (iii) Govind v. State of M.P., AIR 1975 SC 1278.
- (iv) State of M.P. v. Bharat, AIR 1967 SC 110.
- (v) Malak v. State of Punjab, AIR 1981 SC 760, paragraphs 7, 9 and 10.
- (vi) Maneka Gandhi v. Union of India, AIR 1978 SC 597, paragraph 54.
- (vii) State of H.P. v. Umed, (1986) 2 SCC 68. (Cases relating to hilly areas).
- (viii) Gurbachan v. State of Bombay, (1952) SCR 737.

AIDS

A person suffering from AIDS can be restricted in his movements by law; Lucy v. State of Goa, AIR 1990 Bom 355, paragraph 7-8.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Position of the Press

The press is not immune from the general law of liability for defamation (Civil and criminal); Printers Mysore v. Assistant Commercial Law officer, JT (1994) 1 SC 692.

Freedom of residence: Migrants

Denial of benefits to migrating members of Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, does not violate article 19; See JT (1994) 4 SC 423.

Freedom of residence : Reasonable restrictions

Freedom to reside and settle in any part of India guaranteed by clause (e) of article 19(1) is subject to reasonable restrictions in the interest of the general public or for the protection of interest of scheduled tribes. In general, substantive as well as procedural reasonableness would be required. This freedom is said to be intended to remove internal barriers in India or between any of its parts, but is limited to citizens. Moreover, even citizens can be subjected to reasonable restrictions such as passport regulations. Besides this, certain areas may be banned for certain kinds of persons, such as prostitutes. These propositions bear support from the following decisions :-

- (i) State of M.P. v. Bharat, AIR 1967 SC 1170, 1172.
- (ii) Kharak Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1953 SC 1295, 1303.
- (iii) Ebrahim v. State of Bombay, (1954) SCR 923, 950. (Passport).
- (iv) State of U.P. v. Kaushaliya, AIR 1964 SC 416, 423. (Prostitutes).

Freedom of profession etc.

The right guaranteed by clause (g) of article 19(1), namely, freedom of profession, trade or business, is intended to ensure that citizens' right to business does not depend on grant by the State and that the State cannot prevent a citizen from carrying on a business, except by a law imposing a reasonable restriction in the interest of the general public. Of course, there is no right where the business is dangerous or immoral; such a business may be absolutely prohibited or may be required to be licensed. Moreover, there is no right to carry on a business at any place or at any time; restrictions may be imposed in that regard. A citizen cannot be compelled to do a certain business. Relevant cases are:

- (i) Pyare Lal v. Delhi Municipality, AIR 1968 SC 133, 138. (Business on the streets).
- (ii) Ebrahim v. Regional Transport Authority, (1953) SCR 290, 299. (Reasonable restrictions for public convenience).
- (iii) Hathising Manufacturing Co. v. Union of India, AIR 1960 SC 924, 928. (Right not to carry on a business).
- (iv) Hari Shankar v. Deputy Commissioner, AIR 1975 SC 1121. (Absolute prohibition for harmful trades).
- (v) Lakhan Lal v. State of Orissa, AIR 1977 SC 722. (Dangerous trade).
- (vi) State of Rajasthan v. Byas, (1971) (unreported judgments of the Supreme Court 222, 223). (Right cannot be surrendered).

Price

For commodity not vital for consumer greater consideration can be given to profit; ONGC v. Association, (1990) Supp SCC 397, paragraphs 28, 30, 31, 36
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Business with Government

There is no right to carry on business with the Government as such nor is there a right that one's product (e.g. text books) must be recognised by the Government. Nor is there a right that at a public auction or in tenders invited by the Government, the highest bid or the lowest tender must be accepted. But by virtue of article 14, it is now established that rejection of the highest bid or the lowest tender by Government must not be arbitrary. Decisions in support of these propositions are the following :-

- (i) Ram Jawaya v. State of Punjab, (1955) 2 SCR 225, 240. (Text books).
- (ii) State of Orissa v. Hari Narayan, AIR 1972 SC 1816. (Auctions).
- (iii) State of U.P. v. Bijoy, AIR 1982 SC 1234.
- (iv) Ram and Shyam Company v. State of Haryana, AIR 1985 SC 1147, paragraph 13 and 14. (Rejection of highest bid).

Ministers

A Minister may be restrained from contracting (because of his position); Vidada Harinadhababu v. N.T. Ramarao, AIR 1990 AP 20, paragraph 24 (FB).

Licences and permits

In the context of licences and permits required for carrying on a business or trade, the grant of such licence cannot depend upon the absolute discretion of an administrative authority. Their policy must be laid down on which the discretion is to be exercised. Further, in general, the discretion must be exercised on relevant consideration. In short, if the law imposing licensing does not set out the consideration, the law would be void. If the considerations are set out in the law, but are departed from by the competent authority while administering the law then the order of the competent authority would be void, even though the law itself may be valid. Generally, an existing licence cannot be revoked without giving the licensee an opportunity of hearing. The undermentioned decisions bear out these propositions :

- (i) Dwarka Prasad v. State of U.P., (1954) SCR 803.
- (ii) Faruk v. State of M.P., AIR 1970 SC 93, 96.
- (iii) Fedco v. Bilgrami, (1960) SCJ 235, 249. (Hearing before cancellation of licence).
- (iv) Sukhnandan v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 902, paragraph 23. (Hearing before cancellation of licence).
- (v) Banthia v. Union of India, AIR 1970 SC 1453.
- (vi) Khatki v. Limdi Municipality, AIR 1979 SC 418.
- (vii) All Delhi Rickshaw Union v. Municipal Corporation, AIR 1987 SC 648. (Reasonable restrictions are permissible).
- (viii) State of M.P. v. Nand Lal, AIR 1987 SC 251, paragraphs 4, 32 and 33. (Requirements of State policy).

Price fixation

Price fixation being a legislative act prior consultation is not required; H. S. K. V. v. U.O.I., (1990) 4 SCC 516, paragraph 12.

Shareholder

A shareholder was held to have standing to challenge the wage fixation order passed by a wage board, on the reasoning that an improper fixation would cast a heavy financial burden on the company; P.T.I. v. Union of India, AIR 1974 SC 1044. The Supreme Court has described the law relating to right of a company to challenge violation of article 19 as in a 'nebulous state' and added, <https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ> the trend is in the direction of holding that in the matter of fundamental freedoms guaranteed by article 19, the rights of a shareholder and the company which the shareholders have formed are rather co-extensive and the denial to one of the fundamental freedoms would be denied to the other. It is time to put an end to this controversy; Delhi Cloth & General Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1974 SC 937, 943. See also 'Corporation as citizens' at page 29.

20. Protection in respect of conviction for offences.—(1) No person shall be convicted of any offence except for violation of a law in force at the time of the commission of the act charged as an offence, nor be subjected to a penalty greater than that which might have been inflicted under the law in force at the time of the commission of the offence.

(2) No person shall be prosecuted and punished for the same offence more than once.

(3) No person accused of any offence shall be compelled to be a witness against himself.

Notes on Article 20

Scope

The prohibitions imposed by article 20 are directly relevant to the criminal process. While clause (1) is concerned with the substantive law of criminal liability and penalty, clauses (2) and (3) are concerned mainly with the stage of procedure. In the jurisprudence of constitutional law, article 20(1) incorporates a prohibition against 'ex post facto penal law'. Article 20(2) incorporates a prohibition against 'double jeopardy' article 20(3) gives protection against 'testimonial compulsion'. Because of the word 'person' used in each clause, the article must be regarded as applicable to a corporation which is accused, prosecuted, convicted or punished for an offence; Sharma v. Satis, (1954) SCR 1077. Thus article 20 is not confined to individuals and common law offences.

Violation of law and common law offences

Although clause (1) is mainly concerned with retroactive penal legislation, it also seems to give constitution recognition to the principle that there cannot be a conviction except for violation of a 'law in force'. It would seem, therefore, that in India, there can be no 'common law' offences; and the judiciary cannot, in India, create an offence not created by statute. How far the word 'violation' would require that the violation should be personal, is a matter not specifically provided for in the article. The question must await judicial decisions at a later stage and article 21 may also be relevant.

No Right in Procedure

It should be noted that while substantive law imposing liability or penalty cannot be altered to the prejudice of the person supposed to be guilty with retrospective effect, there is no vested right in procedure. Besides this, the thrust of article 20(1) is in the field of criminal law only, since the word 'offence' as defined in article 367 read with the General Clauses Act can only denote an act or omission punishable by law. Important decisions on the above aspect are the following :—

- (i) Shiv Bahadur v. State of U.P., (1953) SCR 118.
- (ii) Kedar Nath v. State of W.B., AIR 1953 SC 404.
- (iii) Jawala Ram v. State of Pepsu, AIR 1962 SC 1246.
- (iv) State of West Bengal v. S.K. Ghose, AIR 1963 SC 255.

- (v) Satwant v. State of Punjab, AIR 1960 SC 266.
- (vi) Union of India v. Sukumar, AIR 1966 SC 1206.
- (vii) Nayyar v. State, AIR 1979 SC 603.
- (viii) Kanyaiya Lal v. Income Tax Commissioner, AIR 1975 SC 255.
- (ix) Maya v. C.I.T., (1986) 1 SCC 445, paragraphs 11 and 12.

Double Jeopardy

As regards article 20(2) dealing with double jeopardy what it bars is prosecution and punishment after an earlier punishment for the same offence. 'Offence' here means an offence as defined in section 3 (38) of the General Clauses Act applied to the Constitution by article 367. The offence must be the same, that is to say, involving the same ingredients in all respect and a trial for a separate and distinct offence is not barred under article 20(2). However, this article must be taken as supplemented by section 26 of the General Clauses Act, 1897 and the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 as to second prosecution after conviction or acquittal for an offence where the second persecution is excluded by the doctrine of autrefois convict or autrefois acquit. The word 'prosecution' would not normally cover departmental proceedings not held before a criminal court. The object of this provisions is to avoid the harassment which must be caused to a person for successive criminal proceedings where only one crime has been committed. Important decisions interpreting this clause of article 20 are the following :—

- (i) Makbool v. State of Bombay, (1953) SCR 730.
- (ii) Kalawati v. State of H.P., (1953) SCR 546.
- (iii) State of Bombay v. Apte, AIR 1961 SC 548.
- (iv) Narayan Lal v. Mistry, AIR 1961 SC 29.
- (v) Leo Roy v. Superintendent, District Jail, AIR 1958 SC 118, 121.
- (vi) Assistant Customs Collector v. Melwani, AIR 1970 SC 962.

Testimonial compulsion for the accused

The protection against compulsion 'to be a witness' is confined to persons 'accused of an offence'. There is no constitutional protection for witnesses (i.e. persons other than the accused). However, the Evidence Act, in sections 132 and 148, confers a limited protection against self-incrimination to witness in civil and criminal courts. Important cases on the above limitation of article 20(3) are the following :—

- (i) Narayanlal v. Maneck, AIR 1961 SC 29, 38-39.
- (ii) Charoria v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1988 SC 938, 947.

State for protection

The protection given to the 'accused' commences as soon as a formal accusation is made, whether before or during prosecution. It follows that the lodging of a First Information Report, the filing of a complaint in court or the issue of a show-cause notice under a special criminal statute brings article 20(3) into play. But there must be a proceeding contemplating action against a particular person. Important cases on this point are the following :—

- (i) Dastagir v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 756, 761.
- (ii) State of Bombay v. Kathi Kalu, AIR 1961 SC 1808, 1816.
- (iii) R.K. Dalmia v. Delhi Admin., AIR 1962 SC 1821, 1870.
- (iv) Joseph v. Narayana, AIR 1964 SC 1552, 1556.
- (v) Veera Ibrahim v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1976 SC 1167.
- (vi) Nandini v. Dani, AIR 1978 SC 1025, paragraph 30.
- (vii) Balkishan v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1981 SC 379, paragraph 70.
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFALESb7RseosPHQQ>

Compulsion to be a witness

(a) The immunity under article 20(3) does not extend to compulsory production of material objects or compulsion to give specimen writing, specimen signature, finger impression or compulsory exhibition of the body or giving of blood specimens. Following cases may be seen on this point:—

- (i) Dastagir v. State of Madras, AIR 1960 SC 756.
- (ii) Ram Swarup v. State, AIR 1958 All 119, 126.
- (iii) Palani, In re, AIR 1955 Mad 495.
- (iv) Subbiah v. Ramaswami, AIR 1970 Mad 85.
- (v) Pokhar Singh v. State, AIR 1958 Pun 294.

(b) Compulsion regarding documents is prohibited only if the documents convey the personal knowledge of the accused relating to the charge: State of Bombay v. Kathi Kalu, AIR 1961 SC 1808, 1816.

21. Protection of life and personal liberty.—No person shall be deprived of his life or personal liberty except according to procedure established by law.

Notes on Article 21

Scope

Article 21, if read literally, is a colourless article and would be satisfied, the moment it is established by the State that there is a law which provides a procedure which has been followed by the impugned action. But the expression 'procedure established by law' in article 21 has been judicially construed as meaning a procedure which is reasonable, fair and just. Read with article 39A, it would further imply legal aid being made available to the indigent accused and a prisoner. The concept of 'fairness', so evolved, has been imported into article 22(3) also, so that a prison regulation which arbitrarily deprives a detainee of opportunity to interview his relatives or friends or a lawyer is invalid. See the undermentioned cases as to the scope of article 21 on above points:

- (i) Maneka Gandhi v. Union of India, AIR 1978 SC 597, paragraph 56. (The basic case).
- (ii) Gopalanachari v. State of Kerala, AIR 1981 SC 674, paragraph 6.
- (iii) Francis v. Union Territory of Delhi, (1981) Cr. LJ 306 (SC), paragraphs 6-8.
- (iv) Olga Tellis, AIR 1986 SC 108.

Threat to Life

Where threat to life is immediate court can interfere; (1990) 1 SCC 282.

Illustrative cases to fair procedure

Subsequent to Maneka Gandhi's case, AIR 1978 SC 597, so many aspects of fair procedure or reasonable and just procedure in the context of article 21 have come up before the court. The stream is endless and the case law can be surveyed only in a full fledged commentary. Some important points laid down in the case law are mentioned in the succeeding paragraphs, by ways of illustration. For convenience of reference, the topics to which the cases relate have been arranged alphabetically as far as possible, in the following paragraphs.

Atomic energy

Under articles 21 and 32, the court has directed that the Gamma Chambers housed in Jawaharlal Nehru University, Delhi be sent to Bhabha Atomic Research Centre, Bombay for recharging; M.C. Mehta v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 1986
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Child offenders

Child offenders are entitled to speedy trial; Sheela Barse v. Union of India, AIR 1986 SC 1773, paragraph 12.

See also 'Undertrial prisoners' at page 42.

Cruel punishment

A punishment which is too cruel or torturous is unconstitutional; Inderjeet v. State of U.P., AIR 1979 SC 1867.

Death sentence: Mandatory

Compulsory death sentence for murder committed by a life convict undergoing the sentence of imprisonment for life (section 303, I.P.C.) is unconstitutional; Mithu v. State of Punjab, AIR 1983 SC 473, paragraphs 23-25.

Debtors

A debtor can be put in civil prison for non-payment for decretal debt, only if there is

- (i) wilful default by him, notwithstanding his having sufficient means to pay, or
- (ii) some other element of bad faith, going beyond mere indifference; Jolly Verghese v. Bank of Cochin, AIR 1980 SC 470, paragraph 10.

Delay in bringing to trial

Inordinate delay by the State in bringing an accused to trial or in preferring an appeal against his acquittal, violates article 21, if there is no fault by the accused. See the under-mentioned decisions:

- (i) State of Maharashtra v. Champalal, AIR 1981 SC 1675, paragraph 2.
- (ii) State of Rajasthan v. Sukhpal, AIR 1984 SC 207.
- (iii) Rudul Shah v. State of Bihar, AIR 1983 SC 1096.

See also 'Speedy Trial' at page 42.

Delay in execution

Unjustifiable delay in execution of death sentence violates article 21; Sher Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1983 SC 465, paragraphs 13, 16 and 19.

Drugs

Where a ban imposed on the import and manufacture of certain drugs under sections 10A and 26A of the Drugs and Cosmetics Act, 1940 is not implemented (according to complaint made in public interest litigation), the court may call for explanation from the Government of India; Vincen Parikulam v. Union of India, 1987 Supp ACT 90.

Evaluation

See Mohini v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1992 SC 1858, paragraph 12-14 as explained in Unni Krishnan Case, (1993) 1 SCC 645.

Environment : Hazardous chemicals

Certain directions regarding hazardous chemicals were given by the Supreme Court in M.C. Mehta v. Union of India, (1987) Supp SCC 131: AIR 1987 SC 1086, relying partly on article 21. In the above judgment, there are dicta that life, public health and ecology have priority over unemployment and loss of revenue.

Right to pollution free air falls within article 21; Subhash v. State of Bihar, AIR 1991 SC 420, paragraph 7.

Forests

The Supreme Court in one case decided under article 21, gave directions regarding declaring disputed areas as reserved forests; Banawasi Sewa Ashram v. State of U.P., (1986) 4 SCC 753 and (later) AIR 1987 SC 374: (1987) 3 SCC 304.

Housing

Dicta in Shantistar v. Narayanan, (1990) 2 SCJ 10, paragraphs 8 and 13, speak of right to housing. But later it has been held that shelter is not a fundamental right; Shankar Gauri v. Union of India, JT (1994) 5 SC 634.

Insane person

Imprisonment of a person is unconstitutional after that person is declared insane; Veena v. State of Bihar, AIR 1983 SC 339.

Legal aid

An accused person at least where the charge is of an offence punishable with imprisonment—is entitled to be offered legal aid, if he is too poor to afford counsel. Further, counsel for the accused must be given sufficient time and facility for preparing the defence. Breach of these safeguards of fair trial would invalidate the trial and conviction, even if the accused did not ask for legal aid. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Hussainara v. State of Bihar, AIR 1979 SC 1369, 1377.
- (ii) Khatri v. State of Bihar, AIR 1981 SC 928.
- (iii) Suk Das v. Arunachal Pradesh, AIR 1986 SC 991.
- (iv) Ranchod v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1974 SC 1143.

Minimum punishment

Minimum punishment provided by statute for anti-social offences is not per se unconstitutional; Inderjeet v. State of U.P., AIR 1979 SC 1867. (Food adulteration).

Natural Justice

Natural justice is implicit in article 21. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Maneka Gandhi v. Union of India, AIR 1978 SC 597, paragraph 56.
- (ii) Sunil Batra v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1978 SC 1675.

Livelihood

Right to livelihood is an integral facet of the right to life; Narendra Kumar v. State of Haryana, JT (1994) 2 SC 94.

Passport Act

Preventive detention

A State Government ordered preventive detention immediately after revoking the earlier order on the report of the Advisory Board. It failed to defend its action, in court despite two adjournments. Its action was held to violate articles 21-22 of the Constitution in the circumstances; Mohd. Ibrahim Mohd. Sasin v. State of Maharashtra, (1987) Supp. SCC 32.

Where a person is detained under the Conservation of Foreign Exchange and Prevention of Smuggling Activities Act, 1974 the members of the family of the detenu must be informed about the passing of the order of detention and the place of detention. See the undermentioned cases :

- (ii) Union of India v. Vasantharathi, AIR 1990 SC 1216.

Prisoners : Interview

Public spirited citizens should be allowed to interview prisoners in order to ascertain how far article 21 is being complied with. But the interview has to be subject to reasonable restrictions which themselves are subject to judicial review. Special permission should be obtained for tape recording the interview. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Prabha Dutt v. Union of India, (1982) 1 SCC 1: (1982) Cr LJ 148.
- (ii) Sheela Barse v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 198 SC 378.

- (i) Sheela Barse v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1983 SC 378.
- (ii) Javed v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1985 SC 221.
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Prisoners : Handcuff

Handcuffing is permitted only in extraordinary circumstances; Sunil v. State of M.P., (1990) 2 SC 409.

Prisoners : Torture

An undertrial or convicted prisoner cannot be subjected to a physical or mental restraint

- (a) which is not warranted by the punishment awarded by the court, or
- (b) which is in excess of the requirements of prisoners discipline, or
- (c) which constitutes human degradation.

See the undermentioned cases on the above point :

- (i) Sunil Batra v. Delhi Administration, AIR 1978 SC 1675.
- (ii) Sita Ram v. State of U.P., AIR 1979 SC 745.

- (iv) Javed v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1985 SC 231, paragraph 4.
- (v) Sher Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1983 SC 465.

Punishment: Suicide

Section 309, Indian Penal Code punishment for attempted suicide has been held to be unconstitutional by the Supreme Court on the reasoning that a person cannot be forced to enjoy the right to life to his detriment, disadvantage or dislike; P. Rathinam Naghusan Patahaik v. Union of India, JT (1994) 3 SC 392.

Public hanging

An order passed by the High Court of Rajasthan for public hanging was set aside by the Supreme Court on the ground inter alia, that it was violative of article 21; Attorney General v. Lachma Devi, AIR 1986 SC 467.

Sharma v. Bharat Electronics Ltd.*, (1987) 3 SCC 231: AIR 1987 SC 1792: (1987) Cr LJ 1908.

Roads

Obstruction of movement along highway by the police is constitutional, provided the obstruction is reasonable and in the interest of public order; Rupinder v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 65.

Sentence : Plea of guilty

If a sentence is passed on the accused on his plea of guilty, it cannot be enhanced in appeal or revision without his being given a fresh opportunity of defending himself against the charge; Thippeswamy v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1983 SC 747.

Special courts

- The Special Courts Bill, 1978 (as originally drafted) was held to lack fair procedure because
- the accused was to be tried by a retired High Court Judge, in whose appointment the concurrence of the Chief Justice of India was not required and his service could be terminated at the pleasure of Government.
 - there was no provision for transfer to cases from the Special Court on any ground; Special Courts Bill, 1978, In re, AIR 1979 SC 478, paragraph 94-98, 145, 147, 156, 161 and 167.

Speedy trial

A procedural law is void if it does not provide for speedy trial. See the undermentioned cases :

- Sher Singh v. State of Punjab*, AIR 1983 SC 465. (Delay in execution).
- Hussainara v. Home Secretary, Bihar*, AIR 1979 SC 1360.

Speedy trial is a component of personal liberty; Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, JT (1994) 2 SC 423.

A provision for summary dismissal of criminal appeal is not unfair if certain safeguards against arbitrary dismissal are incorporated; Sita Ram v. State of U.P., AIR 1983 SC 65.

Undertrial prisoners

- An undertrial prisoner kept in jail for a period exceeding the maximum prison term awardable on conviction must be released. See the undermentioned cases :

 - Hussainara v. State of Bihar*, AIR 1979 SC 1369, 1819.
 - Hussainara v. State of Bihar*, AIR 1979 SC 1377.

 - Kamaladevi v. State of Punjab*, AIR 1984 SC 1895.
- Non-production of the accused (an undertrial prisoner) before the Court on dates of trial after obtaining judicial remand is improper. Matter was disposed of, on an assurance given by the State Government. Accused was not entitled to be released on bail merely on above ground but costs were awarded to him; Ramesh Kumar Singh v. State of Bihar, (1987) Supp SCC 335.

122. Protection against arrest and detention in certain cases.—(1) No person who is arrested shall be detained in custody without being informed, as soon as may be, of the grounds for such arrest nor shall he be denied the right to consult, and to be defended by, a legal practitioner of his choice.

(2) Every person who is arrested and detained in custody shall be produced before the nearest magistrate within a period of twenty-four hours of such arrest excluding the time necessary for the journey from the place of arrest to court of the magistrate and no

- (b) to any person who is arrested or detained under any law providing for preventive detention.

(4) No law providing for preventive detention shall authorise the detention of a person for a longer period than three months unless—

- (a) an Advisory Board consisting of persons who are, or have been, or are qualified to be appointed as, Judges of a High Court has reported before the expiration of the said period of three months that there is in its opinion sufficient cause for such detention :

Provided that nothing in this sub-clause shall authorise the detention of any person beyond the maximum period prescribed by any law made by Parliament under sub-clause (b) of clause (7); or

Analysis

Article 22 consists of two parts. Clauses (1) and (2) apply to persons arrested or detained under a law otherwise than a preventive detention law. Clauses (4) to (7) apply to persons arrested or detained under preventive detention law.

Information about grounds of arrest

Information about grounds of arrest is mandatory under clause (1); Gopalan v. State of Madras, (1950) SCR 88; Hansmath v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1981 SC 28.

Right to consult and to be defended by legal practitioner of his choice

This is also mandatory; Gopalan v. State of Madras, (1950) SCR 88; State of M.P. v. Shobharam, AIR 1968 SC 1910, 1917. Besides this, there is a right to legal aid, flowing from article 21, even where sec. 304, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973 does not apply. (See notes on article 21, page 37).

Production before the nearest magistrate

Procedure before the nearest magistrate is mandatory; State of U.P. v. Abdul Samad, AIR 1962 SC 1506. Compare sec. 57, Code of Criminal Procedure 1973.

"Arrest"—Meaning of

At the same time, it should be noted that 'arrest' and 'detention' in articles 22(1) and 22(2) do not cover civil arrest, or deportation of an alien or action by the court itself. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Madhu Limaye, In re, AIR 1969 SC 1014, 1019.
- (ii) Collector of Malabar v. Hajee, (1957) SCR 970.
- (iii) State of U.P. v. Abdul Samad, AIR 1962 SC 1506.
- (iv) State of Punjab v. Ajaib Singh, (1953), SCR 254.

A detention order (for preventive detention) is not void, merely because it does not specify the period, if the parent Act which it is made does not require that the order should specify the period. In such a case, the order is deemed to be for the maximum period for which detention is authorised. The case was under the Tamil Nadu Prevention of Dangerous Activities of Bootleggers, Drug Offenders, Forest Offenders, Immoral Traffic Offenders and Slum Grabbers Act, 1982 (T.N. Act 14 of 1882). Section 3(1) of the Act reads as under :—

"(1) The State Government may, if satisfied with respect to any bootlegger or drug offender (or forest offender) or goonda or immoral traffic offender or slum grabber that with a view to prevent him from acting in any manner prejudicial to the maintenance of public order it is necessary so to do make an order directing that such person be detained"; T. Devaki v. Government of Tamil Nadu, AIR 1990 SC 1086, 1097, paragraphs, 18 and 19.

Where the applicant was already in custody, detention order under the Prevention of Illicit Traffic in Narcotic Drugs and Psychotropic Substances Act, 1988 section 33, cannot be made, except where the grounds of detention show, that (i) the detaining authority was aware of the fact that the detenu was already in detention, and (ii) there were compelling reasons justifying such detention, despite the fact that detenu was already in detention. The expression "compelling reasons" here implies that there must be cogent material on the basis of which the detaining authority is satisfied (i) that the detenu is likely to be released in the near future, and (ii) that, taking into account the nature of the antecedent activities of the detenu, it was likely that, after his release from custody, he would indulge in prejudicial activities, and that (iii) it was necessary to detain him in order to prevent him from engaging in such activities. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Meera Rani v. Govt. of T.N., AIR 1989 SC 2027.
- (ii) Dharmandir Sugandh Chetawal v. Union of India, (1990) 1 JT 184; AIR 1990 SC 1196. (Review cases).
- (iii) Sanjeev Kumar Agarwal v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 204.

A detention order passed under the Conservation of Foreign Exchange and Prevention of Smuggling Activities Act, 1974, section 3 (in the Gurumukhi version), stated that detention was necessary to prevent the detenu from abetting smuggling. But the grounds of detention spoke of "concealing etc." of smuggled goods. The order of detention was held to be void; Vijay Kumar v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1184, reversing (1989) 4 Delhi Lawyers 298. (The reason is, that in such cases, the detenu cannot make an effective representation). In this case, there was also a variance between the English version and the Gurumukhi version of the order of detention.

Extraneous matters mentioned in the documents annexed to the detention order were not referred to, in the grounds of detention. These might have influenced the decision of the detaining authority. Detention was held to be void; Vashishi Narain Karwaria v. State of U.P., AIR 1990 SC 1272, reversing (1990) Cri LJ NOC 36 (All). (This was a case under the National Security Act, 1980).

In the above case, particulars of offences referred to in the enclosed documents were also not supplied and hence the detenu could not make an effective representation; AIR 1989 SC 1803; (1983) 3 SCC 568; (1989) Cri LJ 2111 followed.

On the question of extraneous matter, see the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Ram Krishna Paul v. Government of W.B., AIR 1972 SC 863.
- (ii) Pushpa v. Union of India, AIR 1979 SC 1953.
- (iii) Merugu Satyanarayana v. State of A.P., AIR 1989 SC 1543.
- (iv) Mehboob Khan Nawab Khan v. Commissioner of Police, Ahmedabad, AIR 1989 SC 1803.

There was delay in passing an order on the representation of detenu under the Conservation of Foreign Exchange etc. Act, 1974 section 3. But it did not show negligence, callousness, in action or avoidable red tapism. It was held that the order was not vitiated; Abdul Salam v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1446.

If a foreigner detained under preventive detention law has working knowledge of English then the fact that the order to detention was communicated in English, does not vitiate the detention; Kubie Dariousz v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 605.

Delay

Real test for article 22(4) is whether delay is explained; State v. Sukhpal, AIR 1990 SC 23.

Preventive detention

Safeguards to be observed in preventive detention have become now a highly specialised subject. What has been provided in Clauses (4) to (7) of article 22 should now be read, alongwith numerous judicial decisions on these Clauses and on various preventive detention laws, as also with the case laws on article 21.

Article 22(4)

Time taken in investigating may excuse delay; Farooq v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCJ 225; Shafiq v. D.M., (1989) 8 SCJ 568.

Article 21 and 22

It is now well settled that article 21 may also supplement the various requirements laid down in article 22; Kamla v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1981 SC 814; Sampat v. State of J. & K., AIR 1969 SC 1153.

Article 22(5) : Language

Where the grounds of detention are served in the detenu's language, there is no irregularity even if the order is not in his language; Kubie v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCJ 132, paragraphs 11 and 14.

Documents

Every document casually referred to in the order of detention need not be supplied. Only a document relied on by the detaining authority need be given; Farooq v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCJ 225, paragraph 10.

Detention is vitiated, if the following documents are not supplied :- RseosPhQQ

http://www.upscfreematerials.org/The_Constitution_of_India/

- (a) documents which are considered by the detaining authority, or
- (b) documents which are vital, though not considered by the detaining authority; Abdulla v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 336, paragraph 9 (3 Judge Bench).

Documents which are vital, should be supplied; Ahmed Kutty v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCC 1.

Article 22(5) : Representation

Representation in case of preventive detention is to be made to the competent authority. To ascertain who is the competent authority, the scheme relating to the authority is to be examined; Veeramani v. State of T.N., JT (1994) 1 SC 350.

Consideration of representation

Consideration by the Board is an additional safeguard. It is not a substitute for consideration by the Central Government; Gracy v. State of Kerala, AIR 1991 SC 1090.

If a representation is sent to the Chairman, Advisory Board through the Superintendent of the jail, the Central Government must consider it. Even when the detenu's representation under the COFEPOSA Act is received after the order is confirmed by Government, the Government must consider it; Abdulla v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 574, paragraphs 19-20 (CB).

Government cannot delay consideration of the representation on the ground that it awaits the Board's advice; Issac v. Union of India, (1990) 4 SCC. (Delay of 11 months).

Right against Exploitation

23. Prohibition of traffic in human beings and forced labour.—(1) Traffic in human beings and begar and other similar forms of forced labour are prohibited and any contravention of this provision shall be an offence punishable in accordance with law.

(2) Nothing in this article shall prevent the State from imposing compulsory service for public purposes, and in imposing such service the State shall not make any discrimination on grounds only of religion, race, caste or class or any of them.

Notes on Article 23

Scope

This article prohibits—

- (a) traffic in human being;
- (b) begar; and
- (c) other similar forms of forced labour.

An exception is made for compulsory service for public purposes, under clause (2). Although clause (2) does not say so, obviously the imposition of such service has to be by law, as a mere executive order of the State would not suffice for the purpose. It has been held that even if remuneration is paid for the labour still, if it is 'forced', then it is unconstitutional. Judicial decisions in support of these propositions are:

- (i) People's Union v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 1473.
- (ii) Sanjit v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1983 SC 328.

Legislation relevant to Article 23

Article 23(1) envisages legislation for the enforcement of the constitutional prohibition. Section 374 of the Indian Penal Code is one such enactment, though a pre-Constitution one. Specific legislation also exists regarding immoral traffic in women and girls and regarding bonded labour.

Prostitutes

Directions were issued by the Supreme Court in public interest litigation, as to the children of prostitutes. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Vishal Jeet v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1412; (1990) 3 SCC 318, paragraphs 3, 7 and 18.
- (ii) Gaurav Jain v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 292.

Traffic in human beings includes devadasis; Vishal Jeet v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1412.

24. Prohibition of employment of children in factories, etc.—No child below the age of fourteen years shall be employed to work in any factory or mine or engaged in any other hazardous employment.

Right to Freedom of Religion

25. Freedom of conscience and free profession, practice and propagation of religion.—(1) Subject to public order, morality and health and to the other provisions of this Part, all persons are equally entitled to freedom of conscience and the right freely to profess, practise and propagate religion.

(2) Nothing in this article shall affect the operation of any existing law or prevent the State from making any law—

- (a) regulating or restricting any economic, financial, political or other secular activity which may be associated with religious practice;
- (b) providing for social welfare and reform or the throwing open of Hindu religious institutions of a public character to all classes and sections of Hindus.

Explanation I.—The wearing and carrying of kirpans shall be deemed to be included in the profession of the Sikh religion.

Explanation II.—In sub-clause (b) of clause (2), the reference to Hindus shall be construed as including a reference to persons professing the Sikh, Jaina or Buddhist religion, and the reference to Hindu religious institutions shall be construed accordingly.

Notes on Article 25Scope and object

With article 25 begins a group of provisions which ensure equality of all religions, thereby promoting secularism. The emphasis in this article is on the practice of religious freedom by individuals. The emphasis in article 26 is on the establishment of institutions. But article 25 may be available even where the practice of religion by individuals is through institutions.

The components

The freedom guaranteed by article 25 is to 'profess, practice and propagate' religion. The act of 'practice' is concerned primarily with religious worship, ritual and observations. Propagation is concerned with right to communicate beliefs to another person or to expound the tenets of one's religion, but does not include a right to forcible conversions. State of M.P. v. M.R. 1977 SC 908.

The logic underlying the constitutional guarantee regarding 'practice' of religion is that religious practices are as much a part of religion as religious faith or doctrines; Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowment v. Lakshmindra, (1954) SCR 1005.

Religion

- (a) 'Religion' is a matter of faith but belief in God is not essential to constitute religion.
- (b) Doctrines of each religion constitute its essential part, but the court is competent to examine them.
- (c) 'Philosophy' is different from religion.

Following decisions support the above propositions as to the scope of 'religion' :-

- (i) Commissioner, Hindu Religious Endowment v. Lakshmindra, (1954) SCR 1005.
- (ii) Divyadarsan v. State of A.P., AIR 1970 SC 181, 188.
- (iii) Quareshi v. State of Bihar, (1959) SCR 629.
- (iv) Ramanuja v. State of T.N., AIR 1959 SC 586.
- (v) Sarup v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 860.
- (vi) Moti Das v. Sahi, AIR 1959 SC 942.
- (vii) Mittal v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 1, paragraphs 119, 122 and 123.

Ananda Marg

Ananda Margis have a right to perform "tandava"; Jagadiswarananda v. Police Commissioner, Calcutta, AIR 1990 Cal 336.

Foreigners

An order issued under the Foreigners Act, 1946, imposing a duty on petitioners, cannot be challenged by the petitioners on the ground that they are professing Christianity and the order infringes article 25 of the Constitution; P. Innaiah v. Government of India, AIR 1990 AP 203.

Restrictions

By article 25(1), the Constitution itself makes freedom of religion subject to

- (a) public order.
- (b) morality.
- (c) health.
- (d) 'other provisions of this Part'—which, inter alia, includes clause (b) of article 25(2) itself; Venkataramana v. State of Mysore, AIR 1968 SC 255, 267.

The expression 'public order' occurs elsewhere in the Constitution—e.g. article 19(2)—and should bear the same meaning here also. For the meaning 'public order' under the Constitution, See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Virendra v. State of Punjab, AIR 1957 SC 896.
- (ii) Ramji Lal v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 620. (Discusses article 25 also).
- (iii) State of Rajasthan v. Chawla, (1959) Supp. (1) SCR 904. (Use of loudspeakers).
- (iv) Dalbir v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 1106.
- (v) Madhu Limaye v. State of Punjab, AIR 1962 SC 1106.

Regulation by the State

Article 25, clause 2(a) saves the power of the State to regulate or restrict secular activities associated with religious practice. These restrictions or regulations should be primarily concerned with the secular aspects of religious practice rather than with the essentials of religion as per judicial pronouncement. This view, enunciated for the first time in Ratilal v. State of Bombay, (1954) SCR 1055, has been followed in all later cases though the test is not easy to apply. What is the dividing line between the two is for the court to determine. But, subject to that, the religious denomination is entitled to lay down its rites and ceremonies—an aspect illustrated by Ramanuja v. State of T.N., AIR 1972 SC 1586.

As the various limbs of article 25, particularly article 25(1) and article 25(2)(a) are interconnected, it is advisable to study a number of cases when a concrete question arises. The following list of cases would be helpful :—

1. Ratilal v. State of Bombay, (1954) SCR 1055. (Legislation on public trusts).
2. Ramji Lal v. State of U.P., AIR 1957 SC 620. (Sections 153A, I.P.C.).
3. Saifuddin v. State of Bombay, AIR 1962 SC 853, 863. (Excommunication).
4. Venkataramana v. State of Madras, AIR 1958 SC 255, 267. (Religious practices).
5. Suryapalsingh v. State of U.P., (1952) SCR 1056, 1090.
6. Narendra v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1974 SC 2098, paragraph 25.
7. Commr. H.R.E. v. Lakshmindra, (1954) SCR 1005. (Religious trusts).
8. Digyatdarsan v. State of A.P., AIR 1970 SC 181, 188. (Day to day administration of religious trust).
9. Stainslaus v. State of M.P., AIR 1977 SC 908. (Freedom of conscience).
10. Ramanuja v. State of T.N., AIR 1972 SC 1586. (Scrutiny of essentials of religion).
11. Quareshi v. State of Bihar, (1959) SCR 629. (Ban on cow slaughter).
12. Sarup v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 860, 866. (Committee of administration).
13. Moti Das v. Sahi, AIR 1959 SC 942, 949. (Administration of religious endowment).
14. Mittal v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 1, paragraphs 119, 122 and 123. (Aurobindo University).
15. Saifuddin v. State of Bombay, AIR 1962 SC 853, 864. (Essentials and non-essentials).
16. Durgah Committee v. Hussain, AIR 1961 SC 1402, 1415. (Judicial scrutiny).
17. Yajnapurusdasji v. Muldas, AIR 1966 SC 1119, 1127.

26. Freedom to manage religious affairs.—Subject to public order, morality and health, every religious denomination or any section thereof shall have the right—

- (a) to establish and maintain institutions for religious and charitable purposes;
- (b) to manage its own affairs in matters of religion;
- (c) to own and acquire movable and immovable property; and
- (d) to administer such property in accordance with law.

Notes on Article 26

Scope and object

Article 26 protects—(i) religious denominations, and (ii) sections thereof. The four rights guaranteed by the article are subject to 'public order, morality and health'—as in article 25. But article 26 is not subject to other provisions of Part III—an aspect noticed in Narendra v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1974 SC 2098.

Denomination

In the case of a denomination tenets are important, thus distinguishing it from an individual; <https://tinyurl.com/y4m7qz67> RseosPhQQ

Clause (b) : Affairs of religion

As under article 25, under article 26 also, courts have made a distinction between the essentials of religion and non-essentials. See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Ratilal v. State of Bombay, (1954) SCR 1055.
- (ii) Sarup v. State of Punjab, AIR 1959 SC 850.
- (iii) Ramanuja v. State of T.N. AIR 1961 SC 1402.
- (iv) Jagadishwaranand v. Police Commissioner, AIR 1984 SC 51.

Clause (d) : Administration of property

The broad principle is that a State made law can regulate the administration of property of religious endowment, but the law cannot take away the right of administration altogether. See the undermentioned decisions :

- (i) Ratilal v. State of Bombay, (1954) SCR 1055.
- (ii) Govindlalji v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1963 SC 1638.
- (iii) Saifuddin v. State of Bombay, AIR 1962 SC 853.
- (iv) Ram v. State of Punjab, AIR 1981 SC 1576.
- (v) Narendra v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1974 SC 2092.
- (vi) Azeel v. Union of India, AIR 1968 SC 662.

Common burden

A common burden (e.g. land revenue) imposed on all does not violate article 26(c) and article 26(d); Government of T.N. v. Ahobila, AIR 1987 SC 245.

27. Freedom as to payment of taxes for promotion of any particular religion.— No person shall be compelled to pay any taxes, the proceeds of which are specifically appropriated in payment of expenses for the promotion or maintenance of any particular religion or religious denomination.

Notes on Article 27

Article 27 is one of the essential consequences of secularism. A 'tax' is a compulsory exaction of money for public purpose. If the State exacts money through a tax whose proceed are assigned for the benefit of a particular religion, obviously the State favours, patronises and supports that particular religion. Hence the prohibition against such taxes. The distinction between 'tax' and 'fee' has been adhered to in the context of this article also so that fees for secular regulation can be charged for defraying expenses of administrative regulation. See the cases cited under article 25 supra.

28. Freedom as to attendance at religious instruction or religious worship in certain educational institutions.— (1) No religious instruction shall be provided in any educational institution wholly maintained out of State funds.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall apply to an educational institution which is administered by the State but has been established under any endowment or trust which requires that religious instruction shall be imparted in such institution.

(3) No person attending any educational institution recognised by the State or receiving aid out of State funds shall be required to take part in any religious instruction that may be imparted in such institution or to attend any religious worship that may be conducted in such institution or in any premises attached thereto unless such person or, if such person is a minor, his guardian has given his consent thereto.

Cultural and Educational Rights

29. Protection of interests of minorities.—(1) Any section of the citizens residing in the territory of India or any part thereof having a distinct language, script or culture of its own shall have the right to conserve the same.

(2) No citizen shall be denied admission into any educational institution maintained by the State or receiving aid out of State funds on grounds only of religion, race, caste, language or any of them.

Notes on Article 29

The leading cases on article 29 are:

- (i) Kerala Education Bill In re, AIR 1958 SC 956.
- (ii) Ahmedabad St. Xaviers College Society v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1974 SC 1389.
- (iii) State of Bombay v. Bombay Education Society, (1955) I SCR 568 : AIR 1954 SC 561.
- (iv) Gujarat University v. Shri Krishna, AIR 1963 SC 703.
- (v) D.A.V. College Bhatinda v. State of Punjab, AIR 1971 SC 1731.

Although, commonly article 29(1) is assumed to relate to minorities, its scope is not necessarily so confined, as it is available to "any section of citizens resident in the territory of India". This may well include the majority, as Ray, C.J. pointed out in the Ahmedabad St. Xaviers College Society v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1974 SC 1389.

As regards article 29(2), it should be read subject to article 15(4), (as inserted in 1951), permitting special provision for backward classes, thus overriding the earlier decision in State of Madras v. Champakam Dorairajan, (1951) SCR 525. See B.S.H.K.P. v. Union of India, (1985) 2 SCC 644.

An important consequence of the 'right to conserve' one's script is that citizens have the right to agitate for the protection of their language. 'Political' religion for the conservation of the language of a section of the citizens cannot, therefore, be regarded as a corrupt practice within the meaning of section 123(3) of the Representation of the People Act, 1951. Shah, C.J. in Jagdev Singh Sidhani v. Partap Singh, AIR 1965 SC 183, 188.

Regional language

Not holding an entrance examination (pre-medical test), in any particular language viz. Hindi or any regional language, does not violate article 29(2); Hindi Hirakshak Samiti v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 85, paragraph 6.

Minorities

Although the word 'Minorities' occurs in the marginal note to article 29, it does not occur in the text. The original proposal of the Advisory Committee in the Constituent Assembly recommended the following :

"(1) Minorities in every unit shall be protected in respect of their language, script and culture and no laws or regulations may be enacted that may operate oppressively or prejudicially in this respect." [B. Shiva Rao, "Select Documents" (1957) Vol. 2, page 281.]

But after the clause was considered by the Drafting Committee on 1st November, 1947, it emerged with the substitute of 'section of citizens'. [B. Shiva Rao, Select Documents (1957). Vol. 3 pages, 525-26. Clauses 23, Draft Constitution]. It was explained that the intention had always been to use 'minority' in a wide sense, so as to include (for example) Maharashtrians who settled in Bengal. (7 https://pagejoinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ

30. Right of minorities to establish and administer educational institutions.—(1)
All minorities, whether based on religion or language, shall have the right to establish and administer educational institutions of their choice.

[1(A) In making any law providing for the compulsory acquisition of any property of an educational institution established and administered by a minority, referred to in clause (1), the State shall ensure that the amount fixed by or determined under such law for the acquisition of such property is such as would not restrict or abrogate the right guaranteed under that clause.]

(2) The State shall not, in granting aid to educational institutions, discriminate against any educational institution on the ground that it is under the management of a minority, whether based on religion or language.

Notes on Article 30

Scope

Article 30 is confined to minorities—whether based on religion or language—and unlike article 29(1), it cannot be availed of by any ‘section of citizens’. At the same time, article 30(1) is not confined to the conservation of language, script or culture—unlike article 29(1). It may be, that the right given by article 29(1) is fortified, as regards minorities, by article 30(1). But the two rights are separate; Rev. Father Proost v. State of Bihar, AIR 1969 SC 465. The right to establish etc. an educational institution under article 30 is not confined to the conservation of language, script or culture. This was pointed out by Mathew, J. in Ahmedabad St. Xaviers College Society v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1974 SC 1389.

Article 30 confers two rights :

- (a) right to establish an institution, and
- (b) right to administer it. The former means the right to create the institution, while the latter (right to administer) means that the management of the affairs of the institution must be free of external control, so that the founders or their nominees can would the institution as they thing fit and in accordance with their ideas of how best the interest of the community in general and the institution in particular will be served; Md. Joynal Abulin v. State, AIR 1990 Cal 193, 201, 202, paragraphs 12 and 13.

Autonomy of a minority institution cannot be completely taken away; St. Stephens' College v. University of Delhi, (1992) SCC 558.

Crucial words

In article 30(1), the crucial words are :

- (a) minorities;
- (b) establish and administer;
- (c) educational institutions;
- (d) of their own choice.

The words ‘of their own choice’ are important; Shri Krishna v. Gujarat University, AIR 1962 Guj 86 (FB). The word ‘establish’ has been construed by Wanchoo, C.J. in S. Azeez Basha v. Union of India, AIR 1968 SC 662, 670.

1. <https://mcaconline.gov.in/Ministry/Ministry.aspx?MinistryID=587&SeqNo=1079>.

Minorities

The word 'minority' has not been defined in the Constitution. The Motilal Nehru Report (1928) showed a prominent desire to afford protection to minorities, but did not define the expression. The Sapru Report (1945) also proposed, inter alia, a Minorities Commission but did not define minority. The Year Book on Human Rights (1950), page 490. The U.N. Sub-Commission on Prevention of Discrimination and Protection of Minorities has defined 'minority' (by an inclusive definition), as under :

(i) The term 'minority' includes only those non-document groups in a population which possess and wish to preserve stable ethnic, religious or linguistic traditions or characteristics markedly different from those of the rest of the population; (ii) such minorities should properly include a number of persons sufficient by themselves to preserve such traditions or characteristics; and (iii) such minorities must be loyal to the State of which they are nationals.

Article 27 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights does not define the expression but gives the following right to them:

"In those States in which ethnic, religious or linguistic minorities exist, persons belonging to such minorities shall not be denied the right, in community with the other members of the group, to enjoy their own culture, to profess and practice their own religion or to use their own language."

Minorities based on religion or language

Backward classes are not minorities within article 30. As K.M. Munshi [5 C.A.D. page 227] pointed out, "The Harijans generally known as the Scheduled Castes, are neither a racial minority nor a linguistic minority..... The Harijans are part and parcel of Hindu community." Following judicial decisions are relevant as to the concept of 'minorities' :-

- (i) Kerala Education Bill, In re, AIR 1958 SC 956, 976, 977.
- (ii) Shri Krishna v. Gujarat University, AIR 1962 Guj 88 (Shelat C.J.). (A judgment worth perusal).
- (iii) Aldo Maria Pathroni v. E.C. Keshavan, AIR 1965 Ker 75 (M.S. Menon, C.J.).
- (iv) Sree Jain Svetamber Terapanthi Vidyalaya v. State of W.B., AIR 1982 Cal 101, 111 (B.C. Ray J.).
- (v) D.A.V. College, Jullundur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1971 SC 1737, 1744 (Reddy, J.).
- (vi) Arya Samaj Education Trust v. Director of Education, AIR 1976 Del 207, 218.
- (vii) D.A.V. College, Jullundur v. State of Punjab, AIR 1971 SC 1731.
- (viii) D.A.V. College, Bhatinda v. State of Punjab, AIR 1971 SC 1737, 1742.

Regulatory laws

The right under article 30(1) is subject to the regulatory power of the State. Article 30(1) is not a charter for maladministration. Legislation for social welfare and similar regulatory measure do not constitute an infringement of article 30(1). So long as the minority is not deprived of the actual management of the institution, a law regulating certain matters concerning industrial relation, academic matters and the like does not infringe article 30(1); Virendra Nath v. Delhi, (1990) 2 SCC 307.

The above broad statement of the legal position is illustrated by, and draws support from, the following cases :-

- (i) Kerala Education Bill, In re, AIR 1958 SC 956.
- (ii) State of Kerala v. Very Rev. Mother Provincial, AIR 1970 SC 2079: (1970) 2 SCC 417 : (1971) 1 SCR 734.
- (iii) Ahmedabad St. Xaviers College Society v. State of Gujarat, (1974) 1 SCC 717: AIR 1974 SC 1389.

- (iv) Lily Kurian v. St. Levina, AIR 1979 SC 52; (1979) 2 SCC 124; (1979) 1 SCR 820.
- (v) All Saints High School v. Government of A.P., (1980) 2 SCC 478.

- (vii) Christian Medican College Hospital Employees' Union v. C.M.C. Vellore Association, (1987) 4 SCC 691, 708, 812, 717 (Reversing C.M.C. Vellore Association v. Govt. of India, (1983) 1 Lab LN 373).
- (viii) Y. Theelamma v. Union of India, (1987) 2 SCC 516, 527, 528; AIR 1987 SC 1210; (1987) Lab IC 907.
- (ix) Bihar State Madrasa Board v. Madarsa Hanafra, AIR 1990 SC 995.
- (x) St. Stephens' College v. University of Delhi, (1992) 1 SCC 558.

Educational standards

Right of a minority to administer educational institution has been dealt with by the Madhya Pradesh High Court recently. It has held that the provisions contained in paragraph 17(1) of statute 28, Devi Ahilya University, in regard to the constitution of the Selection Committee in the case of teaching posts [except in so far as they provide in sub-clause (a) that the Kulapati or his nominee shall be Chairman of such Committee] are aimed at ensuring educational standards and maintaining excellence thereof and cannot be said to be in violation of article 30(1) of the Constitution. The same is the position with regard to clause (1) of the said paragraph 17(1), which deals with the constitution of a Selection Committee in the case of Principal. Sub-clause (a), which provides that the Kulapati (or his nominee), shall be the Chairman, is void. But the other sub-clauses do not offend article 30(1) of the Constitution, inasmuch as they have apparently been enacted for ensuring educational standards and maintaining excellence thereof; The Islamia Karimia Society, Indore v. Devi Ahilya Vishwavidyalaya, Indore, AIR 1988 MP 200.

Reasonable regulations can be made to prescribe syllabus; State of T.N. v. Joseph, (1991) 3 SCC 87.

Notes on Article 31ALand reform legislation

(1) Laws providing for acquisition of estates, take over of corporation etc. have been saved by article 31A against challenge on the ground of alleged infringement of article 14 or article 19.

(2) By article 31B, Acts and Regulations specified in the Ninth Schedule have been saved against challenge on the ground of inconsistency with, taking away or abridging any fundamental right. However, after the decision in Keshavananda's case (24 April, 1973), inclusion in the Ninth Schedule of any law is open to challenge on the ground of damage to the basic structure of the Constitution; Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461; Waman Rao v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 271; Srinivasa v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1987 SC 1518, paragraphs 6-7. Article 31C, inserted by the 25th Amendment, 1971, protected laws giving effect to the Directive Principles in article 39(b) and 39(c) from unconstitutionality on the ground of contravention of articles 14, 19 and 31. By the 42nd Amendment, 1976, the protection was extended to legislation for implementation of any directive principle. But the Supreme Court in 1980 (by majority) held this extension of the protection to be unconstitutional on the ground that such an omnibus withdrawal of legislation from judicial review would undermine the basic structure of the Constitution. In 1983, the Supreme Court has declared the relevant observation in its 1980 judgment to be obiter. See the following cases:-

- (i) Minerva Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1986 SC 2030.
- (ii) Minerva Mills v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 1789, paragraphs 30, 64, 70 and 80.
- (iii) Sajeev Coke Manufacturing Co. v. Bharat Coking Coal, AIR 1983 SC 239, paragraphs 13, 14.

Article 31C in its main paragraph, second part (as amended by 25th Amendment Act, 1971) provides as under:

"and no law containing a declaration that it is for giving effect so such policy shall be called in question in any court on the ground that it does not give effect to such policy."

In 1973, the Supreme Court struck down this portion as unconstitutional on the ground that it was beyond the competence of the Constitution (25th Amendment) Act (Which introduced article 31C) to take away the power of judicial review to question whether a particular law which professed to give effect to a Directive Principle was, in reality, a law having that object or whether that was only its colourable purpose; Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, AIR 1973 SC 1461.

It follows that the court can still consider whether a particular law purporting to implement any directive principle can question in constitutionality if it finds that the nexus between that law and the Directive Principle relied on is illusory or colourable or whether it has 'directed and reasonable' nexus with the directive principle in article 39(b) or article 39(c); Bhim Singhji v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 234, paragraph 2; State of Maharashtra v. Basantibai, (1986) 2 SCC 516, paragraph 13.

A law providing for agrarians reform need not provide for land ceilings; Union Territory of Goa, Daman & Diu v. Laxmibai, AIR 1990 SC 1771, paragraph 9.

[31B. Validation of certain Acts and Regulations.]—Without prejudice to the generality of the provisions contained in article 31A, none of the Acts and Regulations specified in the Ninth Schedule nor any of the provisions thereof shall be deemed to be void, or ever to have become void, on the ground that such Act, Regulation or provision is inconsistent with, or takes away or abridges any of the rights conferred by, any provisions of this Part, and notwithstanding any judgment, decree or order of any court or tribunal to the contrary, each of the said Acts and Regulations shall, subject to the power of any competent Legislature to repeal or amend it, continue in force.]

1. Ins. by the Constitution (First Amendment) Act, 1951, sec.5.

Notes on Article 31-B

Article 31B saves conflict with any fundamental right including article 19(1) (g); Niyami v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 2128.

¹[31C. Saving of laws giving effect to certain directive principles.—Notwithstanding anything contained in article 13, no law giving effect of the policy of the State towards securing ²[all or any of the principles laid down in Part IV] shall be deemed to be void on the ground that it is in consistent with, or takes away or abridges any of the rights conferred by ³[article 14 or article 19]; ⁴[and no law containing a declaration that it is for giving effect to such policy shall be called in question in any court on the ground that it does not give effect to such policy]:

Provided that where such law is made by the Legislature of a State, the provisions of this article shall not apply thereto unless such law, having been reserved for the consideration of the President, has received his assent.]

Notes on Article 31C

As to effect of article 31C on article 19: See Elizabeth v. State of Kerala, AIR 1991 Ker 161 (FB).

Article 31C does not bar judicial review to examine the nexus between impugned law and article 39; Assam Sillimanite v. Union of India, (1992) Supp (1) SCC 692.

Right to Constitutional Remedies

32. Remedies for enforcement of rights conferred by this Part.—(1) The right to move the Supreme Court by appropriate proceedings for the enforcement of the rights conferred by this Part is guaranteed.

(2) The Supreme Court shall have power to issue directions or orders or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari, whichever may be appropriate, for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by this Part.

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Twenty-fifth Amendment) Act, 1971, sec.3 (w.e.f. 20-4-1972).
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec.4, for "the principles specified in clause (b) or clause (c) or article 39" (w.e.f. 3-1-1977); See Minerva Mills Ltd. v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 1787; (1981) Uchatum Nyayalaya Nirnaya Patrika 146; and Sunjeet Coke Manufacturing Co. v. Bharat Coking Coal Ltd., AIR 1983 SC 239.
3. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec.8, for "article 14, article 19 or article 31" (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).
4. In Keshavananda Bharati v. The State of Kerala, (1973) Supp SCR 1, Supreme Court held the provision in italics to be invalid.
5. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec.54 (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

(3) Without prejudice to the powers conferred on the Supreme Court by clauses (1) and (2), Parliament may by law empower any other court to exercise within the local limits of its jurisdiction all or any of the powers exercisable by the Supreme Court under clause (2).

(4) The right guaranteed by this article shall not be suspended except as otherwise provided for by this Constitution.

Notes on Article 32

Variety of rights coming up for enforcement

Right given by law or recognised by law can be analysed into the following categories:—

- (a) fundamental rights given by the Constitution;
- (b) constitutional rights not having the status of fundamental rights;
- (c) statutory rights;
- (d) rights flowing from subordinate legislation;
- (e) rights based on case law;
- (f) customary rights;
- (g) contractual rights.

Scope of Article 32

Only fundamental rights falling within category (a) above can be enforced under article 32. Cases illustrating this proposition about the scope of article 32 are the following:—

- (i) Haji Esmail v. Competent Officer, AIR 1967 SC 1244.
- (ii) Kuriakose v. State of Kerala, AIR 1977 SC 1509.

Court cannot determine an issue not involving fundamental right; Indian Express Newspapers v. Union of India, (1986) 1 SCC 633, paragraphs 200 and 207.

Supreme Court and High Court: Concurrent jurisdiction

(a) On the text of article 32 and 266, where a fundamental right is involved, a party should be free to approach either of the two courts. And this, in fact, has been the earlier judicial approach; M.K. Gopalan v. State of M.P., (1955) 1 SCR 168, 174. In fact, some decisions have pointed out that since the remedy under article 32(1) is itself a fundamental right, the Supreme Court is under duty to grant relief for violation of a substantive fundamental right.

- (i) Kochunni v. State of Madras, AIR 1959 SC 725, 729.
- (ii) Tata Iron & Steel Co. v. Sarkar, AIR 1961 SC 65.
- (iii) Bishan Das v. State of Punjab, AIR 1961 SC 1570.
- (iv) Kharak Singh v. State of M.P., AIR 1963 SC 1295.

Even still stronger are decisions holding article 32 to be a basic feature of the Constitution which cannot be taken away by even amending the Constitution; Fertiliser Corporation of India v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 344, paragraph 11.

(b) Notwithstanding the above position, the Supreme Court has, in certain decisions pronounced in 1987, stated that where relief through High Court is available under article 226, the party should first approach the High Court.

- (i) P.N. Kumar v. Municipal Corporation of Delhi, (1987) 4 SCC 609, 610, 611.
- (ii) Kanubhai Brahmbhatt v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1987 SC 1159.

It is submitted with great respect that this view goes against the intentment of the Constitution and is contrary to earlier case law.

Economic policy

Judicial review is not concerned with economic policy. The court does not substitute its judgment for that of the legislature or its agents, as to matters within the province of either. The court does not supplement the "feel of the expert" by its own views. When the legislature acts within the sphere of its authority and delegates power to an agent, it may empower the agent to make findings of fact which are conclusive, provided such findings satisfy the test of reasonableness. In all such cases, judicial inquiry is confined to the question whether the findings of fact are reasonably based on evidence, and whether such findings are consistent with the laws of the land; Sitaram Sugar Co. Ltd v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1277, 1299, paragraph 86 (Judgment of Dr. Justice Thommen at page 1297, paragraph 52 and footnote 8, contains an exhaustive survey of case law as to arbitrary action. It covers several English, American and Commonwealth cases).

Price fixation

Price fixation is not within the province of the court. Judicial review is exhausted when there is found to be a rational basis for the conclusions reached by the concerned authority. See the undermentioned decisions:

- (i) Union of India v. Cynamide Ltd., AIR 1987 SC 1802, 1807: (1987) 2 SCC 720, 736.
- (ii) Gupta Sugar Works v. State of U.P., AIR 1987 SC 2353: (1987) Supp SCC 476, 481.
- (iii) Sitaram Sugar Co. Ltd. v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1299, paragraphs 8 and 58.

Administrative Tribunal

Section 28 of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 has left untouched the writ jurisdiction of the Supreme Court; Chopra v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 35.

Thus wide power under article 323 A (2)(d) of the Constitution has not been exercised.

Administrative Tribunals themselves have writ procedure under section 14(1) of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985.

Bail

If, after rejection of bail by the Magistrate, High Court grants bail, Supreme Court may interfere; Bimla v. State of Bihar, 1994 I UJ SC 326, paragraph 2.

Basic feature

Judicial review under articles 32 and 226 is a basic feature of the Constitution beyond the pale of amendability; Kihota v. Zachilhu. AIR 1993 SC 412, paragraphs 26, 85 and 107.

Certiorari

- (a) Certiorari may be issued where the law, under which the decision was given is void; Himmat Lal v. State of M.P., AIR 1954 SC 403.
- (b) the decision itself violates a fundamental right (see below); or
- (c) the decision violates the law or is without jurisdiction; Ranjit Singh v. Union Territory of Chandigarh, AIR 1991 SC 2296.
- (d) the decision is against natural justice, mala fide, perverse or based on non-applicable of avenue.

Decisions violating fundamental rights—category (b) above, are illustrated situations where fundamental rights violated are those created under: (i) article 14—DTA v. Mazdoor Congress, AIR 1991 SC 101; (ii) article 19 (1) (g)—Express Newspapers v. Union of India, AIR 1958 SC 578, paragraphs 226; (iii) article 16—Indra v. Union of India, (1991) Supp (3) SCC 557, 559; (iv) article 21—<https://mcaonlineharayana.nic.in/ESB/REGISTRATION>; Sangita v. State of U.P., (1992) Supp I SC 715; State of Bihar v. Sharma, AIR 1991 SC 1260; (v) article 22—Bapna v. Union of India, (1992) 3 SCC 512; Advisory Board v. State of Kerala, (1991) 2 SCC 1. Mere misapplication of law is not a ground for certiorari; Union of India v. Deep, (1992) 4 SCC 432.

Contempt

Wilful non-compliance with court order under article 32 is contempt of court; Sachdev v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 605, paragraphs 6-8 and 11.

Instead of proceeding in contempt court may award exemplary costs; Ajay v. State of U.P., AIR 1991 SC 498, paragraph 4.

Death in custody

Compensation may be awarded for death in police custody; Nilabale v. State of Orissa, (1992) 2 SCC 746 (3 Judges).

Detention

In case of preventive detention, main ground of interference is breach of article 22 (5); Gracy v. State of Kerala, AIR 1991 SC 1090, paragraphs 9-10.

Court may order release of a detenu if he is not given opportunity to appear before the Board within the statutory period; State of Punjab v. Sukhpal Singh, AIR 1990 SC 231.

Court may order the release of a detenu if there is failure to obtain Government approval within statutory period; Kiran Dasha v. Govt. of A.P., (1990) 1 SCC 328.

Inordinate delay in passing detention order may entail release of the detenu; Anand Prakash v. State of U.P., AIR 1990 SC 516.

Court cannot reduce the period of detention; Poonam v. Wadhwan, AIR 1987 SC 1303, paragraph 12.

Enforcement of Act

Court will not compel government to enforce constitution Amendment; A.K. Roy v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 710, paragraphs 52-53.

Child prostitution

Supreme Court has issued directions to check the evil of child prostitution; Vishal v. Union of India, (1990) 3 SCC 318, paragraph 16.

Pollution

Directions can be issued to control pollution; Subhash v. State of Bihar, AIR 1991 SC 420, paragraph 7.

Closure of Industry

Supreme Court issued directions for revival of a company (viable units) having regard to the fact that living had been denied to 10,000 workers for five years; Workers of Rohtas Industries Ltd. v. Rohtas Industries Ltd., AIR 1990 SC 491.

Irrigation

Where a dam under construction is apprehended to endanger safety, court can look into the matter; Tehri Baandi v. State of U.P., (1991) 1 UJSC 121 paragraph 13.

Law making

Court can not issue direction for making of law or subordinate legislation; S.C. Employees Association v. Union of India, (1989) 4 SCC 1967.

Liability

Court has evolved new basis of liability in public law (as distinguished from private law) where breach of fundamental right is involved; Nilabati Behru v. State of Orissa, (1993) 2 SCC 746, paragraphs 10, 11, 19 and 26 (3 judges).

In the above case Supreme Court relied inter alia on (a) its duty to enforce fundamental right under (articles 14, 21, 32) (b) need to make the guaranteed remedies effective (c) to do complete justice; Union Carbide v. Union of India, (1991) 4 SCC 584.

Mandamus

(a) Mandamus should be issued under article 32 where a fundamental right infringed by a statute.
 (b) statutory order.

(c) executive order (non-statutory); Prabodh v. State of U.P., AIR 1985 SC 167, paragraphs 38 and 50; Abdul Hakim v. State of Bihar, (1961) SCR 610. However according to some decisions it is discretionary; Pramod v. Medical Council, (1991) UJSC 401.

Policy

Court cannot—

(a) enforce implementation of a Government policy (unless fundamental right is involved); Hindi Hitrakshak Samiti v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 851.

(b) interfere in the implementation of Government policy; English M.S. I.A v. State of Karnataka, (1994) UJSC 291, paragraph 23.

Art. 32. Political question

Where a fundamental right is involved the doctrine of non-justicability of political question has no application; Indra v. Union of India, (1992) Supp (3) SCC 217, paragraphs 557-559 (9 Judges); S.C. Advocates Association v. Union of India, (1993) 4 SCC 411, paragraphs 273 and 328 (9 Judges).

Prostitutes

Segregating prostitutes' children by locating separate schools and providing separate hostels, would not be in the interest of such children. Once children are born to prostitutes, it is in the interest of such children and of society at large, that the children of prostitutes should be segregated from their mother and be allowed to mingle with others and become part of the society; Gaurav Jain v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 292 (Ranganath Misra, M.N. Venkatachaliah and P.B. Sawant, JJ).

Public interest litigation

The development of public interest litigation during the last decade has largely modified the traditional rule as to standing to litigate in constitutional matters. The following decisions may be particularly seen in this context:

- (i) Ratlam Municipality v. Virdi Chand, AIR 1980 SC 1622.
- (ii) Fertiliser Corporation of India v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 344, paragraphs 43, 44 and 48.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

- (iii) Sheela Barse v. Union of India, AIR 1986 SC 1773, paragraphs 8 and 9.
- (iv) Nakara v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 130, paragraph 64.
- (v) D.C. Wadhwa v. State of Bihar, AIR 1987 SC 579, paragraph 3.
- (vi) Sachidanand v. State of West Bengal, AIR 1987 SC 1109, paragraph 60.
- (vii) Mehta v. Union of India, (1987) 1 SCC 395.

The Supreme Court in Charan Lal Sahu v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1480, has upheld the validity of the Bhopal Gas Disaster (Processing of Claims) Act, 1985. The judgment discusses the doctrine of parens patria. It also takes note of the fact that the legislation in question related to "actionable wrong" under the 7th Schedule, Concurrent list, entry 8. It also contains a suggestion (in para 129) to lay down certain norms and standards in regard to the industries dealing with materials which are of dangerous potentialities. In the judgment of Mr. Justice Ranganathan, there is a suggestion that either the Fatal Accidents Act should be amended or fresh legislation enacted to deal with victims of mass disaster; Inter alia, the suggested legislation should deal with the following matters:—

- (i) Fixed minimum compensation on no fault basis, pending filing adjudication of the case.
- (ii) Creation of a special forum with specific power to grant interim relief in appropriate cases.
- (iii) Evaluation of a procedure to be followed by such (special) forum, which will be conducive to the determination of the claims and avoid high degree of formalism in proceedings.
- (iv) A provision requiring industries and concerns engaged in hazardous activities to take out compulsory insurance against third party risk.

The court did not uphold the argument that the Act was against article 14 of the Constitution.

A public interest litigation may be transferred to the appropriate High Court; Kasturilal v. State of U.P., (1990) Supp SCC 784.

A petition in public interest litigation filed before the Supreme Court may be transferred to the appropriate High Court; Subramiam v. Union of India, (1990) Supp SCC 775.

A letter in public interest litigation should be addressed to the court and not to an individual judge; Sachdev v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 605, paragraph 1.

Stock Exchange

Increase in the number of members of the Delhi Stock Exchange is a matter of policy. Court would not issue a mandate in such matters; Om Prakash Poplai v. Delhi Stock Exchange Association, JT (1994) 1 SC 114.

Threatened

Threat of infringement of fundamental right is enough to justify issue of writ; Simranjit v. Union of India, (1993) 1 UJSC 32, paragraph 7.

Limits of Writ Jurisdiction

There must be a clear breach of fundamental right not involving disputed questions of fact; Northern Corporation v. Union of India, (1990) 4 SCC 239.

Non-justiciable and political matters cannot be dealt with under the guise of public interest litigation; Maharshi v. State, AIR 1990 All 52, paragraph 18.

Policy preferences not involving fundamental rights cannot be agitated under article 32 "Articles of the Constitution cannot be a means to indicate policy preference"; Hindi Samiti v. Union of India, (1990) 1 SCJ 617, paragraphs 6-7; AIR 1990 SC 851, 853, 856, paragraph 67.

Government policy cannot be enforced by writ under article 32; Hindi Hitarkash v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 851.

A Directive principle cannot be enforced by writ under article 32; B. Krishna Bhat v. Union of India, (1990) 3 SCC 65.

A question that can be agitated under the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 will not be normally allowed to be agitated under article 32; F.C.I. Workers Union v. F.C.I., (1990) Supp. SCC 296, paragraph 11.

Selection Committee

It is not the function of the court to hear appeals over the decisions of the selection committees in Universities and to scrutinize the relative merits of the candidates. The decision of the Selection Committee can be interfered with, only on limited grounds, such as, illegality or patent material irregularity in the constitution of the committee or its procedure vitiating the selection or proved mala fides, affecting the selection etc. Setting aside the selection on the ground of the so called comparative merits of the candidates, as assessed by the court while sitting in appeal over the selection so made, would not be permissible; Dalpat Abasaheb Solunke v. Dr. B.S. Mahajan, AIR 1990 SC 434 (Kuldip Singh, P.B. Sawant and K.Ramaswamy, JJ).

Service matters

Where the petitioner's fundamental rights are impaired by legislation or rules, or Government orders, the court can interfere even if it is a matter concerning service; F.C.I. Workers v. F.C.I., AIR 1990 SC 2178.

Similarly, the court may interfere where the fundamental rights of a public sector employee are infringed; Bhagwati v. S.M.D.C., (1990) 1 SCJ 433, paragraph 6.

Denial of equal pay for equal work becomes irrational classification for the purposes of article 14; Grih Kalyan v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 619, paragraph 6.

If the fundamental rights of a member of the Armed Forces are violated or if there is a jurisdictional error, judicial review is available; S.M. Mukherjee v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1984.

However, if mala fides are alleged, there must be proper pleading; Suresh v. Defence Secretary, AIR 1991 SC 483.

Services

Direction under article 32 would not be issued to the opposite party to regulate the services of the petitioner in the post of helper where petitioner does not approve the Commissioner set up for the purpose; A. Hansavani v. State of T.N., JT (1994) 4 SC 651.

For violation of fundamental right (this includes observance of natural justice) in service matters writ is available under article 32. This is illustrated by a violation article from—

(a) unconstitutional statute—Niliananda v. State of Orissa, AIR 1991 SC 1133, paragraph 13.

(b) Rule or order—FCI Workers Union v. FCI, AIR 1990 SC 2178, paragraph 18-20.

(c) arbitrary, perverse or malafide decision; Duvala V. Chief Secretary, AIR 1984 SC 1527; Khanzode v. RBI, AIR 1982 SC 917. (Public Sector Corporation).

A candidate who has been illegally denied selection can approach the court for quashing the selection and issuing directions for selection, but court cannot evaluate the fitness; IAC v. Shukla (1993) 23 ATC 407 (SC), paragraph 9.

Counter affidavits (detention)

Counter affidavits filed as in reply to allegations of—

- (i) mala fide,
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

(ii) abuse of power, or

(iii) bias,

should be filed by the detaining authority himself; Gazi Khan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1990 SC 1364, 1367, paragraphs 9-14.

Commissioner

Court may appoint a person to act as Commissioner to inquire into allegations made against Government officers for breach of fundamental right. A refects made after an objective inquiry would not be rejected unless good reasons are shown to exist for rejection; Delhi Judicial Service Association v. State of Gujarat, (1991) 4 SCC 406.

Compensation

For deprivation of right to life and personal liberty, compensation may be awarded; Saheli v. C.P., (1990) 1 SCJ 300, paragraphs 11-14.

Damages

For breach of public law duty the court may award against the wrong doer exemplary damages; Nilabah v. State of Orissa, (1993) 2 SCC 746, paragraphs 11, 20, 32, 34, 35 and 36.

Estoppel against petitioner

Petitioner who has voluntarily accepted benefit under a statute cannot object to its Validity; Pramod v. Medical Council, AIR (1991) 1 UJSC 400.

Estoppel against State

Where a state party supports a petition on the merits, it cannot be allowed to raise a technical plea after a long lapse of time; T.N. Sangam v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1317, paragraph 6.

False plea

A petition may be dismissed at any stage (even after rule nisi is issued) if petitioner has made false plea; A.I.S.B.O.F. v. Union of India, (1990) Supp. SCC 336, paragraphs 12-13.

Laches

Laches or unreasonable delay in instituting writ petition may bar the remedy; Tilok Chand v. Munshi, AIR 1970 SC 898; Ramchandra v. State, AIR 1974 SC 259, 265.

Unexplained delay may entail refusal to issue a writ; Bhaskar v. State of A.P., (1993) 24 ATC 842.

But delay is no bar to Quo Warranto; Kashinath v. Speaker, (1993) 2 SCC 703, paragraphs 34-36.

Recently refusal for delay has been described as a rule of practice; DRLRC v. Dt. Board, (1992) 2 SCC 598.

Locus standi

Locus standi to file a particular petition under article 32 depends on the facts as they existed at the time when the petition was filed; Rugmani v. Achutha, AIR 1991 SC 983.

A journalist may move a writ petition, if the case falls within the recognised category of cases for public interest litigation; Bhola Nath v. State of U.P., (1990) Supp. SCC 151, paragraph 1.

If personal litigation is wrongly fought, in the shape of public interest litigation, cost may be imposed on the person instituting such litigation; Chhetriya Pradushan v. State of U.P., AIR 1990 SC 2060.

The classes of persons for whom public interest litigation may be fought, are dealt with in a judgment of the Supreme Court; Subhash v. State of Bihar, AIR 1991 SC 420, paragraphs 7 and 8.

Pleading

Court will not give relief if the pleading are not specific; Arti v. State of J.&K., AIR 1981 SC 1009; Sharma v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 588.

Relief

There is no theoretical limit to the relief to be granted. Court gave direction for insurance of workers in match factories; Mehta v. State of T.N., AIR 1991 SC 417.

Where two persons were detained by the Punjab police and political rivalry was alleged the Supreme Court directed the District Judge, Ludhiana to conclude an inquiry; Tirath Ram Laini v. State of Punjab, JT (1994) 1 SC 420.

Relief given up in the High Court may be disallowed under article 32; Bhattacharya v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 468, paragraph 6.

Court may refuse relief to a person who has voluntarily accepted benefit under a challenged statute and files the challenge after considerable lapse of time; Pramod v. Medical Council, (1991) 1 UJSC 400.

Even where the Court does not grant relief as prayed for on the merits, it may give orders to do justice to petitioner who might otherwise suffer by reason of delay in granting interim relief; Prem v. Union of India, (1991) 1 UJSC 690 paragraph 19.

Res Judicata

Res Judicata applies in writ petitions generally (through not in public interest litigation); Grih Kalyan Union v. Union of India, (1991) SCC 619, paragraph 11; Rural Litigation v. State of U.P., AIR 1989 SC 594.

Writ petition (otherwise than through review) cannot be filed to seek setting aside earlier findings of facts; Grihkalyan Union v. Union of India, (1991) 1 UJSC 468, paragraph 10.

Judgment under article 136 bars petition under article 32; Bhaskar v. State of A.P., (1993) 3 SCC 307.

An ex parte judgment writ petition would be res judicata if dismissal is on merits by a speaking order; Direct Recruit Class-II Engineering Officers' Association v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1990 SC 1607. Decisions are not uniform as to whether constructive res judicata applies in writs. As per the decision in K.N. Oil Industries v. State of M.P., AIR 1986 SC 1929, Constructive res judicata applies. After the decision in Federation of Directly Appointed Officers of Indian Railways v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 2422; (1993) 3 SCC 346, it does not apply.

There is no res judicata under article 32 if earlier petition under 226 is withdrawn; Direct Recruit Class-II Engineering Officers' Association v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1990 SC 1607.

¹ 32A. Constitutional validity of State laws not to be considered in proceedings under article 32.—{Rep. by the Constitutional (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec. 3 (w.e.f. 13-4-1978)}.

²[33. Power of Parliament to modify the rights conferred by this Part in their application to forces, etc.—Parliament may, by law, determine to what extent any of the rights conferred by this Part shall, in their application to,—

- (a) the members of the Armed Forces; or
- (b) the members of the Forces charged with the maintenance of public order; or
- (c) persons employed in any bureau or other organisation established by the State for purposes of intelligence or counter intelligence; or
- (d) persons employed in, or in connection with the telecommunication systems set up for the purposes of any force, bureau or organisation referred to in clauses (a) to (c), be restricted or abrogated so as to ensure the proper discharge of their duties and the maintenance of discipline among them.]

Notes on Article 33

Article 33 (which was extensively amended in 1984) enables Parliament to modify fundamental rights in relation to military and para-military forces, police forces and analogous forces. The reaction can be only by law. The undermentioned decisions illustrate the wide scope of this article:

- (i) Achudan v. Union of India, (1976) 1 SCWR 80. (Right of association).
- (ii) Ram Sarup v. Union of India, AIR 1965 SC 247. (General scope).
- (iii) Delhi Police Sangh v. Union of India, (1987) 2 ATC 194: 1987 SC 379: (1987) 1 SC 115, 122, 124. (De-recognition of Employees Union).
- (iv) Gopal v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 413.

The decision in Delhi Police Sangh v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 379, is concerned with the Police Forces (Restriction of Rights) Act, 1966 and rules framed thereunder. The rules cannot be challenged on the ground of violation of article 19(1)(c), because of article 33.

Notes on Article 33

Scope

The article empowers Parliament to restrict or abrogate the application of fundamental rights in relation to armed forces, para military forces, the police etc.; Achudan v. Union of India, (1976) 1 SCWR 80; Gopal v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 413.

The article does not, itself, abrogate any right; Chatterji v. Sub Area Commandant, AIR 1951 Mad 77. Its operation is dependent on Parliamentary legislation. Of course, such legislation need not refer to article 33 in so many words; Ram Sarup v. Union of India, AIR 1965 SC 247, 251. A law passed by virtue of article 33 can override articles 21 and 22; Prithi v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 1413, paragraphs 13-18. Parliament may empower Government to impose restrictions; Viswan v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 658, paragraphs 7, 9 and 10).

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 6 (w.e.f. 1-2-1977).

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Fiftieth Amendment) Act, 1984, sec. 2 (w.e.f. 11-9-1984).

Parliamentary legislation and fundamental rights.

Such legislation may restrict the operation of any fundamental right, such as,—

- (a) equality; Jesuratnam v. Chief of Air Staff, (1976) Cr LJ 65;
- (b) freedom of expression; Lt. Col. Prithi Pal Singh Bedi v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 1413;
- (c) freedom of association; Achudan v. Union of India, (1976) 1 SCWR 80;
- (d) personal liberty; Lt. Col. Prithi Pal Singh Bedi v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 1413.

Writs against courts martial

Articles 136(2) and 227(4) exclude the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court and the supervisory jurisdiction of the High Court in relation to court martial. But they do not exclude the operation of articles 32 and 226. Hence, unless the substantive fundamental right itself has been excluded by a law made under article 33, the right survives and consequentially the remedy of writ also survives. Hence the general principles for grant of relief in writ and grounds for interference, as generally applicable to quasi-judicial proceedings, apply in relation to courts martial also. Accordingly, case law furnishes illustrations of judicial review of proceedings of courts martial on the basis of—

- (i) bias; Ranjit v. Union of India, AIR 1988 SC 2386;
- (ii) other breaches of natural justice; Laxmi v. Union of India, (1991) 2 SCJ 86;
- (iii) error of jurisdiction or error of law apparent on the face of the record; Mukherjee v. Union of India, (1990) 3 SCJ 93; Ranvir, v. Union of India, (1991) Cr LJ 1791 (Bom).

The Supreme Court may interfere if the sentence imposed by the courts martial is disproportionate to the crime; Ranjit v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 2386. Supreme Court will not enter into—

- (a) questions of fact which are disputed; Sodhi v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1617;
- (b) irregularities not causing injustice; Bhagat v. State of H.P., AIR 1983 SC 454, 460.

Police forces

Validity of the Police Forces (Restriction of Rights) Act, 1966 has been upheld, as a valid exercise of Parliament's power under that part of article 33 which applies to armed forces; Delhi Police Sangh v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 379.

34. Restriction on rights conferred by this Part while martial law is in force in any area.—Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Part, Parliament may by law indemnify any person in the service of the Union or of a State or any other person in respect of any act done by him in connection with the maintenance or restoration of order in any area within the territory of India where martial law was in force or validate any sentence passed, punishment inflicted, forfeiture ordered or other act done under martial law in such area.

Notes on Article 34

Article 34 is primarily concerned with granting indemnity by law in respect of acts done during operation of martial law. The Constitution does not have a provision authorising proclamation of martial law. Declaration of martial law does not ipso facto result in suspension of the writ of habeas corpus; A.D.M. Jabalpur v. Shukla, AIR 1976 SC 1207, paragraph 535.

35. Legislation to give effect to the provisions of this Part.—Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

(a) Parliament shall have, and the Legislature of a State shall not have, power to make laws—

(i) with respect to any of the matters which under clause (3) of article 16, clause (3) of article 32, article 33 and article 34 may be provided for by law made by Parliament; and

(ii) for prescribing punishment for those acts which are declared to be offences under this Part.;

and Parliament shall, as soon as may be after the commencement of this Constitution, make laws for prescribing punishment for the acts referred to in sub-clause (ii);

(b) any law in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution in the territory of India with respect to any of the matters referred to in sub-clause

(i) of clause (a) or providing for punishment for any act referred to in sub-clause

(ii) of that clause shall, subject to the terms thereof and to any adaptations and modifications that may be made therein under article 372, continue in force until altered or repealed or amended by Parliament.

*Explanation.—*In this article, the expression 'law in force' has the same meaning as in article 372.

Notes on Article 35

The significance of article 35 is positive as well as negative. From the positive aspect, it gives power to Parliament to legislate for the enumerated matters—which legislation can contain penal provisions. Negatively, it extends the competence of State legislatures to make a law on the enumerated matters, even though some of those matters may fall within the State List.

PART IV

DIRECTIVE PRINCIPLES OF STATE POLICY

36. Definition.—In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, 'the State' has the same meaning as in Part III.

37. Application of the principles contained in this Part.—The provisions contained in this Part shall not be enforceable by any court, but the principles therein laid down are nevertheless fundamental in the governance of the country and it shall be the duty of the State to apply these principles in making laws.

Notes on Article 37

Scope and object: The negative aspect

The object of Directive principles is to embody the concept of a welfare State; Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, (1973) 4 SCC 225, paragraphs 134, 139, 174. However, the Directive do not confer any enforceable rights and their alleged breach does not invalidate a law, nor does it entitle a citizen to complain of its violation by the state so as to seek mandatory relief against the State. Similarly, if a legislative power does not exist in a particular legislature, then the legislature cannot seek to rely on a Directive principle for claiming that power. Undermentioned decisions support the above propositions:

- (i) Kerala Education Bill, In re, AIR 1958 SC 956.
- (ii) Deep Chand v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 648.
- (iii) State of Madras v. Champakam Dorairajan, (1951) SC 525.
- (iv) Fram Naserwanji v. State of Bombay, AIR 1951 Bom 216.
- (v) UPSE Board v. Hari, AIR 1979 SC 65, paragraph 4A.

Scope and effect: The positive aspect

At the same time, the Directive principles have, according to later decisions of the Supreme Court, a positive aspect. Thus, the Directives have been held to supplement fundamental rights in achieving a Welfare State. Parliament can amend fundamental rights for implementing the Directives, so long as the amendment does not touch the basic features. Legislation enacted to implement the Directive principles should be upheld, as far as possible. In fact, when necessary, even constitutional provisions as to fundamental rights should be adjusted in their ambit so as to give effect to the Directive principles. Even legislative entries may (within the limits of the total federal scheme) be given a wide interpretation for effecting Directive principles. Constitutional provisions (apart from fundamental rights) may be construed in the light of Directive principles. Undermentioned decisions illustrate the above propositions:

- (i) Chandra Bhawan v. State of Mysore, AIR 1970 SC 2042, paragraph 13.
- (ii) State of Kerala v. Thomas, AIR 1976 SC 496.
- (iii) Lingappa v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1985 SC 389.
- (iv) Manchegowda v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1984 SC 1151.
- (v) Chief Justice v. Dikshitulu, (1979) 2 SCC 34.
- (vi) Jalan Trading Co. v. Aney, AIR 1985 SC 233.
- (vii) Mukesh v. State of M.P., AIR 1985 SC 537.
- (viii) Laxmi Kant v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 232.
- (ix) A.B.K. Singh v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 298, 335.

Harmony

Directive principles and fundamental rights are to be harmoniously construed; Grihakalyan v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 611, paragraph 6; Literate Association v. State of Karanataka, (1990) 2 SCC 396.

38. State to secure a social order for the promotion of welfare of the people.—
1[(1)] The State shall strive to promote the welfare of the people by securing and protecting as effectively as it may a social order in which justice, social, economic and political, shall inform all the institutions of the national life.

2[(2)] The State shall, in particular, strive to minimise the inequalities in income, and endeavour to eliminate inequalities in status, facilities and opportunities, not only amongst individuals but also amongst groups of people residing in different areas or engaged in different vocations.

39. Certain principles of policy to be followed by the State.—The State shall, in particular, direct its policy towards securing—

- (a) that the citizen, men and women equally, have the right to an adequate means of livelihood;
- (b) that the ownership and control of the material resources of the community are so distributed as best to subserve the common good;
- (c) that the operation of the economic system does not result in the concentration of wealth and means of production to the common detriment;
- (d) that there is equal pay for equal work for both men and women;
- (e) that the health and strength of workers, men and women, and the tender age of children are not abused and that citizens are not forced by economic necessity to enter avocations unsuited to their age or strength;
- 3[(f)] that children are given opportunities and facilities to develop in a healthy manner and in conditions of freedom and dignity and that childhood and youth are protected against exploitation and against moral and material abandonment.]

Notes on Article 39Object

This article has been described as having the object of securing a Welfare State and may be utilised for construing provisions as to fundamental rights. See the undermentioned decisions:

- (i) Srinivasa v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1987 SC 1518.
- (ii) Keshavananda Bharati v. State of Kerala, (1973) 4 SC 228.

2. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 9. (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).

3. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 3 (w.e.f. 21-1-1977).

Declaration in law

An express legislative declaration in the law itself that the law was enacted for giving effect to the principles of State Policy in article 39(b) and 39(c), is not a condition precedent to the attraction of the protection under Article 31C to the impugned law. The nexus between the law and the objects of Article 39(b) could be shown independently of any such declaration by the legislature. The absence of evidence of nexus in the form of an express declaration, is not, by itself, evidence of the absence of such nexus; Maharashtra State Electricity Board v. Thana Electricity Supply Co., AIR 1990 SC 153 (R.S. Pathak, CJ., Sabyasachi Mukherji, S. Natarajan and S. Ranganathan, JJ).

Prices

A statutory corporation (even if it is not a public utility) must comply with article 39 and charge only fair prices; ONGC v. Association, AIR 1990 SC 1851, paragraphs 15 and 30.

Equal pay

Denial of equal pay for equal work becomes irrational classification within article 14; Grihalayan v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 619, paragraph 6.

Difference in duties justifies difference in pay; Hundraj v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1106, paragraph 44.

Differences in duties justifies discrimination in pay; Vasudevan v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 2295, paragraphs 18-19.

Writ can be to enforce the principle of equal work if article 14 is infringed; F.C.I. Union v. F.C.I., AIR 1990 SC 2178, paragraph 20.

See undermentioned cases as to equal pay:

- (i) Randhir v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 879.
- (ii) Ramchandra v. Union of India, AIR 1984 SC 541, paragraph 17.

Also see Dharwad Employees v. State, (1990) 2 SCC 396.

[39A. Equal justice and free legal aid.—The State shall secure that the operation of the legal system promotes justice, on a basis of equal opportunity, and shall, in particular, provide free legal aid, by suitable legislation or schemes or in any other way, to ensure that opportunities for securing justice are not denied to any citizen by reason of economic or other disabilities.]

Notes on Article 39A

Legal aid

An important impact of article 39A read with article 21 has been to reinforce the right of a person involved in a criminal proceeding to legal aid. The article has been thus used to interpret (and even expand) the right conferred by sec. 304, of the Code Criminal Procedure, 1973. See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Hussainara v. State of Bihar, AIR 1979 SC 1369.
- (ii) Hoskot v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1978 SC 1548.
- (iii) State of Haryana v. Darshana, AIR 1979 SC 885.

Legal aid may be treated as a part of the right created article 21; Kushore v. State of H.P., (1991) SCC 286.

In a suitable case Supreme Court may direct District Judge to arrange legal aid; Bajiban Chauhan v. U.P. SRTC, 1990 Supp SCC 769.

40. Organisation of village panchayats.—The State shall take steps to organise village panchayats and endow them with such powers and authority as may be necessary to enable them to function as units of self-government.

Notes on Article 40

See the Amending Act on Panchayats.

41. Right to work, to education and to public assistance in certain cases.—The State shall, within the limits of its economic capacity and development, make effective provision for securing the right to work, to education and to public assistance in cases of unemployment, old age, sickness and disablement, and in other cases of undeserved want.

Notes on Article 41

Court should so interpret an Act as to advance article 41; Jacob v. Kerala Water Authority, (1991) 1 SCC 28.

42. Provision for just and humane conditions of work and maternity relief.—The State shall make provision for securing just and humane conditions of work and for maternity relief.

43. Notes on Article 51

International law and national law (municipal law)

The following propositions should be noted:—

- (a) International treaties do not automatically become part of national law. They have to be incorporated into the legal system by appropriate law.
- (b) However, national courts generally interpret statutes so as to maintain harmony with rules of international law.
- (c) National legislation, even if contrary of international law, has to be respected.
- (d) Power to implement treaties belongs exclusively to the Union under article 253.

Following cases support the above propositions:—

- (i) Moti Lal v. State of U.P., AIR 1951 All 257 (FB).
- (ii) Berubari Union, In re, AIR 1960 SC 845.

FUNDAMENTAL DUTIES

51A. Fundamental duties.—It shall be the duty of every citizen of India,—

- (a) to abide by the Constitution and respect its ideals and institutions, the National Flag and the National Anthem;
- (b) to cherish and follow the noble ideals which inspired our national struggle for freedom;
- (c) to uphold and protect the sovereignty, unity and integrity of India;
- (d) to defend the country and render national service when called upon to do so;
- (e) to promote harmony and the spirit of common brotherhood amongst all the people of India transcending religious, linguistic and regional or sectional diversities; to renounce practices derogatory to the dignity of women;
- (f) to value and preserve the rich heritage of our composite culture;
- (g) to protect and improve the natural environment including forests, lakes, rivers and wild life, and to have compassion for living creatures;
- (h) to develop the scientific temper, humanism and the spirit of inquiry and reform;
- (i) to safeguard public property and to abjure violence;
- (j) to strive towards excellence in all spheres of individual and collective activity, so that the nation constantly rises to higher levels of endeavour and achievement.]

Notes on Article 51A

Fundamental duties and their enforcement

Provisions as to fundamental duties cannot be enforced by writs. They can be promoted only by constitutional methods. But they can be used for interpreting ambiguous statutes. See undermentioned cases:

- (i) Mumbai Kamgar Sabha v. Abdulhai, AIR 1976 SC 1455.
- (ii) Surya v. Union of India, AIR 1982 Raj 1.
- (iii) Dasarathi v. State, AIR 1985 AP 136.
- (iv) Head Masters v. Union of India, AIR 1983 Cal 448.

Where the constitutionality of an Act is challenged court may look at article 51A to uphold it; Mohan v. Union of India, (1992) Supp 1 SCC 594, paragraphs 41 and 42.

Meaning of "excellence"

In a case in which the High Court of Allahabad quashed a notification issued under the Land Acquisition Act as mala fide, the High Court discussed the significance of article 51A(g) and pointed out that a new chapter had been inserted in the Constitution to regulate behaviour and to bring about excellence. Article 51A is in a positive form with a view to striving towards excellence. People should not conduct themselves in a blameworthy manner. 'Excellence' means surpassing merit, virtue, honest performance. Constitutional law givers have provided that the citizens of this great nation shall perform their duties in an excellent way rather than perform them half heartedly.

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 11 (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAAFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Now the performance of duty comes within the sphere constitutional law which a court has to decide; Ram Prasad v. State of U.P., AIR 1988 All 309 (R.M. Sahai and B.I. Yadav, JJ).

Environment

These duties have been particular invoked in litigation concerning the environment. See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Rural Litigation Kendra v. State of U.P., AIR 1987 SC 359.
- (ii) Sachidanand v. State of W.B., AIR 1987 SC 1109.

Fundamental duties: Use and interpretation

The courts may look at the fundamental duties while interpreting equivocal statutes which admit of two constructions. On the principle that as the duties are obligatory on citizens, the State should also observe them, the Supreme Court has, with reference to article 51A(g), issued oral orders stopping quarrying operations at certain places in U.P. Similarly, it has issued directions regarding declaring disputed areas as 'reserved forests' under sec. 20, Indian Forest Act, 1927.

See the undermentioned cases:

(3) Nothing in sub-clause (c) of clause (1) shall affect the power to suspend, remit or commute a sentence of death exercisable by the governor¹[] of a State under any law for the time being in force.

Notes on Article 72

The effect of a series of decisions of the Supreme Court (and of some High Courts) is:

- (a) The exercise of the power by the President under article 72 is primarily a matter for his discretion and the courts would not interfere with his actual decision on the merits.
- (b) But courts exercise a very limited power of judicial review, to ensure that the President considers all relevant materials before coming to his decision.
- (c) The President can, in the exercise of this power, examine the evidence afresh. In doing so, he is not sitting as a court of appeal. His power is independent of the judiciary. He can, therefore, afford relief not only from a sentence which regards as unduly harsh, but also from an evident mistake.
- (d) The President is not bound to hear a petitioner for mercy before he rejects the petition. The undermentioned decisions support the above propositions:

- (ii) Ramanajah v. Supdt., Central Jail, AIR 1974 SC 31.

Presidential clemency and death sentence

From time to time, the question of the President's power to commute the sentence of death into a lesser sentence comes up for discussion before the public. This is not a purely legal matter and involves several ethical and social implications. Unfortunately, a few misconceptions prevail on the subject, because of the failure to appreciate several important socio-legal aspects:

In India, the Constitution, by article 71(1), gives to the President the power to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment or to suspend, remit or commute the sentence of any person convicted of any offence, inter alia, where the sentence is one of death. The Constitution does not purport to set out the criteria on the basis of which the Presidential power is to be exercised. Similar provisions exist in the United States Constitution where article II, sec. 2, gives the President the power to grant reprieves and pardons for offences against the United States, except in cases of impeachment. In American law, much more important is the power of the Governor to commute the sentence of death into one of imprisonment for life, being a power conferred by the Constitution of almost each State in the United States on the Governor. In the United Kingdom, the corresponding power has come to be known as the prerogative of mercy and is vested in the sovereign. Although, since 1965, death sentence for murder has been abolished in England, there is considerable literature concerning the exercise of this power by the sovereign in England during the period when the courts were empowered to award the death sentence for murder.

Manner of exercise

The Constitution of India is silent as to the manner in which the Presidential power is to be exercised. But it seems a reasonable view to take that this power, like other powers of the President, is expected to be exercised on the advice of the Cabinet. In England, the sovereign invariably acts on the advice of the Home Secretary and it is stated that on the outer side of the Home Secretary's chamber, certain words have been inscribed which emphasise the tremendous power of life and death which so comes to be vested in the Home Secretary. In many States in the United States, the Constitution or the law has provided for Advisory Boards to advise the Governor in the exercise of clemency.

Stay

Where the earlier petition has been rejected by the President, stay cannot be obtained by filing another petition; Gurniben (II) v. State of Gujarat, (1990) Cr LJ 273, paragraph 7.

Position elsewhere

Consistent with the democratic principle that the people are the source of all political power, the Constitutions of the various States in the United States designate the institution that will wield the clemency power. The Advisory Board (wherever created) may have the Governor as a member, or may sit separately and send its recommendation to the Governor. In some state (e.g. Arizona, Delaware, Louisiana, Pennsylvania, Texas), the State Constitution prohibits the Governor from granting clemency where the Advisory Board has made an unfavourable recommendation. In a few States, the Constitution of the State vests the power exclusively in the Advisory Board. To this category belong Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho and Utah. Where Advisory Boards have been constituted, the Boards are, in some cases, staffed by elected officials while in others the Board is composed of members appointed by the Governor. In some States (e.g. Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas), the nominations to the Board are made by a variety of agencies—namely, the Governor, the Chief Justice of the State Supreme Court and the President of the Court of Criminal Appeals.

Should India adopt a system of having an Advisory Board for advising the President in exercising the prerogative of mercy? There are some basic difficulties here. The advice of the Board cannot be made binding on the President without amending the Constitution. If the President rejects its advice, controversies are likely to be raised. Again, if the Board is to consist of persons other than sitting judges, the Board would find it embarrassing to reconsider and review matters considered by the high judiciary. If the Board is to consist of non-judicial personnel, it may often be found inadvisable to communicate to several persons the reasons for proposed exercise of prerogative of mercy.

It should, however, be mentioned that there is nothing to prevent the President from consulting the Attorney General. The terms of article 6(2) of the Constitution are wide enough to enable him to do so. In an exceptional case, the President can even refer the matter for opinion to the Supreme Court. Here again, the terms of article 143 of the Constitution are wide enough.

The New Commonwealth

Some years ago, De Smith, a reputed scholar of constitutional law, studied the 'New Commonwealth'—i.e. the group of countries especially comprising African, Caribbean and Far East members of the Commonwealth. He noted at that time in Malaysia, there is a Pardons Board—a body with an unofficial and potentially non-political majority—to tender advice to the Head of the State. In Sierra Leone, the Prime Minister assumes the responsibility, he must consult a Committee of the Cabinet for capital cases, but is not bound to accept their advice. Advisory Committees, including the Attorney General, exist in a few other countries of the New Commonwealth. Nigeria had an Advisory Committee with a medical practitioner as one of its members. Incidentally, the Ceylon Constitution of 1947-48 envisaged that the Governor General shall not grant a pardon, respite or remission to an offender without first receiving, in every case, the advice of one of his Ministers. Further, where any offender shall have been condemned to suffer death by the sentence of any court, the Governor General shall cause a report to be made by the Judge who tried the case and also obtain the Attorney General's advice thereon. The report and the advice should then be sent to the Minister who is to advise the Governor General.

Considerations to be taken into account

What are the considerations usually taken into account in commuting the sentence of death to imprisonment for life? To this question, one can give the answer that these cannot be catalogued. Sir John Anderson, in his evidence before the Royal Commission on Capital Punishment in England (1949-53), pointed out that it would be extremely difficult to give, in a short statement, "an adequate impression of the cumulative considerations which the Home Secretary has to take into account".

Earlier in 1907, Herbert Gladstone, Home Secretary, in a speech in the House of Commons, emphasised that numerous considerations are relevant and that the exercise of the prerogative does not depend on principles of strict law and justice, still less of sentiment. "It is a question of policy and judgment in each case, and in my opinion, a capital execution which, in its circumstances, creates horror and compassion for the culprit rather than a sense of indignation at his crime is a great evil."

Some of the important considerations that are taken into account in granting a reprieve had been noted by the Law Commission of India in its Report on Capital Punishment. These include want of premeditation, age, mental or physical condition of the offender, past conduct, external pressures which might have impaired independent judgment, medical abnormality falling short of legal insanity, and so on. Discovery of new evidence is also not ruled out. There is at least one recorded case in England of error. A petition for clemency submitted to the sovereign was referred to the Court of Criminal Appeal. At the hearing, Lord Goddard (Lord Chief Justice) admitted further evidence on the merits and it was found that the convicted person was totally innocent.

The English view is that where the Home Secretary feels that despite the verdict of the jury there is a scintilla of doubt about the prisoner's guilt, reprieve may be granted. Occasionally, it has been felt right to commute the sentence in deference to a widely spread or strong local expression of public opinion for mercy on the ground that it would do more harm than good if the result was to arouse sympathy for the犯人 (犯人). An Analysis of the Law 5b7RseosPhQQ

Need for the power

Writers on law and political science often put the fundamental question. Is there need for the prerogative of mercy? The Law Commission of India, in its Report on Capital Punishment (1967), examined the question at great length. Its Report (Vol. I, pages 317-18 para, 1025) discusses several aspects of the prerogative. It is sometimes argued that in a country like India, where the sentence of death is not mandatory and the court is free to consider the circumstances relevant to the question of sentence, the prerogative of mercy is not needed. However, the Law Commission did not agree with this view. The Commission noted: "There are many matters which may not have been considered by the courts. The hands of the court are tied down by the evidence placed before it. A sentence of death passed by a Court after consideration of all the materials placed before it may yet require reconsideration because of: (i) facts not placed before the court, (ii) facts placed before the court but not in the proper manner, (iii) acts discovered after the passing of the sentence, (iv) events which have developed after the passing of the sentence, and (v) other special features. Nor can one codify and select these special features which would be too numerous to lend themselves to codification. For these reasons, we do not recommend any change in the scope of these powers."

The truth of the matter is that law is made for man. Justice is much more than mere codes and precedents. There are occasions when justice and humanity demand that mercy be shown in the matter of sentence.

In the American case of Grossman (1925, 257 U.S. 87) the Supreme Court pointed out that executive clemency exists to afford relief from undue harshness or evident mistakes in the operation or enforcement of the criminal law. "The administration of justice by the courts is not always wise or certainly considerate of circumstances which may properly mitigate guilt. To afford a remedy, it has always been thought essential in popular Governments, as well as in monarchies to vest in some authority other than the court, power to ameliorate or avoid particular judgments.... Our Constitution confers this discretion on the highest office in the nation in confidence that he will not abuse it."

73. Extent of executive power of the Union.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the executive power of the Union shall extend—

- (a) to the matters with respect to which Parliament has power to make laws; and
- (b) to the exercise of such rights, authority and jurisdiction as are exercisable by the Government of India by virtue of any treaty or agreement:

Provided that the executive power referred to in sub-clause (a) shall not, save as expressly provided in this Constitution or in any law made by Parliament, extend in any State^[] to matters with respect to which the Legislature of the State has also power to make laws.

(2) Until otherwise provided by Parliament, a State and any officer or authority of a State may, notwithstanding anything in this article, continue to exercise in matters with respect to which Parliament has power to make laws for the State such executive power or functions as the State or officer or authority thereof could exercise immediately before the commencement of this Constitution.

Council of Ministers

74. Council of Ministers to aid and advise President.—²[(1) There shall be a Council of Ministers with the Prime Minister at the head to aid and advise the president who shall, in the exercise of his functions, act in accordance with such advice:]

1. The words and letters "specified in Part A or Part B of the First Schedule" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29, and Sch.
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 13, for clause (1) (w.e.f. 3-1-1977). <https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

¹[Provided that the President may require the Council of Ministers to reconsider such advice, either generally or otherwise, and the President shall act in accordance with the advice tendered after such reconsideration.]

(2) The question whether any, and if so what, advice was tendered by Ministers to the President shall not be inquired into in any court.

Advice of Cabinet

By the peremptory provisions of article 74(1) as it now stands (i.e. after the 42nd and 44th Amendments) the President is bound in every case to act on the advice of the Cabinet. The amendment incorporates the view taken in Sansher v. State of Punjab, AIR 1974 SC 2192. For the latest English practice, see—

Article 74(2) does not bar scrutiny of advice tendered by the council of Ministers to the President. Courts are justified in looking into the basis of the advice subject to the provisions of section 123 of the Evidence Act; Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, JT (1994) 2 SC 423.

75. Other provisions as to Ministers.—(1) The Prime Minister shall be appointed by the President and the other Ministers shall be appointed by the President on the advice of the Prime Minister.

- (2) The Minister shall hold office during the pleasure of the President.
- (3) The Council of Ministers shall be collectively responsible to the House of the People.
- (4) Before a Minister enters upon his office, the President shall administer to him the oaths of office and of secrecy according to the forms set out for the purpose in the Third Schedule.
- (5) A Minister who for any period of six consecutive months is not a member of either House of Parliament shall at the expiration of that period cease to be a Minister.
- (6) The salaries and allowances of Ministers shall be such as Parliament may from time to time by law determine and, until Parliament so determines, shall be as specified in the Second Schedule.

Notes on Article 75

Describing a person as Deputy Prime Minister is descriptive only, and such description does not confer on him any powers of Prime Minister. Hence, oath as Deputy Prime Minister is not invalid; K.M. Sharma v. Devi Lal, AIR 1990 SC 528 (Ranga Nath Misra and M.M. Pubchi JJ).

The Attorney-General for India

76. Attorney-General for India.—(1) The President shall appoint a person who is qualified to be appointed a Judge of the Supreme Court to be Attorney-General for India.

(2) It shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to give advice to the Government of India upon such legal matters, and to perform such other duties of a legal character, as may from time to time be referred or assigned to him by the President, and to discharge the functions conferred on him by or under this Constitution or any other law for the time being in force.

(3) In the performance of his duties the Attorney-General shall have right of audience in all courts in the territory of India.

(4) The Attorney-General shall hold office during the pleasure of the President, and shall receive such remuneration as the President may determine.

Conduct of Government Business

77. Conduct of business of the Government of India.—(1) All executive action of the Government of India shall be expressed to be taken in the name of the President.

(2) Orders and other instruments made and executed in the name of the President shall be authenticated in such manner as may be specified in rules¹ to be made by the President, and the validity of an order or instrument which is so authenticated shall not be called in question on the ground that it is not an order or instrument made or executed by the President.

(3) The President shall make rules for the more convenient transaction of the business of the Government of India, and for the allocation among Ministers of the said business.

Notes on Article 102

Principle

The principle debarring holders of office of profit 'under the Government' from being a member of Parliament is that such a person cannot exercise his functions independently of the executive of which he is a part. The principle can be traced to developments in English constitution history, in the course of which it came to be established that the Crown and its officers shall have no say in Parliament.

Material date

Material date is the date of scrutiny of nomination, subject to the qualification that when a conviction is set aside on appeal, the appellate order has retrospective effect.

Powers, Privileges and Immunities of Parliament and its Members

105. Powers, Privileges, etc., of the House of Parliament and of the members and committees thereof.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and to the rules and standing orders regulating the procedure of Parliament, there shall be freedom of speech in Parliament.

(2) No Member of Parliament shall be liable to any proceedings in any court in respect of anything said or any vote given by him in Parliament or any committee thereof, and no person shall be so liable in respect of the publication by or under the authority of either House of Parliament of any report, paper, votes or proceedings.

(3) In other respects, the powers, privileges and immunities of each House of Parliament, and of the members and the committees of each House, shall be such as may from time to time be defined by Parliament by law, and until so defined,¹ [shall be those of that House and of its members and committees immediately before the coming into force of section 15 of the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978].

(4) The provisions of clauses (1), (2) and (3) shall apply in relation to persons who by virtue of this Constitution have the right to speak in, and otherwise to take part in the proceedings of, a House of Parliament or any committee thereof as they apply in relation to members of the Parliament.

Notes on Article 105

Scope

Parliamentary privilege is the subject-matter of this article with which one should compare article 194 concerned with privileges of Members of State Legislatures. Although the expression 'privileges' occurs in article 105(3) and article 194(3) and is historically correct, having regard to the terminology used in England, it should be pointed out that the current opinion in England is not in favour of retaining the word 'privilege'.

Freedom of speech

Clause (1) confers the freedom of speech in Parliament, but this is subject to the provisions of the Constitution and to the rules and standing orders of Parliament. See in Particular, article 118, 121, 208 and 211 and the below mentioned case:

Sharma v. Sri Krishna, AIR 1959 SC 395, 409.

Publication of proceedings

Immunity from liability as regards speeches in Parliament and as regards publication thereof under the authority of the House is conferred by clause (2). This immunity is not subject to the provisions of the Constitution.

The underlying principle has been stated to be this, namely, that people's representatives should be free to express themselves without fear of legal consequences. Of course, the immunity is confined to what is said within the House. For publications by persons other than those authorised by the House, see article 361A, inserted by the 44th Amendment Act, 1978. The undermentioned cases may be seen as to liability for publication:

- (i) Jatish v. Harisadhan, (1956) 60 CWN 971; on appeal, AIR 1961 SC 613.
- (ii) Surendra v. Naba Krishna, AIR 1958 Ori 168, 175. (Qualified privilege for publication by Member outside House).
- (iii) Ramalingam v. Daily Thanthi, AIR 1975 Mad 209.
- (iv) Suresh v. Punji, AIR 1951 Cal 176. (Member not liable for publication by newspaper of its own).
- (v) Tejkiron v. Sanjiva, AIR 1970 SC 1573.

Other privileges

The other privileges are not verbally with the English practice (as was the position under the original text of the Constitution as enacted), but may be either 'defined by Parliament by law' or, until so defined, shall be those immediately before the 44th Amendment. It may be mentioned that though the intermediate 42nd Amendments sought to make certain changes in article 105 etc. by sec. 21, that section had not been brought into force when the 44th Amendment again amended art. 194. At present, then, one must again go to the English practice, because that was the position under the original text of the Constitution.

Provided that nothing in this clause shall apply to a Money Bill.

(4) If at the joint sitting of the two Houses the Bill, with such amendments, if any, as are agreed to in joint sitting, is passed by a majority of the total number of members of both Houses present and voting, it shall be deemed for the purposes of this Constitution to have been passed by both Houses:

Provided that at a joint sitting—

- (a) if the Bill having been passed by one House, has not been passed by the other House with amendments and returned to the House in which it originated, no amendment shall be proposed to the Bill other than such amendments (if any) as are made necessary by the delay in the passage of the Bill;
- (b) if the Bill has been so passed and returned, only such amendments as aforesaid shall be proposed to the Bill and such other amendments as are relevant to the matters with respect to which the Houses have not agreed, and the decision of the person presiding as to the amendments which are admissible under this clause shall be final.

(5) A joint sitting may be held under this article and a Bill passed thereat, notwithstanding that a dissolution of the House of People has intervened since the President notified his intention of summoning the Houses to meet therein.

109. Special procedure in respect of Money Bills.—(1) A Money Bill shall not be introduced in the Council of States.

(2) After a Money Bill has been passed by the House of the People it shall be transmitted to the Council of States for its recommendations and the Council of States shall within a period of fourteen days from the date of its receipt of the Bill return the Bill of the House of the People with its recommendations and the House of the People may thereupon either accept or reject all or any of the recommendations of the Council of States.

(3) If the House of the People accepts any of the recommendations of the Council of States, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses with the amendments recommended by the Council of States and accepted by the House of the People.

(4) If the House of the People does not accept any of the recommendations of the Council of States, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses in the form in which it was passed by the House of the People without any of the amendments recommended by the Council of States.

(5) If a Money Bill passed by the House of the People and transmitted to the Council of States for its recommendations is not returned to the House of the People within the said period of fourteen days, it shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses at the expiration of the said period in the form in which it was passed by the House of the People.

110. Definition of 'Money Bills'.—(1) For the purposes of this Chapter, a Bill shall be deemed to be a Money Bill if it contains only provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters, namely:—

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Notes on Article 123

Scope

This Article is intended to enable the President to promulgate Ordinances during the recess of Parliament. The President's power is no higher and no lower than that of the law-making power of the Parliament. The satisfaction of the President must be as to the existence of circumstances which render it necessary for him to take immediate action and such satisfaction has to be on the advice of the Cabinet. Undermentioned decisions illustrate these propositions:

- (i) Cooper v. Union of India, AIR 1970 SC 564.
- (ii) A.K. Roy v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 710.
- (iii) State of Rajasthan v. Union of India, AIR 1977 SC 1361.
- (iv) T. Venkata Reddy v. State of A.P., AIR 1985 SC 724.
- (v) Nagaraj v. State of A.P., AIR 1985 SC 551.
- (vi) Saipal v. Lt. Governor, AIR 1979 SC 1550.

Effect of duration

As pointed out above, the law making power of the President is co-extensive as regards all matters except duration, with the law-making power of Parliament, it follows that the power is subject to constitutional provisions, particularly those regarding fundamental rights. In respect of the subject-matter of Ordinances, the position is the same as applies to Parliament under the constitutional scheme of distribution of legislative powers between the Union and the States. Undermentioned decisions illustrate these aspects:

- (i) State of Punjab v. Mohar Singh, AIR 1955 SC 84.
- (ii) Garg v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 2138.
- (iii) T. Vendata Reddy v. State of A.P., AIR 1985 SC 724.
- (iv) Nagaraj v. State of A.P., AIR 1985 SC 551.
- (v) State of Orissa v. Bhupendra, AIR 1962 SC 945, 955.

Repromulgation

While no case has gone to the Supreme Court regarding repromulgation of Ordinances by the Union, notice must be taken of the Supreme Court judgment holding that successive repromulgation of Ordinances with the same text by the Governor of Bihar, without any attempt to get the Bills passed by the State Assembly while it was in session, coupled with the habitual practice of proroguing the Assembly merely in order to enable the Governor to repromulgate an Ordinance in a rout-

1. Clause (4) was ins. by the Constitution (Thirty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1975, sec. 2 (retrospectively) and omitted by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 16 (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

ine manner would be a fraud on the Constitution, and the Ordinance so re promulgated is liable to be struck down; D.C. Wadhwa v. State of Bihar, AIR 1987 SC 579.

Notes on Article 124

Consultation

Consultation must be effective, and implies exchange of views after examining the merits, but does not mean concurrence. See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) S.P. Gupta v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 149.
- (ii) Union of India v. Sankalchand Seth, AIR 1977 SC 2328.

126. Appointment of acting Chief Justice.—When the office of Chief Justice of India is vacant or when the Chief Justice is, by reason of absence or otherwise, unable to perform the duties of his office, the duties of the office shall be performed by such one of the other Judge of the Court as the President may appoint for the purpose.

(2) It shall be the duty of the Judge who has been so designated, in priority to other duties of his office to attend the sittings of the Supreme Court at the time and for the period for which his attendance is required, and while so attending he shall have all the jurisdiction, powers and privileges, and shall discharge the duties, of a Judge of the Supreme Court.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Thirty-ninth Amendment) Act, 1986, sec. 12, for clause (1) (w.e.f. 1-1-1986).

128. Attendance of retired Judges at sittings of the Supreme Court.—Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, the Chief Justice of India may at any time, with the previous consent of the President, request any person who has held the office of a Judge of the Supreme Court or of the Federal Court¹ [or who has held the office of a Judge of a High Court and is duly qualified for appointment as a Judge of the Supreme Court] to sit and act as a Judge of the Supreme Court, and every such person so requested shall, while so sitting and acting, be entitled to such allowances as the president may by order determine and have all the jurisdiction, powers and privileges of, but shall not otherwise be deemed to be, a Judge of that Court:

Provided that nothing in this article shall be deemed to require any such person as aforesaid to sit and act as a Judge of that Court unless he consents so to do.

129. Supreme Court to be a court of record.—The Supreme Court shall be a court of record and shall have all the power of such a court including the power of punish for contempt of itself.

Notes on Article 129

Contempt power

The power of contempt of court has come up before the Supreme Court on numerous occasions, but most of the important propositions will be found discussed in the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Daphtray v. Gupta, AIR 1971 SC 1132.
- (ii) Namboodripad v. Nambiar, AIR 1970 SC 2015.
- (iii) Brahma Prakash v. State of U.P., (1953) SCR 1169.

130. Seat of Supreme Court.—The Supreme Court shall sit in Delhi or in such other place or places, as the Chief Justice of India may, with the approval of the President, from time to time, appoint.

131. Original jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.—Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the Supreme Court shall, to the exclusion of any other court, have original jurisdiction in any dispute—

- (a) between the Government of India and one or more States; or
- (b) between the Government of India and any State or States on one side and one or more other States on the other; or
- (c) between two or more States, if and in so far as the dispute involves any question (whether of law or fact) on which the existence or extent of a legal right depends:

²[Provided that the said jurisdiction shall not extend to a dispute arising out of any treaty, agreement, covenant, engagement, sanad or other similar instrument which, having been entered into or executed before the commencement of this Constitution,

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Fifteenth Amendment) Act, 1963, sec. 3.

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1950, sec. 7, for the proviso.

continues in operation after such commencement, or which provides that the said jurisdiction shall not extent to such a dispute.]

Notes of Article 131

In interstate water disputes jurisdiction is excluded; T.N. Cauvery Sangam v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCJ 547.

¹131A. Exclusive jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in regard to questions as to constitutional validity of Central laws.—[Rep. by the Constitution [Forty-third Amendment] Act, 1977, sec. 4 (w.e.f. 13-4-1978)].

132. Appellate jurisdiction of Supreme Court in appeals from High Court in certain cases.—(1) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any judgment, decree of final order of a High Court in the territory of India, whether in a civil, criminal or other proceeding,²[if the High Court certifies under article 134A] that the case involves a substantial question of law as to interpretation of this Constitution.

(3) Where such a certificate is given,⁴[] any party in the case may appeal to the Supreme Court on the ground that any such question as aforesaid has been wrongly decided⁴[].

Explanation.—For the purpose of this article, the expression "final order" includes an order deciding an issue which, if decided in favour of the appellant, would be sufficient for the final disposal of the case.

Notes on Articles 132 to 136

Article 132 deals with the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in constitutional cases. It must be read with article 134A (inserted by the 44th Amendment) under which, inter alia, if a substantial question of interpretation of the Constitution is involved, the High Court must grant a certificate. Unlike article 133(1)(a), article 132(1) does not require that the question must be of general importance.

Article 133 deals with the appellate jurisdiction of the Supreme Court from High Courts in civil cases. As amended by the 30th Amendment Act, 1972, the article allows such appeal if (i) the case involves a substantial question of law of general importance, and (ii) in the opinion of the High Court, the said question needs to be decided by the Supreme Court. The certificate is issued under article 134A.

Article 134(1) allowed criminal appeals to the Supreme Court from High Courts in the specified cases. Clauses (a) and (b) involve a death sentence. Clause (c) is much wider. If the High Court certifies under article 134A that the case is a fit one for appeal to the Supreme Court, then the appeal is competent.

As regards article 134(2) see the following:—

- (i) Supreme Court (Enlargement of Criminal Appellate Jurisdiction)Act, 1970.
- (ii) Section 379, Code of Criminal Procedure, 1973.
- (iii) Ram Kumar v. State of M.P., AIR 1975 SC 1026, paragraph 4.

1. Ins: by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 23 (w.e.f. 1-2-1977).
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 17, for "if the High Court certifies" (w.e.f. 1-8-1979).
3. Clause (2) omitted by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, 17 (w.e.f. 1-8-1979).
4. Certain words omitted by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978 sec. 17 (w.e.f. 1-8-1979).

(iv) Padda Narayana v. State of U.P., AIR 1975 SC 1252.

Article 135 saves jurisdiction under existing law, conferred on the Federal Court, which will now be exercised by the Supreme Court.

Article 136 confers on the Supreme Court jurisdiction of entertain by special leave to appeal.

The jurisdiction is of the widest amplitude as regards

- (a) the court from whose decision the appeal may be entertained (but courts martial are excluded);
- (b) the nature of the decision that may be appealed from;
- (c) the nature of the proceeding in which appeal may be entertained;
- (d) the grounds that may be allowed to be raised for seeking such special leave.

133. Appellate jurisdiction of Supreme Court in appeals from High Courts in regard to civil matters.—¹[(1) An appeal shall lie to the Supreme Court from any judgment, decree or final order in a civil proceeding of a High Court in the territory of India ²[if the High Court certifies under article 134A].—

- (a) that the case involves a substantial question of law of general importance; and
- (b) that in the opinion of the High Court the said question needs to be decided by the Supreme Court].

(2) Notwithstanding anything in article 132, any party appealing to the Supreme Court under clause (1) may urge as one of the grounds in such appeal that a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution has been wrongly decided.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in this article, no appeal shall, unless Parliament by law otherwise provides, lie to the Supreme Court from the judgment, decree or final order of one Judge of a High Court.

Notes on Article 133

See Notes under article 132 .

134. Appellate jurisdiction of Supreme Court in regard to criminal matters.—(1)
An appeal shall lie to the the Supreme Court from any judgment, final order or sentence in a criminal proceeding of a High Court in the territory of India if the High Court

- (a) has on appeal reversed an order of acquittal of an accused person and sentenced him to death; or
- (b) has withdrawn for trial before itself any case from any court subordinate to its authority and has in such trial convicted the accused person and sentenced him to death; or
- (c) ³[certifies under article 134A] that the case is a fit one for appeal to the Supreme Court:

Provided that an appeal under sub-clause (c) shall lie subject to such provisions as may be made in that behalf under clause (1) or article 145 and to such conditions as the High Court may establish or require.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Thirtyith Amendment) Act, 1972, sec. 2 , for clause (1) (w.e.f. 27-2-1973).
 2. Subs. by the Constitution (Forth-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 18, for "if the High Court certifies" (w.e.f. 1-8- 1979).
 3. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 19 for "certifies" (w.e.f. 1-8-1979).

(2) Parliament may by law confer on the Supreme Court any further powers to entertain and hear appeals from any judgment, final order sentence in a criminal proceeding of a High Court in the territory of India subject to such conditions and limitations as may be specified in such law.

Notes on Article 134

In a State of Madhya Pradesh v. Narain Singh, AIR 1989 SC 1789:(1989) Cri LJ 2101, it was held that section 7 (1) of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955 is so comprehensively worded that it covers acts done without intention and mens rea is not a necessary ingredient of the offence. Hence the accused was found guilty for violation of the Fertilizers Movement Control Order, 1973. However, the court while setting aside the order of acquittal, declined to make any order of punishment, because more than 15 years had gone by since the accused was acquitted by the trial Magistrate. The case arose under section 7 as it stood before its amendment in 1974, but after its amendment in 1967. The 1967 amendment had introduced the words "whether knowingly, intentionally or otherwise" in the Essential Commodities Act. By the 1974 amendment, these words have been removed.

In a case under article 134 (1)(c) conviction may be quashed where charge is framed after 17 years; State of U.P. v. Purshotam, AIR 1991 SC 1015.

¹[134A. Certificate for appeal to the Supreme Court.—Every High Court, passing or making a judgment, decree, final order, or sentence, referred to in clause (1) or article 132 or clause (1) of article 133, or clause (1) of article 134,—

- (a) may, if it deems fit so to do, on its own motion; and
- (b) shall, if an oral application is made, by or on behalf of the party aggrieved, immediately after the passing or making of such judgment, decree, final order or sentence, determine, as soon as may be after such passing or making, the question whether a certificate of the nature referred to in clause (1) of article 132, or clause (1) or article 133 or, as the case may be, sub-clause (c) of clause (1) of article 134, may be given in respect of that case.]

135. Jurisdiction and powers of the Federal Court under existing law to be exercisable by the Supreme Court.—Until Parliament by law otherwise provides, the Supreme Court shall also have jurisdiction and powers with respect to any matter to which the provisions of article 133 or article 134 do not apply if jurisdiction and powers in relation to that matter were exercisable by the Federal Court immediately before the commencement of this Constitution under any existing law.

136. Special leave to appeal by the Supreme Court.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in this chapter, the Supreme Court may, in its discretion grant special leave to appeal from any judgment, decree, determination, sentence or order in any case or matter passed or made by any court or tribunal in the territory of India.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall apply to any judgment, determination, sentence or order passed or made by any court or tribunal constituted by or under any law relating to the Armed Forces.

Notes on Article 136

Scope

Supreme Court would not grant special leave to appeal from a decision of the Central Administrative Tribunal directing re-fixation of seniority on a particular basis, where there is no substantial injustice. The court observed: "What is baffling is the filing of the Special Leave Petition by the Union Government, not because of – injustice to Assistant Military Estate Officers - as that has been taken care of by the Tribunal by protecting all those who are working, but because if it works out seniority of Assistant Military Estates Officer (Technical) from back date, it may have to pay substantial amount and creation of supernumerary posts may further entail cost. Justice is alert to difference and sensitive to discrimination. It cannot be measured in terms of money"; Union of India v. M.P. Singh, AIR 1990 SC 1098, 1103, paragraph 8.

Finding of Drug Controller was that renewal Certificate was forged and fabricated. Finding was affirmed by the High Court in writ petition. Certificate was given by the Licensing Authority that the renewal certificate bore his signature - Such document was not produced before the Drug Controller nor before the High Court in writ petition, it was held that the document cannot be considered by the Supreme Court in special leave petition, particularly in the absence of affidavit of the Licensing Authority vouchsafing genuineness of the document. It was more so, because the finding as aforesaid was a finding of fact based on material placed before the court; Medimpex (India) Pvt. Ltd. v. Drug Controller-cum-Chief Licensing Authority, AIR 1990 SC 544.

Refusal

Where Supreme Court refused to grant special leave to appeal, it cannot be construed as a seal of approval. "The doctrine of merger or fusing the judgment of the lower court in that of the appellant court does not apply in such a case"; Punjab State Electricity Board v. Ashok Kumar, AIR 1990 P&H 117, paragraphs 24 and 26 (FB).

When leave may be granted

Where the judgment is tainted with serious legal infirmities, or is founded on a legal construction which is wrong; Balakrishna v. Matha, (1991) Cr LJ 69, paragraph 11 (SC).

If the High Court sets aside a finding of fact by a tribunal, the Supreme Court will interfere; Prakash & Co. v. Municipal Corpns., 1 UJSC 553, paragraph 12.

Petition for leave would be granted where approach of the court whose judgment is under appeal is wrong in law; Munisami v. Ranganathan, (1991) 2 SCC 139, paragraph 9.

When leave may be refused

Where granting the petition would mean multiple claim on same cause of action, court may disallow the petition; Sawhney v. L.I.C., (1991) 2 SCC 318, paragraphs 2 and 10.

Unnecessary appeal by Government may be discouraged where only one party's liability is involved; Union of India v. M.P. Singh, AIR 1990 SC 1098

An order of the High Court will not be set aside if it has not caused any prejudice to petitioner even though no notice was given to the petitioner; Gupta v. U.P.S.E.B., AIR 1991 SC 1309, paragraphs 4-5.

Supreme Court would be reluctant to interfere with an administrative decision as to the needs of the department; Arun v. State of Bihar, AIR 1991 SC 1514, paragraph 13. (Case of appointment).

An appointment made on the recommendation of Selection Committee cannot be set aside by the High Court without valid reasons; University of Jodhpur v. Purohit, (1990) 1 UJSC 235, paragraph 11.

The Supreme Court would not disturb the existing position if would lead to injustice; Thapar Institute v. Abhinav, (1990) 1 UJSC 699, paragraph 8.

Scope of interference

In cases of professional misconduct Supreme Court would consider only whether, on the facts found by the High Court such misconduct is established; Chagki v. Tiburgba, (1990) 1 UJSC 4, paragraph 18.

Grounds

Where the High Court has dismissed a writ petition in limine the scope of appeal to the Supreme Court is limited to the grounds set forth in the petition; Sat Pal v. Director, AIR 1991 SC 970, paragraph 3.

New Point

The Supreme Court would not allow a new point (which was not taken or not pressed before the High Court) to be raised before it, or which was sought to be introduced by filing additional grounds; Nityananda v. State of Orissa, AIR 1991 SC 1134, paragraph 11.

Where the point could have been urged before the High Court under Art. 226 or 227, the Supreme Court would not permit the appellant to raise it for the first time before it, nor to assail an undertaking given by him in the High Court; Gosain v. Yashpal, AIR 1993 SC 352, paragraph 13.

Where the High Court has examined all the evidences, the Supreme Court will not interfere on technical ground; Ajit v. State of Punjab, (1991) Cr LJ 2008 SC, paragraphs 3 and 4.

Fraud

Where the petitioner obtained a special leave by suppressing the fact that an earlier petition by him was dismissed, the court directed recall of the order releasing him on bail; Suraj v. Bharat, (1990) 1 UJSC 135, paragraph 3.

Similarly, bail was recalled on the basis of fraud practised upon the court; Surinder v. Delhi Administration, (1990) Supp SCC 610.

Court may refuse relief to a petitioner who has taken reckless steps without recourse to law; Krishna v. Shobha, (1990) 1 UJSC 71, paragraph 10.

Question of fact

Where the High Court has completely missed the real points requiring determination and has on erroneous grounds discredited the evidence, the Supreme Court would be justified in going into the evidence to avoid grave injustice; Sham Sunder v. Puran, (1990) 4 SCC 731.

The Supreme Court will not reassess the evidence at large and come to a fresh opinion as to the innocence or guilt of the accused, so as to interfere with a concurrent finding of fact by the Court below, except where there is some serious infirmity in the appreciation of the evidence, and the finding is perverse; Narendra v. State of U.P., (1991) 2 SCC 622, paragraphs 28-29.

Mahesh v. State of Delhi, (1991) Cr. L.J. 1703, paragraph 11.

Nain Singh v. State of U.P., (1991) 2 SCC 432, paragraph 24.

In the absence of perversity, Concurrent finding of fact is not disturbed; Mehtab Singh v. State of Gujarat, (1991) Cr LJ 2325 (SC) paragraph 2.

Supreme Court will not ordinarily interfere with appreciation of affidavit evidence by High Court; State of M.P. v. Orient Paper, (1990) 1 UJSC 232, paragraph 2.

Fact

Mixed questions of fact and law not argued before the lower courts cannot be raised before Supreme Court; Bhandari D.C.C.B. v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1993 SC 59, paragraph 10.

Questions of fact can not be raised for the first time before the Supreme Court; State of Karnataka v. S.G.P. Co., AIR 1991 SC 1307; Uduman v. Astam, AIR 1991 SC 1020 paragraph 19.

Criminal Cases

In criminal cases under O. XL, r. 7 of the Supreme Court Rules, no review lies except on ground of error apparent on the face of the record; State of Haryana v. Prem, AIR 1990 SC 538, paragraphs 2-6.

In an appeal against acquittal the Supreme Court would be justified to interfere when approach of the High Court is far from satisfactory; Anvaruddin v. Shakoor, AIR 1990 SC 1242.

Where the High Court has completely misdirected itself in reversing the order of conviction by the trial Court; Gaurishankar v. State of U.P., AIR 1990 SC 709.

Where the conclusion arrived by the court below is such as to shake the conscience, the Supreme Court would strike it down whether the judgment is one of conviction or acquittal; Mahesh v. State of Delhi, (1991) Cr LJ 1703 (SC), paragraph 11.

Even after a death sentence has been confirmed and is not open to review, the Supreme Court may, in a petition under article 32 read with article 21 commute the sentence of death into one of life imprisonment on the ground of undue delay in execution of the sentence of death since it was confirmed, because a sentence of death is one thing and the sentence of death followed by lengthy imprisonment prior to execution is another; Jumman v. State of U.P., (1991) Cr LJ 439, paragraph 15.

In an appeal against conviction the High Court can interfere with concurrent judgments of criminal courts where the interest of justice so requires; Lala Ram v. State of U.P., (1990) 2 SCC 113.

The Supreme Court would interfere in a criminal case where the High Court has failed to notice the changed versions given by witnesses; Rajan v. State of Bihar, AIR 1991 SC 1377 paragraph 3.

In a criminal appeal the Supreme Court interferes if the decision appealed from shocks the sense of justice; Mahesh v. State, (1991) Cr LJ 1703 (SC), paragraph 11.

After quashing an order the Supreme Court itself may pass suitable orders instead of remanding the case to High Court; Anand v. R.S.R.T.C., AIR 1991 SC 1003, paragraphs 11-12.

Supreme Court may set aside execution order in respect of a decree found to be nullity; Sushil v. Gobind, (1990) 1 SCC 1938.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Service matters

Ordinarily Supreme Court does not interfere in punishment in service matters. But in exceptional cases it may do so; Kurtar Singh v. State of Punjab, (1991) 2 SCC 635.

Effect

Dismissal of a special leave petition in limine does not preclude Supreme Court considering the point in subsequent appeal; Scientific Adviser v. Daniel, (1990) Supp SCC 374.

Relief

Apart from the merits of an appeal, the Supreme Court would expunge derogatory remarks, or aspersions made in a High Court judgment against a party or lawyer, which are not absolutely necessary for the decision of the case before the Court, and that, without giving him an opportunity of explaining this conduct; Mathur v. Pramod, (1990) 1 UJSC 595.

137. Review of judgments or orders by the Supreme Court.—Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament or any rules made under article 145, the Supreme Court shall have power to review any judgment pronounced or order made by it.

Notes on Article 137Scope

Writ petition and Civil Appeal were dismissed by the Supreme Court—Review petition was also dismissed. Matter was disposed of after a consideration of all points. Another petition (virtually by way of second review) raising same contentions is not maintainable; J Ranga Swamy v. Government of Andhra Pradesh, AIR 1990 SC 535.

Application for review

Where the previous order was not on adjudicatory one but was disposed of on concession and the party subsequently applies for modification of that order the application is not one for review; Sudarshan Trading Co. v. P.P. Saffiya, AIR 1991 SC 716, paragraph 8.

Grounds

Article 137 does not limit the grounds for review. However, these may be limited by—

- (a) Parliamentary legislation, or
- (b) Rules made by the Supreme Court.

138. Enlargement of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court.—(1) The Supreme Court shall have such further jurisdiction and powers with respect to any of the matters in the Union List as Parliament may by law confer.

(2) The Supreme Court shall have such further jurisdiction and powers with respect to any matter as the Government of India and the Government of any State may by special agreement confer, if Parliament by law provides for the exercise of such jurisdiction and powers by the Supreme Court.

139. Conferment on the Supreme Court of powers to issue certain writs.—Parliament may by law confer on the Supreme Court power to issue directions, orders, or writs, including writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari, or any of them, for any purposes other than those mentioned in clause (2) of article 32.

¹[139A. Transfer of certain cases.—²(1) Where cases involving the same or substantially the same questions of law are pending before the Supreme Court and one or more High Courts or before two or more High Courts and the Supreme Court is satisfied on its own motion or on an application made by the Attorney-General of India or by a party to any such case that such questions are substantial questions of general importance, the Supreme Court may withdraw the case or cases pending before the High Court or the High Courts and dispose of all the cases itself:

Provided that the Supreme Court may after determining the said questions of law return any case so withdrawn together with a copy of its judgment on such questions to the High Court from which the case has been withdrawn, and the High Court shall on receipt thereof, proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with such judgment.]

(2) The Supreme Court may, if it deems it expedient so to do for the ends of justice, transfer any, appeal or other proceedings pending before any High Court to any other High Court.]

140. Ancillary powers of Supreme Court.—Parliament may by law make provision for conferring upon the Supreme Court such supplemental powers not inconsistent with any of the provisions of this Constitution as may appear to be necessary or desirable for the purpose of enabling the court more effectively to exercise the jurisdiction conferred upon it by or under this Constitution.

141. Law declared by Supreme Court to be binding on all courts.—The law declared by the Supreme Court shall be binding on all courts within the territory of India.

Notes on Article 141

Scope

As to the scope of article 141, the most important judgments of the Supreme Court are the following:—

- (i) Moti Ram v. N.E.F.Rly., AIR 1964 SC 600. (As to the effect of obiter dicta)
- (ii) Gasket Radiators v. E.S.I.C., (1985) 1 SCC 68. (Meaning of the expression on law declared).
- (iii) Asst. Collector v. Dunlop., (1985) 1 SCC 260. (As to the effect of the expression binding).
- (iv) Star Co. v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 179. (Binding nature of judgment).
- (v) Gourya v. Thakur, AIR 1986 SC 1140. (Binding nature).

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 24 (w.e.f. 1-8-1979).
 2. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 21, for clause (1) (w.e.f. 1-8-1979).
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

(vi) Synthetics & Chemicals Ltd. v. State of U.P., (1990) 1 SCC 109, paragraphs 3, 74, 80, 82. (Social changes and Supreme Court decisions).

This article 141 recognises the role of the Supreme Court to alter the law, in course of its function to interpret legislation, in order to bring the law in harmony with social changes; P.L.O. Corp. v. Labour Court, (1990) 3 SCC 632 (CB), paragraphs 59, 81.

Law declared

It is immaterial that the conclusion of the majority was arrived at by the several judges on different grounds or different processes of reasoning; Ramesh v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 560, paragraph 20.

What is binding is the ratio of the decision and not any finding on facts, or the opinion of the court on any question which was not required to be decided in a particular case, it is the principle found out upon a reading of the judgment as a whole in the light of the questions before the court, and not particular words or sentences; C.I.T. v. S.E.W., AIR 1993 SC 43, paragraph 39.

The later court would not be bound by those reasons or propositions which were not necessary for deciding the previous case; conversely, the later court should not unnecessarily expand the scope and authority of the precedent; Krishan v. Union of India, (1990) 4 SCC 207 (CB), paragraphs 19, 20.

There is no law declared where the court gives no reasons; Supreme Court Employees v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 334, paragraph 22.

Retrospective Operation

Where the Supreme Court has expressly made its ratio prospective, the High Court cannot give it retrospective operation; F.C.J. v. Narendra, (1993) 1 UJSC 572, paragraph 7.

Binding

Where a State Government is a party and is duly represented before the Supreme court, the decision of the Court declaring a State Act to be ultra vires shall be binding on that State Government. Even a notice, as required by the Civil Procedure Code, was not served upon the Advocate General; State of Gujarat v. Kasturchand, AIR 1991 SC 695.

Reconsideration

The Court would not depart from a long-settled interpretation solely depending upon the facts of a given case. Where, however, there has been no uniformity in previous decisions, the later court would examine the principle in the light of the scheme of the Constitution and the materials placed before it; Indra v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 477, paragraph 26A.

A Division Bench of two Judges cannot overturn the decision of another Bench of two Judges. If they are unable to agree, they should refer it to a larger Bench; Sunderjas v. Collector, AIR 1990 SC 261, paragraphs 16-20.

In reviewing an earlier decision, however, the Court would take into consideration the fact that the said decision has been followed in a large number of cases. It would be particularly slow to disturb a unanimous decision of a Bench of five Judges.

Where, in a subsequent petition under article 32, the Supreme Court directs the petitioner to go before the High Court and directs the High Court to reconsider the matter, the High Court would not be fettered by the previous judgment of the High Court; Commissioner of Police v. Jagadiswaranada, AIR 1991 Cal 263, paragraph 9.

The Supreme Court in one case directed the State Government to treat the complaint as an industrial dispute and to refer the same under section 10(1) (d) of Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 to the Industrial Tribunal; H.R. Adanthaya v. Sandoz, JT (1994) 5 SC 176.

In another case the Supreme Court awarded compensation to the wife (appellant) whose husband was living with another woman though there was no proof of a second marriage; Laxmi Devi v. Saryu Narain, (1994) 5 SC 317.

142. Enforcement of decrees and orders of Supreme Court and orders as to discovery, etc.—(1) The Supreme Court in the exercise of its jurisdiction may pass such decree or make such order as is necessary for doing complete justice in any cause or matter pending before, it, and any decree so passed or order so made shall be enforceable throughout the territory of India in such manner as may be prescribed by or under any law made by Parliament and, until provision in that behalf is so made, in such manner as the President may by order¹ prescribe.

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made in this behalf by Parliament, the Supreme Court shall, as respects the whole of the territory of India, have all and every power to make any order for the purpose of securing the attendance of any person, the discovery of production of any documents, or the investigation or punishment of any contempt of itself.

Notes on article 142

Supreme Court can extend it the benefit of its judgment to a case not in appeal; Manganese Ore v. Chande, AIR 1991 SC 520 paragraph 19; Roshan v. S.R.C. Mills, AIR 1990 SC 1881.

143. Power of President to consult Supreme Court.—(1) If at any time it appears to the President that a question of law or fact has arisen or is likely to arise, which is of such a nature and of such public importance that it is expedient to obtain the opinion of the Supreme Court upon, it, he may refer the question to that court for consideration and the court may, after such hearing as it thinks fit, report to the President its opinion thereon.

(2) The President may notwithstanding anything in²[]the proviso to article 131, refer a dispute of the kind mentioned in the³[said proviso] to the Supreme Court for opinion and the Supreme Court shall, after such hearing as it thinks fit, report to the President its opinion thereon.

2. The words, brackets and figure "clause (i) of" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

3. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh-Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for "said clause".

144. Civil and judicial authorities to act in aid of the Supreme Court.—All authorities, civil and judicial, in the territory of India shall act in aid of the Supreme Court.

Notes on article 144

Supreme Court may award exemplary costs against defaulting Government; Dinesh v. Motilal College, (1990) 4 SCC 627, paragraph 6.

[144A.] Special provisions as to disposal of questions relating to constitutional validity of laws.— [Rep. by the Constitution (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec. 5 (w.e.f. 13-4-1978)].

145. Rules of Court, etc.—(1) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, the Supreme Court may from time to time, with the approval of the President, make rules for regulating generally the practice and procedure of the court including—

- (a) rules as to the persons practising before the court;
 - (b) rules as to the procedure for hearing appeals and other matters pertaining to appeals including the time within which appeals to the court are to be entered;
 - (c) rules as to the proceedings in the court for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III;
 - ²[(cc) rules as to the proceedings in the court under ³[article 139A];]
 - (d) rules as to the entertainment of appeals under sub-clause (c) of clause (1) of article 134;
 - (e) rules as to the conditions subject to which any judgement pronounced or order made by the court may be reviewed and the procedure for such review including the time within which applications to the court for such review are to be entered;
 - (f) rules as to the costs of and incidental to any proceedings in the court and as to the fees to be charged in respect of proceedings therein;
 - (g) rules as to the granting of bail;
 - (h) rules as to stay to proceedings;
 - (i) rules providing for the summary determination of any appeal which appears to the court to be frivolous or vexatious or brought for the purpose of delay;
 - (j) rules as to the procedure for inquiries referred to in clause (l) of article 317.
- (2) Subject to the ⁴[provisions of ⁵[] clause (3)], rules made under this article may fix the minimum number of Judges who are to sit for any purpose, and may provide for the powers of single Judges and Division Courts.

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 25 (w.e.f. 1-2-1977).
2. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 26 (w.e.f. 1-2-1977).
3. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec. 6, for "articles 131A and 139A" (w.e.f. 13-4-1978).
4. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 26, for "provisions of clause (3)" (w.e.f. 1-2-1977).
5. Certain words, figures and letters omitted by the Constitution (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec. 6 (w.e.f. 13-4-1978).

(3) ¹ [²[*] The minimum number] of Judges who are to sit for the purpose of deciding any case involving a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution or for the purpose of hearing any reference under article 143 shall be five:

Provided that, where the court hearing an appeal under any of the provisions of this chapter other than article 132 consists of less than five Judges and in the course of the hearing of the appeal the court is satisfied that the appeal involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution of determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the appeal, such court shall refer the question for opinion to a court constituted as required by this clause for the purpose of deciding any case involving such a question and shall on receipt of the opinion dispose of the appeal in conformity with such opinion.

(4) No judgment shall be delivered by the Supreme Court save in open court, and no report shall be made under article 143 save in accordance with an opinion also delivered in open court.

(5) No judgment and no such opinion shall be delivered by the Supreme Court save with the concurrence of a majority of the Judges present at the hearing of the case, but nothing in this clause shall be deemed to prevent a Judge who does not concur from delivering a dissenting judgment or opinion.

146. Officers and servants and the expenses of the Supreme Court.—(1) Appointments of officers and servants of the Supreme Court shall be made by the Chief Justice of India or such other Judge or officer of the court as he may direct:

Provided that the President may by rule require that in such cases as may be specified in the rule, no person not already attached to the court shall be appointed to any office connected with the court, save after consultation with the Union Public Service Commission.

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, the conditions of service of officers and servants of the Supreme Court shall be such as may be prescribed by rules made by the Chief Justice of India or by some other Judge or officer of the court authorised by the Chief Justice of India to make rules for the purpose:

Provided that the rules made under this clause shall, so far as they relate to salaries, allowances, leave or pensions, require the approval of the President.

(3) The administrative expenses of the Supreme Court, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the court, shall be charged upon the Consolidated Fund of India, and any fees or other money taken by the court shall form part of that Fund.

Power under article 146(2) is of legislative nature: Supreme Court Employees Welfare Association v. Union of India, AIR 1980 SC 334, paragraph 46.

147. Interpretation.—In this Chapter and in chapter V of Part VI, references to any substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution shall be construed as including references to any substantial question of law as to the interpretation of the Government of India Act, 1935 (including any enactment amending or supplementing that Act), or of any Order in Council or order made thereunder, or of the Indian Independence Act, 1947, or of any order made thereunder.

CHAPTER V—COMPTROLLER AND AUDITOR-GENERAL OF INDIA

148. Comptroller and Auditor-General of India.—(1) There shall be a Comptroller and Auditor-General of India who shall be appointed by the President by warrant under his hand and seal and shall only be removed from office in like manner and on the like grounds as a Judge of the Supreme Court.

(2) Every person appointed to be the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India shall, before he enters upon his office, make and subscribe before the President, or some person appointed in that behalf by him, an oath or affirmation according to the form set out for the purpose in the Third Schedule.

(3) The salary and other conditions of service of the Comptroller and Auditor-General shall be such as may be determined by Parliament by law and, until they are so determined, shall be as specified in the Second Schedule:

Provided that neither the salary of a Comptroller and Auditor-General nor his rights in respect of leave of absence, pension or age of retirement shall be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment.

(4) The Comptroller and Auditor-General shall not be eligible for further office either under the Government of India or under the Government of any State after he has ceased to hold his office.

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and of any law made by Parliament, the conditions of service of persons serving in the Indian Audit and Accounts Department and the administrative powers of the Comptroller and Auditor-General shall be such as may be prescribed by rules made by the President after consultation with the Comptroller and Auditor-General.

(6) The administrative expenses of the office of the Comptroller and Auditor-General, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of persons serving in that office, shall be charged upon the Consolidated Fund of India.

149. ¹[150. Form of accounts of the Union and of the States.—The accounts of the Union and of the States shall be kept in such form as the President may, ²[on the advice of] the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, prescribe.]

1. Sub. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 27, for article 150 (w.e.f. 1-4-1977).

PART VI

THE STATES¹[]

CHAPTER I—GENERAL

152. Definition.— In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression “State”² [does not include the State of Jammu and Kashmir].

CHAPTER II—THE EXECUTIVE

The Governor

153. Governors of States.— There shall be a Governor for each State:
³ [Provided that nothing in this article shall prevent the appointment of the same person as Governor for two or more States.]

154. Executive power of State.—(1) The executive power of the State shall be vested in the Governor and shall be exercised by him either directly or through officers subordinate to him in accordance with this Constitution.

(2) Nothing in this article shall—

- be deemed to transfer to the Governor any function conferred by any existing law on any other authority; or
- prevent Parliament or the Legislature of the State conferring by law functions on any authority subordinate to the Governor.

155. Appointment of Governor.—The Governor of a State shall be appointed by the President by warrant under his hand and seal.

156. Term of office of Governor.—(1) The Governor shall hold office during the pleasure of the President.

(2) The Governor may, by writing under his hand addressed to the President, resign his office.

(3) Subject to the foregoing provisions of this article, a Governor shall hold office for a term of five years from the date on which he enters upon his office:

Provided that a Governor shall, notwithstanding the expiration of his term, continue to hold office until his successor enters upon his office.

157. Qualifications for appointment as Governor.—No person shall be eligible for appointment as Governor unless he is a citizen of India and has completed the age of thirty-five years.

1. The words ‘IN PART A OF THE FIRST SCHEDULE’ omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for “means a State specified in Part A of the First Schedule”.
3. Added by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 6.

158. Conditions of Governor's office.—(1) The Governor shall not be a member of either House of Parliament or of a House of the Legislature of any State specified in the First Schedule, and if a member of either House of Parliament or of a House of the Legislature of any such State be appointed Governor, he shall be deemed to have vacated his seat in that House on the date on which he enters upon his office as Governor.

(2) The Governor shall not hold any other office of profit.

(3) The Governor shall be entitled without payment of rent to the use of his official residences and shall be also entitled to such emoluments, allowances and privileges as may be determined by Parliament by law and, until provision in that behalf is so made, such emoluments, allowances and privileges as are specified in the Second Schedule.

¹[(3A) Where the same person is appointed as Governor of two or more States, the emoluments and allowances payable to the Governor shall be allocated among the States in such proportion as the President may by order determine.]

(4) The emoluments and allowances of the Governor shall not be diminished during his term of office.

159. Oath or affirmation by the Governor.—Every Governor and every person discharging the functions of the Governor shall, before entering upon his office, make and subscribe in the presence of the Chief Justice of the High Court exercising jurisdiction in relation to the State, or, in his absence, the seniormost Judge of that Court available, an oath or affirmation in the following form, that is to say—

"I, A.B., do swear in the name of God that I will faithfully execute the office of Governor (or discharge the functions of the Governor) of (name of the State) and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the Constitution and the law and that I will devote myself to the service and well-being of the people of (name of the State)".

160. Discharge of the functions of the Governor in certain contingencies.—The President may make such provision as he thinks fit for the discharge of the functions of the Governor of a State in any contingency not provided for in this Chapter.

161. Power of Governor to grant pardons, etc., and to suspend, remit or commute sentences in certain cases.—The Governor of a State shall have the power to grant pardons, reprieves, respites or remissions of punishment or to suspend, remit or commute the sentence of any person convicted of any offence against any law relating to a matter to which the executive power of the State extends.

Notes on article 161

The Power under article 161 is a statutory power which cannot be fettered by position such as sections 432, 433, 433A IPC 1960; State of Punjab v. Jaginder, AIR 1990 SC 1396.

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 7.

162. Extent of executive power of State.—Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, the executive power of a State shall extend to the matters with respect to which the Legislature of the State has power to make laws:

Provided that in any matter with respect to which the Legislature of a State and Parliament have power to make laws, the executive power of the State shall be subject to, and limited by, the executive power expressly conferred by this Constitution or by any law made by Parliament upon the Union or authorities thereof.

Notes on article 162

Since the executive power of the State Executive is co-extensive with that of the State Legislature, it follows that the State Executive may make rules regulating any matter within the legislative competence of the State Legislature, without prior legislative authority, except where a law is required because the Rules so framed would violate any provision of the Constitution which requires legislation, e.g. Articles 265, 302; Pratibha v. State, AIR 1991 Kant 205, paragraph 10.

In general, the Court, would not exercise its power of judicial review to interfere with a policy made by the Government in exercise of its power under Article 162, particularly where it involves technical, scientific or economic expertise; Sitaram v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1277, paragraph 56.

In case of any deviation, particularly when it has been done repeatedly, the presumption would be that the Authority has exercised his power of relaxation or the policy has been changed (without formal amendment), and the later entrants cannot claim the benefit of the original instructions; Direct Results v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1990 SC 1607 (CB), paragraph 44.

Council of Minister

163. Council of Ministers to aid and advise Governor.—(1) There shall be a Council of Ministers with the Chief Minister at the head to aid and advise the Governor in the exercise of his function except in so far as he is by or under this Constitution required to exercise his functions or any of them in his discretion.

(2) If any question arises whether any matter is or is not a matter as respects which the Governor is by or under this Constitution required to act in his discretion, the decision of the Governor in his discretion shall be final, and the validity of anything done by the Governor shall not be called in question on the ground that he ought or ought not to have acted in his discretion.

(3) The question whether any, and if so what, advice was tendered by Ministers to the Governor shall not be inquired into any court.

Notes on article 163

Where an entry in the State list, is expressly made subject to Parliamentary legislation (State list entry 23) the State ceases to have both legislative and executive power in respect of the matter to which the Parliamentary law relates; Bharat Coal v. State of Bihar, (1990) 4 SCC 557.

164. Other provisions as to Ministers.—(1) The Chief Minister shall be appointed by the Governor and the other Ministers shall be appointed by the Governor on the advice of the Chief Minister, and the Ministers shall hold office during the pleasure of the Governor:

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Provided that in the States of Bihar, Madhya Pradesh and Orissa, there shall be a Minister in charge of tribal welfare who may in addition be in charge of the welfare of the Schedule Castes and backward classes or any other work.

(2) The Council of Ministers shall be collectively responsible to the Legislative Assembly of the State..

(3) Before a Minister enters upon his office, the Governor shall administer to him the oaths of office and of secrecy according to the forms set out for the purpose in the Third Schedule.

(4) A Minister who for any period of six consecutive months is not a member of the Legislature of the State shall at the expiration of that period cease to be a Minister.

(5) The salaries and allowances of Ministers shall be such as the Legislature of the State may from time to time by law determine and, until the Legislature of the State so determines, shall be as specified in the Second Schedule.

The Advocate-General for the State

165. Advocate-General for the State.—(1) The Governor of each State shall appoint a person who is qualified to be appointed a Judge of a High Court to be Advocate-General for the State.

(2) It shall be the duty of the Advocate-General to give advice to the Government of the State upon such legal matters and to perform such other duties of a legal character, as may from time to time be referred or assigned to him by the Governor, and to discharge the functions conferred on him by or under the Constitution or any other law for the time being in force.

(3) The Advocate-General shall hold office during the pleasure of the Governor and shall receive such remuneration as the Governor may determine.

Notes on Article 165

While ordinarily a concession made by a Government pleader in a trial court does not find the Government unless it is in writing on instruction from a responsible officer, that principle would not apply to a concession made by the Advocate-General because he is assumed to make a statement with responsibility; Periyar v. State of Kerala, AIR 1990 SC 2192, paragraph 9.

Conduct of Government Business

166. Conduct of business of the Government of a State.—(1) All executive action of the Government of a State shall be expressed to be taken in the name of the Governor.

(2) Orders and other instruments made and executed in the name of the Governor shall be authenticated in such manner as may be specified in rules to be made by the Governor, and the validity of an order or instruments which is so authenticated shall not be called in question on the ground that it is not an order or instrument made or executed by the Governor.

(3) The Governor shall make rules for the more convenient transaction of the business of the Government of the State, and for the allocation among Ministers of the said business in so far as it is not business with respect to which the Governor is by or under this Constitution required to act in his discretion.

167. Duties of Chief Minister as respects the furnishing of information to Governor, etc.—It shall be duty of the Chief Minister of each State—

- (a) to communicate to the Governor of the State all decisions of the Council of Ministers relating to the administration of the affairs of the State and proposals for legislation;
- (b) to furnish such information relating to the administration of the affairs of the State and proposals for legislation as the Governor may call for; and
- (c) if the Governor so requires, to submit for the consideration of the Council of Ministers any matter on which a decision has been taken by a Minister but which has not been considered by the Council.'

Notes on articles 162 to 167

By article 162, the executive power of the State is made co-extensive with the legislative power of the State, as to which see article 246(2) and 246(3). This power, however, is subject to the limitation contained in the proviso to article 162. See the undermentioned cases:

Of course, executive power cannot be so exercised as to conflict with a law.

- (i) State of A.P. v. Lavu, AIR 1971 SC 2560.
- (ii) State of M.P. v. Jain, AIR 1981 SC 2045.

Article 163 (Council of Ministers in the State) follows to a large extent article 74 (Council of Ministers in the Union), but, unlike article 74(1) as amended, article 163 does not expressly require the Governor to accept the Cabinet's advice. However, (except where the Governor is to exercise his functions in his discretion), the Governor has to accept the advice of the State Council of Ministers, as per the rulings in (i) Sanjeevi v. State of Madras, AIR 1970 SC 1102 and (ii) U.P. Public Service Commission v. Suresh, AIR 1987 SC 1953.

Article 166, though concerned primarily with conduct of business, has considerable constitutional importance. The principle that all executive action must be expressed to be taken in the Governor's name, seems to carry the implication that a decision of the Council of Ministers does not become an order of the State Government until it is sent out as the Governor's order; State of Kerala v. Lakshmiatty, A.I.R. 1987 SC 331, paragraph 40; unless it is a purely internal matter for noting on the file; Bachihittar v. State of Punjab, AIR 1963 SC 395.

- (a) prorogue the House or either House;
- (b) dissolve the Legislative Assembly.]

Notes on Article 174

Dissolution of Assembly

On the 7th December, 1988, the High Court of Gauhati pronounced an important judgement in the case relating to dissolution of the Nagaland Assembly and held that the report of the Governor recommending dissolution of the Assembly was not acceptable. The writ petition had been filed by Mr. Vamuzo, leader of the Joint Regional Legislative Party, challenging the validity of the Presidential Proclamation of 17th August, 1988 dissolving the Assembly and taking over the government of the State. Contention of the petitioner was that the petitioner was enjoying support of the majority of 35 members in the 60 members House, and should have been invited to form the Ministry after the split in the Congress-I. His grievance was that in spite of the Speaker's decision that it was a split, the Governor took into account extraneous and irrelevant aspects. Three points were submitted by the Attorney-General opposing the writ petition; First, the President acted on the aid and advice of the Council of Ministers and no court could determine what information was made available to the President under article 74(2) of the Constitution; Secondly, the Governor was protected under article 361 of the Constitution; Thirdly, as the proclamation had been approved by Parliament, no relief could be granted to the petitioner. It appears that the second contention was not approved by the Division Bench (Chief Justice A. Raghuvir and Mr. Justice B.L. Hansaria), in view of the allegation that the Governor had acted on irrelevant material. In a sense, this judgment qualifies article 361, by holding that action of the Governor based on collateral material is justiciable, notwithstanding the wide protection given by article 361.

There seems to have been a difference of opinion amongst the two Judges on the question of material supporting the President's satisfaction. The Chief Justice accepted the Attorney-General's contention, to the extent that the court could not call for the material on the basis of which the President had formed his satisfaction. But, according to Mr. Justice Hansaria, the proclamation could not have been issued within the parameters of law, relying solely on the report of the Governor, in as much as a very relevant material had not found place in the report. As such, the satisfaction of the President arrived at would be a 'fraud on the power'. Political trick could not bar the court from the judicability, the judge observed.

Notes on Article 191

An 'office of profit' is an office which is capable of yielding a profit or pecuniary gain. Contrary is the case of an honorary Chairman of a Board of Election, or the office of an M.L.A.; Ramakrishna v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1993 Kant 54, paragraph 25.

Breach of oath by a member or minister is not a ground of disqualification under this article and no writ of Quo warranto can be issued to remove him on this ground; Hardwari v. Bhajan, AIR 1993 P&H 3, paragraphs 8, 9 and 16.

Disqualification of a member of the State Legislature was ordered by the Speaker, but the decision was by the High Court.

The Speaker disregarded the stay order. It was held that the High Court was not justified in subsequently upholding the Speaker's decision; Ravij Naik v. Union of India, JT (1994) 1 SC 551.

(2) Before giving any decision on any such question, the Governor shall obtain the opinion of the Election Commission and shall act according to such opinion.]

193. Penalty for sitting and voting before making oath or affirmation under article 188 or when not qualified or when disqualified.—If a person sits or votes as a member of the Legislative Assembly or the Legislative Council of a State before he has complied with the requirements of article 188, or when he knows that he is not qualified or that he is disqualified for membership thereof, or that he is prohibited from so doing by the provisions of any law made by Parliament or the Legislature of the State, he shall be liable in respect of each day on which he so sits or votes to a penalty of five hundred rupees to be recovered as a debt due to the State.

Powers, Privileges and Immunities of State Legislatures and their Members

194. Powers, privileges, etc., to the Houses of Legislatures and of the members and committees thereof.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and to the rules and standing orders regulating the procedure of the Legislature, there shall be freedom of speech in the Legislature of every State.

(2) No member of the Legislature of a State shall be liable to any proceedings in any court in respect of anything said or any vote given by him in the Legislature or any committee thereof, and no person shall be so liable in respect of the publication by or under the authority of a House of such a Legislature of any report, paper, votes or proceedings.

(3) In other respects, the powers, privileges and Immunities of a House of the Legislature of a State, and of the members and the committees of a House of such Legislature, shall be such as may from time to time be defined by the Legislature by law, and, until

The provisions of tenth schedule, paragraph 2 are not violative of article 105(1) or 194(1); Kihoto v. Zachillhu, AIR 1993 SC 412 (CB).

195. Salaries and allowances of members.—Members of the Legislative Assembly and the Legislative Council of a State shall be entitled to receive such salaries and allowances as may from time to time be determined by the Legislature of the State by law and, until provision in that respect is made, salaries and allowances at such rates and upon such conditions as were immediately before the commencement of this Constitution applicable in the case of members of the Legislative Assembly of the corresponding province.

(2) Subject to the provisions of articles 197 and 198, a Bill shall not be deemed to have been passed by the Houses of the Legislature of a State having a Legislative Council unless it has been agreed to by both Houses, either without amendment or with such amendments only as are agreed to by both Houses.

(a) the bill is rejected by the Council ; or

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 26, for certain words (w.e.f. 20-6-1976).

- (b) more than three months elapse from the date on which the Bill is laid before the Council without the Bill being passed by it; or
- (c) the Bill is passed by the Council with amendments to which the Legislative Assembly does not agree, the Legislative Assembly may, subject to the rules regulating its procedure, pass the Bill again in the same or in any subsequent session with or without such amendments, if any, as have been made, suggested or agreed to by the Legislative Council and then transmit the Bill as so passed to the Legislative Council.

(2) If after a Bill has been so passed for the second time by the Legislative Assembly and transmitted to the Legislative Council—the Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by the Houses of the Legislature of the State in the form in which it was passed by the Legislative Assembly for the second time with such amendments, if any, as have been made or suggested by the Legislative Council and agreed to by the Legislative Assembly.

(3) Nothing in this article shall apply to a Money Bill.

198. Special procedure in respect of Money Bills.—(1) A Money Bill shall not be introduced in a Legislative Council.

(2) After a Money Bill has been passed by the Legislative Assembly of a State having a Legislative Council, it shall be transmitted to the Legislative Council for its recommendations, and the Legislative Council shall within a period of fourteen days from the date of its receipt of the Bill return the Bill to the Legislative Assembly with its recommendations, and the Legislative Assembly may thereupon either accept or reject all or any of the recommendations of the Legislative Council.

(3) If the Legislative Assembly accepts any of the recommendations of the Legislative Council, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses with the amendments recommended by the Legislative Council and accepted by the Legislative Assembly.

(4) If the Legislative Assembly does not accept any of the recommendations of the Legislative Council, the Money Bill shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses in the form in which it was passed by the Legislative Assembly without any of the amendments recommended by the Legislative Council.

(5) If a Money Bill passed by the Legislative Assembly and transmitted to the Legislative Council for its recommendations is not returned to the Legislative Assembly within the said period of fourteen days, it shall be deemed to have been passed by both Houses at the expiration of the said period in the form in which it was passed by the Legislative Assembly.

199. Definition of "Money Bills."—(1) For the purposes of this chapter, a Bill shall be deemed to be a Money Bill if it contains only provisions dealing with all or any of the following matters, namely:—

- (a) the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax;
- (b) the regulation of the borrowing of money or the giving on any guarantee by the State, or the amendment of the law with respect to any financial obligations undertaken or to be undertaken by the State;
- (c) the custody of the Consolidated Fund or the Contingency Fund of the State, the payment of moneys into or the withdrawal of moneys from any such Fund;
- (d) the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State;
- (e) the declaring of any expenditure to be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of the State, or the increasing of the amount of any such expenditure;
- (f) the receipt of money on account of the Consolidated Fund of the State or the public account or the State or the custody or issue of such money; or
- (g) any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (f).

(2) A Bill shall not be deemed to be a Money Bill by reason only that it provides for the imposition of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment of fees for licences or fees for services rendered, or by reason that it provides for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes.

(3) If any question arises whether a Bill introduced in the Legislature of a State which has a Legislative Council is a Money Bill or not, the decision of the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly of such State thereon shall be final.

(4) There shall be endorsed on every Money Bill when it is transmitted to the Legislative Council under article 198, and when it is presented to the Governor for assent under article 200, the certificate of the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly signed by him that it is a Money Bill.

200. Assent to Bills.—When a Bill has been passed by the Legislative Assembly of a State or, in the case of a State having a Legislative Council, has been passed by both Houses of the Legislature of the State, it shall be presented to the Governor and the Governor shall declare either that he assents to the Bill or that he withholds assent therefrom or that he reserves the Bill for the consideration of the President:

Provided that the Governor may, as soon as possible after the presentation to him of the Bill for assent, return the bill if it is not a Money Bill together with a message requesting that the House or Houses will reconsider the Bill or any specified provisions thereof and, in particular, will consider the desirability of introducing any such amendments as he may recommend in his message and, when a Bill is so returned, the House or Houses shall reconsider the Bill accordingly, and if the Bill is passed again by the House or Houses with or without amendment and presented to the Governor for assent, the Governor shall not withhold assent therefrom:

Provided further that the Governor shall not assent to, but shall reserve for the consideration of the President, any Bill which in the opinion of the Governor would, if it became law, so derogate from the powers of the High Court as to endanger the position which that Court is by this Constitution designed to fill.

Notes on Article 200Governor's assent to Bills

There are four courses open to a Governor to whom a Bill passed by the State Legislature is presented for assent. The Governor—

- (i) assents, or
- (ii) withdraws assent, or
- (iii) reserves the Bill for the consideration of the President, or
- (iv) returns the Bill (If not a Money Bill), for re-consideration, with his message. This is to be done "as soon as possible after the presentation" of the Bill (First Proviso).

The Governor's action in this regard has been held to be non-justiciable. See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Purusotham v. State of Kerala, AIR 1962 SC 694.
- (ii) Hoechst v. State of Bihar, AIR 1983 SC 1019.
- (iii) Bharat Seva Asram v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1987 SC 494.

201. Bills reserved for consideration.—When a Bill is reserved by a Governor for the consideration of the President, the President shall declare that he assents to the Bill or that he withdraws assent therefrom :

Provided that, where the Bill is not a Money Bill, the President may direct the Governor to return the Bill to the House or, as the case may be, the Houses of the Legislature of the State together with such a message as is mentioned in the first proviso to article 200 and, when a Bill is so returned, the House or Houses shall reconsider it accordingly within a period of six months from the date of receipt of such message and, if it is again passed by the House or Houses with or without amendment, it shall be presented again to the President for his consideration.

Procedure in Financial Matters

202. Annual financial statement.—(1) The Governor shall in respect of every financial year cause to be laid before the House or Houses of the Legislature of the State a statement of the estimated receipts and expenditure of the State for that year, in this Part referred to as the "annual financial statement."

(2) The estimates of expenditure embodied in the annual financial statement shall show separately

- (a) the sums required to meet expenditure described by this Constitution as expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of the State; and
- (b) the sums required to meet other expenditure proposed to be made from the Consolidated Fund of the State; and shall distinguish expenditure on revenue account from other expenditure.

(3) The following expenditure shall be expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of each State

- (a) the emoluments and allowances of the Governor and other expenditure relating to his office;
- (b) the salaries and allowances of the Speaker and the Deputy Speaker of the Legislative Assembly and, in the case of State having a Legislative Council, also of the Chairman and the Deputy Chairman of the Legislative Council;

- (c) debt charges for which the State is liable including interest, sinking fund charges and redemption charges, and other expenditure relating to the raising of loans and the service and redemption of debt;
- (d) expenditure in respect of the salaries and allowances of Judges of any High Court;
- (e) any sums required to satisfy any judgment, decree or award of any court or arbitral tribunal;
- (f) any other expenditure declared by this Constitution, or by the Legislature of the State by law, to be so charged.

203. Procedure in Legislature with respect to estimates.—(1) So much of the estimates as relates to expenditure charged upon the Consolidated Fund of a State shall not be submitted to the vote of the Legislative Assembly, but nothing in this clause shall be construed as preventing the discussion in the Legislature of any of those estimates.

(2) So much of the said estimates as relates to other expenditure shall be submitted in the form of demands for grants to the Legislative Assembly, and the Legislative Assembly shall have power to assent, or to refuse to assent, to any demand, or to assent to any demand subject to a reduction of the amount specified therein.

(3) No demand for a grant shall be made except on the recommendation of the Governor.

204. Appropriation Bills.—(1) As soon as may be after the grants under article 203 have been made by the Assembly, there shall be introduced a Bill to provide for the appropriation out of the Consolidated Fund of the State of all moneys required to meet—

- (a) the grants so made by the Assembly; and
- (b) the expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of the State but not exceeding in any case the amount shown in the statement previously laid before the House or Houses.

(2) No amendment shall be proposed to any such Bill in the House or either House of the Legislature of the State which will have the effect of varying the amount of altering the destination of any grant so made or of varying the amount of any expenditure charged on the Consolidated Fund of the State, and the decision of the person presiding as to whether an amendment is inadmissible under this clause shall be final.

(3) Subject to the provisions of articles 205 and 206, no money shall be withdrawn from the Consolidated Fund of the State except under appropriation made by law passed in accordance with the provisions of this article.

205. Supplementary, additional or excess grants.—(1) The Governor shall—

(a) if the amount authorised by any law made in accordance with the provisions of article 204 to be expended for a particular service for the current financial year is found to be insufficient for the purposes of that year or when a need has arisen during the current financial year for supplementary or additional expenditure upon some new service not contemplated in the annual financial statement for that year, or

(b) if any money has been spent on any service during a financial year in excess of the amount granted for that service and for that year, cause to be laid before the House or the Houses of the Legislature of the State another statement showing the estimated amount of that expenditure or cause to be presented to the Legislative Assembly of the State a demand for such excess, as the case may be.

(2) The provisions of articles 202, 203 and 204 shall have effect in relation to any such statement and expenditure or demand and also to any law to be made authorising the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State to meet such expenditure or the grant in respect of such demand as they have effect in relation to the annual financial statement and the expenditure mentioned therein or to a demand for a grant and the law to be made for the authorisation of appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State to meet such expenditure or grant.

206. Votes on account, votes of credit and exceptional grants.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this chapter, the Legislative Assembly of a State shall have power—

- (a) to make any grant in advance in respect of the estimated expenditure for a part of any financial year pending the completion of the procedure prescribed in article 203 for the voting of such grant and the passing of the law in accordance with the provisions of article 204 in relation to that expenditure;
- (b) to make a grant for meeting an unexpected demand upon the resources of the State when on account of the magnitude or the indefinite character of the service the demand cannot be stated with the details ordinarily given in an annual financial statement;
- (c) to make an exceptional grant which forms no part of the current service of any financial year, and the Legislature of the State shall have power to authorise by law the withdrawal of moneys from the Consolidated Fund of the State for the purposes for which the said grants are made.

(2) The provisions of articles 203 and 204 shall have effect in relation to the making of any grant under clause (1) and to any law to be made under that clause as they have effect in relation to the making of a grant with regard to any expenditure mentioned in the annual financial statement and the law to be made for the authorisation of appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State to meet such expenditure.

207. Special provisions as to financial Bills.—(1) A Bill or amendment making provision for any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to (f) of clause (1) of article 199 shall not be introduced or moved except on the recommendation of the Governor, and a Bill making such provision shall not be introduced in a Legislative Council:

Provided that no recommendation shall be required under this clause for the moving of an amendment making provision for the reduction or abolition of any tax.

(2) A Bill or amendment shall not be deemed to make provision for any of the matters aforesaid by reason only that it provides for the imposition of fines or other pecuniary penalties, or for the demand or payment of fees for licences or fees for services rendered, or by reason that it provides for the imposition, abolition, remission, alteration or regulation of any tax by any local authority or body for local purposes.

(3) A Bill which, if enacted and brought into operation, would involve expenditure from the Consolidated Fund of a State shall not be passed by a House of the Legislature of the State unless the Governor has recommended to that House the consideration of the Bill.

Procedure Generally

208. Rules of procedure.—(1) A House of the Legislature of a State may make rules for regulating, subject to the provisions of this Constitution, its procedure and the conduct of its business.

(2) Until rules are made under clause (1), the rules of procedure and standing orders in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution with respect to the Legislature for the corresponding province shall have effect in relation to the Legislature of the State subject to such modifications and adaptations as may be made therein by the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly, or the Chairman of the Legislative Council, as the case may be.

(3) In a State having a Legislative Council, the Governor, after consultation with the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly and the Chairman of the Legislative Council, may make rules as to the procedure with respect of communications between the two Houses.

209. Regulation by law of procedure in the Legislature of the State in relation to financial business.—The Legislature of a State may, for the purpose of the timely completion of financial business, regulate by law the procedure of, and the conduct of business in, the House or Houses of the Legislature of the State in relation to any financial matter or to any Bill for the appropriation of moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of the State, and, if and so far as any provision of any law so made is inconsistent with any rule made by the House or either House of the Legislature of the State under clause (1) of article 208 or with any rule or standing order having effect in relation to the Legislature of the State under clause (2) of that article, such provision shall prevail.

210. Language to be used in the Legislature.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in Part XVII, but subject to the provisions of article 348, business in the Legislature of a State shall be transacted in the official language or languages of the State or in Hindi or in English:

Provided that the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly or Chairman of the Legislative Council, or person acting as such, as the case may be, may permit any member who cannot adequately express himself in any of the languages aforesaid to address the House in his mother tongue.

(2) Unless the Legislature of the State by law otherwise provides, this article shall, after the expiration of a period of fifteen years from the commencement of this Constitution, have effect as if the words 'or in English' were omitted therefrom:

[Provided that in relation to the [Legislatures of the States of Himachal Pradesh, Manipur, Meghalaya and Tripura] this clause shall have effect as if for the words 'fifteen years' occurring therein, the words 'twenty-five years' were substituted:]

1. Ins. by the State of Himachal Pradesh Act, 1970 (53 of 1970), sec. 46 (w.e.f. 25-1-1971).
2. Subs. by the North-Eastern Areas (Reorganisation) Act, 1971 (81 of 1971), sec. 71, for "Legislature of the State of Himachal Pradesh" (w.e.f. 21-1-1972).

¹[Provided further that in relation to the ²[Legislature of the States of ³[Arunachal Pradesh, Goa and Mizoram]] this clause shall have effect as if for the words 'fifteen years' occurring therein, the words 'forty years' were substituted.]

211. Restriction on discussion in the Legislature.—No discussion shall take place in the Legislature of a State with respect to the conduct of any Judge of the Supreme Court or of a High Court in the discharge of his duties.

212. Courts not to inquire into proceedings of the Legislature.—(1) The validity of any proceedings in the Legislature of a State shall not be called in question on the ground of any alleged irregularity of procedure.

(2) No officer or member of the Legislature of a State in whom powers are vested by or under this Constitution for regulating procedure or the conduct of business, or for maintaining order, in the Legislature shall be subject to the jurisdiction of any court in respect of the exercise by him of those powers.

Notes on Article 212

Scope

Compare article 212. Article 212 precludes the court from (a) interfering with the presentation of a Bill for assent to the Governor on the ground of non-compliance with the procedure for passing Bills, or from (b) otherwise questioning Bills passed by the House. See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Ramchandra v. A.P. Regional Committee, AIR 1965 AP 305.
- (ii) State of Bihar v. Kameshwar, AIR 1952 SC 252.
- (iii) Indira v. Rajindrain, AIR 1975 SC 2299.
- (iv) Jai Singh v. State of Haryana, AIR 1970 P & H 379.

Proceedings inside the legislature can not be called into question on the ground that they have not been carried on in accordance with the rules of business: Kihota v. Zachillhu, AIR 1993 SC 412.

Defects of Competence

Of course, want of legislature competence is not cured by article 212: (i) Sharma v. Sri Krishna (II), AIR 1960 SC 1186; (ii) State v. Sudarsan, AIR 1984 Ker 1.

CHAPTER IV—LEGISLATIVE POWER OF THE GOVERNOR

213. Power of Governor to promulgate Ordinances during recess of Legislature.—(1) If at any time, except when the Legislative Assembly of a State is in

1. Ins. by the State of Mizoram Act, 1986 (34 of 1986), sec. 39 (w.e.f. 20-2-1987).
2. Subs. by the State of Arunachal Pradesh Act, 1986 (69 of 1986), sec. 42, for "Legislature of the State of Mizoram" (w.e.f. 20-2-1987).
3. Subs. by the Goa, Daman and Diu Reorganisation Act, 1987 (18 of 1987), sec. 63 for "Arunachal Pradesh and Mizoram" (w.e.f. 30-5-1987).

session, or where there is a Legislative Council in, a State, except when both Houses of the Legislature are in session, the Governor is satisfied that circumstances exist which render it necessary for him to take immediate action, he may promulgate such Ordinances as the circumstances appear to him to require :

Provided that the Governor shall not, without instructions from the President, promulgate any such Ordinance if—

- (a) a Bill containing the same provisions would under this Constitution have required the previous sanction of the President for the introduction thereof into the Legislature; or
- (b) he would have deemed it necessary to reserve a Bill containing the same provisions for the consideration of the President; or
- (c) an Act of the Legislature of the State containing the same provisions would under this Constitution have been invalid unless, having been reserved for the consideration of the President, it had received the assent of the President.

(2) An Ordinance promulgated under this article shall have the same force and effect as an Act of the Legislature of the State assented to by the Governor, but every such Ordinance—

- (a) shall be laid before the Legislative Assembly of the State, or where there is a Legislative Council in the State, before both the Houses, and shall cease to operate at the expiration of six weeks from the reassembly of the Legislature, or if before the expiration of that period a resolution disapproving it is passed by the Legislative Assembly and agreed to by the Legislative Council, if any, upon the passing of the resolution or, as the case may be, on the resolution being agreed to by the Council; and
- (b) may be withdrawn at any time by the Governor.

Explanation—Where the Houses of the Legislature of a State having a Legislative Council are summoned to reassemble on different dates, the period of six weeks shall be reckoned from the later of those dates for the purposes of this clause.

(3) If and so far as an Ordinance under this article makes provision which would not be valid if enacted in an Act of the Legislature of the State assented to by the Governor, it shall be void :

Provided that for the purposes of the provisions of the Constitution relating to the effect of an Act of the Legislature of a State which is repugnant to an Act of Parliament or an existing law with respect to a matter enumerated in the Concurrent List, an Ordinance promulgated under this article in pursuance of instructions from the President shall be deemed to be an Act of the Legislature of the State which has been reserved for the consideration of the President and assented to by him.

Rights of a Chief Justice of a High Court to receive pension and other benefit, cannot be altered to his disadvantage, after his appointment; Justice S.S.Sandhawalia v. Union of India, AIR 1990 P & H 198.

222. Transfer of a Judge from one High Court to another.—(1) The President may, after consultation with the Chief Justice of India, transfer a Judge from one High Court to any other High Court.⁴ []

⁵ [(2) When a Judge has been or is so transferred, he shall, during the period he serves, after the commencement of the Constitution (Fifteenth Amendment) Act, 1963, as a Judge of the other High Court, be entitled to receive in addition to his salary such compensatory allowance as may be determined by Parliament by law and, until so determined, such compensatory allowance as the President may by order fix.]

Notes on Article 222

In regard to transfer of judges, judicial review is necessary to check arbitrariness. But as to locus standi only the judge who is transferred can challenge it; K. Ashok Reddy v. Government of India, JT (1994) 1 SC 40.

High Court cannot in case of bank service substitute its own view for the punishment imposed by disciplinary authority. The Supreme Court can increase the equitable jurisdiction under article 136; State Bank of India v. Samarendra Kishore, JT (1994) 1 SC 217.

¹[224. Appointment of additional and acting Judges.—(1) If by reason of any temporary increase in the business of a High Court or by reason of arrears of work therein, it appears to the President that the number of the Judges of that Court should be for the time being increased, the President may appoint duly qualified persons to be Additional Judges of the Court for such period not exceeding two years as he may specify.

(2) When any Judge of a High Court other than the Chief Justice is by reason of absence or for any other reason unable to perform, the duties of his office or is appointed to act temporarily as Chief Justice, the President may appoint a duly qualified person to act as a Judge of that Court until the permanent Judge has resumed his duties.

(3) No person appointed as an additional or acting Judge of a High Court shall hold office after attaining the age of ²[sixty-two years].

³[224A. Provided that nothing in this article shall be deemed to require any such person as aforesaid to sit and act as a Judge of that High Court unless he consents so to do.]

225. Jurisdiction of existing High Courts.—Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and to the provisions of any law of the appropriate Legislature made by virtue of powers conferred on that Legislature by this Constitution, the jurisdiction of, and the law administered in, any existing High Court, and the respective powers of the judges thereof in relation to the administration of Justice in the Court, including any power to make rules of Court and to regulate the sittings of the Court and of members thereof sitting alone or in Division Courts, shall be the same as immediately before the commencement of this Constitution :

Notes on Article 225

A High Court Judge's power to hear specified class of cases is derived only from the application of business by the Chief Justice. A case not covered by such allocation cannot be heard by a judge sitting singly or in Division Bench (History of Calcutta High Court's jurisdiction traced). The power of the Chief Justice to allocate business is (a) not only derived from section 108 (2), Government of India Act, 1915 (which still subsists by virtue of section 223, Government of India Act, 1935 and article 225 of the Constitution) but (b) is also inherent in the Chief Justice (Pramatha Nath Talukdar v. Saroj Ranjan Sarkar, AIR 1962 SC 876 and State v. Devi Dayal, AIR 1959 All 421, 423 cited.); Sohal Lal v. State of West Bengal, AIR 1990 Cal 168 (DB).

¹[226. Power of High Courts to issue certain writs.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in article 32²[] every High Court shall have power, throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction, to issue to any person or authority, including in appropriate cases, any Government, within those territories directions, orders or writs, including ³[writs in the nature of habeas corpus, mandamus, prohibition, quo warranto and certiorari, or any of them, for the enforcement of any of the rights conferred by Part III and for any other purpose.]

(2) The power conferred by clause (1) to issue directions, orders or writs to any Government authority or person may also be exercised by any High Court exercising jurisdiction in relation to the territories within which the cause of action, wholly or in part, arises for the exercise of such power, notwithstanding that the seat of such Government or authority or the residence of such person is not within those territories.

⁴[(3) Where any party against whom an interim order, whether by way of injunction or stay or in any other manner is made on, or in any proceedings relating to, a petition under clause (1), without—

(a) furnishing to such party copies of such petition and all documents in support of the plea for such interim order; and

(b) giving such party an opportunity of being heard, makes an application to the High Court for the vacation of such order and furnishes a copy of such application to the party in whose favour such order has been made or the counsel of such party, the High Court shall dispose of the application within a period of two weeks from the date on which it is received or from the date on which the copy of such application is so furnished, whichever is later, or where the High Court is closed on

¹[(4) The power conferred on a High Court by this article shall not be in derogation of the power conferred on the Supreme Court by clause (2) of article 32.]

Notes on Article 226

Scope : High Court power

The power of the High Court to issue writs under article 226 is wider than that of the Supreme Court. It is not confined to fundamental rights, but extends to all cases where the breach of a right is alleged. See notes on article 32. The writ may be issued for the enforcement of fundamental rights or for "any other purpose"; State of Orissa v. Madangopal, (1952) SCR 28. Of course, there must be violation of a right; Calcutta Gas Co. v. State of W.B., AIR, 1962 SC 1044.

The scope of the power to enforce fundamental right (under articles 32 or 226) is both protective and remedial. Hence, to reject such petition on the simple ground that it cannot be entertained because of a rule of practice of the court cannot be justified; Kiran v. Govt. of A.P., (1990) 1 SCC 282, paragraphs 13-15 and 20.

Court will not permit this extraordinary jurisdiction to be converted into a suit or a criminal proceeding under the ordinary law.

A declaration of title to property; State of Rajasthan v. Bhawani, (1993) Supp. (1) SCC 306, paragraph 7.

The High Court, under article 226, cannot sit as an appellate court on administrative decisions. It cannot interfere in the absence of illegality, unconstitutionality, want of jurisdiction or mala fides; P.C.H.S. v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1991 SC 1453, paragraph 5.

It is primarily for the Government to strike a just balance between two competing objectives. The court's role is restricted to examine whether Government has taken into account all relevant aspects, and can interfere only where the Government has overlooked any material considerations or is influenced by extraneous or immaterial considerations; Dahanau v. B.S.E.S., (1991) 2 SCC 539, paragraphs 2 and 3.

The court will not interfere with an order of an administrative authority or the Government where the order rests on its statutory discretion, unless the order is arbitrary or capricious, or is ultra vires of statutory rules or mala fide or an abuse of power; Mahajan v. J.M.C., (1991) 3 SCC, paragraphs 41, 43 and 45.

The court will not issue directions over the compliance of which it shall have no control; Suresh v. R.C.D., (1991) UJSC 343, paragraph 7.

No court or tribunal can compel the Government to change its policy involving expenditure; Union of India v. Tejran, (1991) 3 SCC 11, paragraph 4.

The court cannot direct any party to disobey a statute, even on humanitarian grounds; State of T.N. v. J.T.T.I., (1991) 2 UJSC 162, paragraph 5.

Acquiescence

Minor violations in the rule of procedure will be no ground for interference where the petitioner participated in the trial and no prejudice has been caused in his defence; Sodhi v. Union of India, (1991) 2 SCC 382, paragraph 35.

I. Clause (7) renumbered as clause (4) by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 30 (w.e.f. 1-8-1979).

Alternative remedies

The possibility of having certain remedies has not been considered as alternative remedies for refusing relief under article 226, on the ground that these are not alternative specific legal remedies, but discretionary remedies which are granted in extraordinary circumstances, e.g. appeal by special leave under article 136, departmental instructions; Shyam v. Municipal Corporation, (1993) 1 SCC 22, paragraph 45 (3 Judges).

Where an appeal under article 136 will be to the Supreme Court from an order of a statutory tribunal, on the ground of absence or excess of jurisdiction, article 226 may not be appropriate; State of T.N. v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 2 UJSC 134, paragraph 33 (3 Judges).

Amenability

Even though a writ would not issue against a non-statutory private body, it should lie against such body when it receives grant from Government and is subject to regulation made by the Government, or against the order of a Government officer even though it is in relation to the private institution; Francis v. Directorate of Education, AIR 1990 SC 423, paragraphs 8-9.

Arbitrariness

Emphasis is now being placed on the need to avoid arbitrariness by administrative authority even in spheres where the relevant statute does not lay down any quasi-judicial obligation; Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) UJSC 302, paragraph 7.

Arrest

To a person arrested under the Terrorists Act, the designated court refused bail. It was held that the High Court in writ jurisdiction could not examine the correctness of the view of the designated court to quash the presentation of the accused; State of Maharashtra v. Abdul Hamid Kajo Mohammed, JT (1994) 2 SC 1.

Bail

Although the High Court has jurisdiction to entertain prayer for bail in writ jurisdiction, yet, such jurisdiction should be exercised sparingly, having regard to judicial discipline and comity of courts; Kartar Singh v. State of Punjab, JT (1994) 2 SC 423.

Bias

In the academic sphere, an instance of the doctrine of necessity is offered by the constitution of a Selection Committee for appointment to the teaching staff where senior members of the Faculty have to be taken on the Committee as experts and they have to interview candidates who were at one time or other their students; Dalpat v. Mahajan, (1990), 1 SCJ 571, paragraph 10.

When no other person is available to discharge an adjudicatory function, even a person who is disqualified on account of bias may be allowed to function, without the risk of violating natural justice. This doctrine also applies where no quorum can be formed without the disqualified member or where all the members of a tribunal are disqualified; Charan v. Union of India, (1990) 1 SCC 613, paragraphs 75 and 105 (C.B.).

Certiorari

In India, certiorari would be available even against administrative bodies, not having any quasi-judicial obligation, if they affect rights of individuals without conforming to the principles of 'fair play'; Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) 2 UJSC 302, paragraph 9.

Civil consequence

No civil consequence, so as to require an obligation to hear the person to be affected, takes place where such person had no legal right of which he is a mere privilege or concession; A.S.C. v. A.P.S.E.B., (1991) 3 SCC 263, paragraph 15.

An instance of civil consequences, is taking away of vested rights, e.g. the removal of an employee's name from a 'select list' for promotion; Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) 2 UJSC 303, paragraph 7.

An instance of civil consequences, is the taking away of vested rights, e.g. termination of any employment governed by statute; Shridhar v. Nagar Palika, (1990) 1 SCJ 383, paragraphs 7-8.

An instance of civil consequences, is imposing any penalty upon an employee, for misconduct, e.g. making an adverse entry in his service record; State of Maharashtra v. Ravi Kant, (1991) 2 UJSC 188.

No civil consequence, so as to require an obligation to hear the person to be affected, takes place where such person had no legal right of which he is going to be deprived, e.g. economical loss caused by the transfer of a Government employee, except where the conditions of his employment indicate that he cannot be transferred without his consent; Shankar v. Vice Admiral, (1991) 3 SCC 263, paragraph 15.

Even an administrative order must be made in conformity with the rules of natural justice, if it involves civil consequences, or if it affects any right of citizen which is capable of being enforced by a legal action, including even procedural rights; Union of India v. Amrik, (1991) 1 UJSC 654, paragraph 4.

Code of Civil Procedure

Certain High Courts have framed Rules attracting the application of the provisions of the Code to proceedings under article 226, in matters on which the rules are silent, and in these High Courts it has been held that even after 1976, the provisions of the Code will apply to writ proceedings in so far as they are not inconsistent with the rules, e.g. the principle under Explanation IV to section 11.

Compensation

In a Madras case, the police entered the premises of a Devasthanam illegally, and prepared non-vegetarian food. The petitioner, who was managing trustee of the temple, sought mandamus, directing the police officers to vacate the premises. During the pendency of the proceedings, the police vacated the premises. The writ petition, therefore, became infructuous. But a sum of Rs.2,000 was ordered to be paid as costs to the petitioner, having regard to the illegality committed by the police; K.T. Chettiar v. Collector, Tiruvanna Mala, AIR 1990 Mad 181, 183, paragraph 8.

Concession-withdrawal

Except where the doctrine of 'promissory estoppel' is attracted, a concessional tariff can be withdrawn without giving opportunity to show cause to consumers; Andhra Steel v. A.P.S.E.B., (1991) 3 SCC 263, paragraph 15.

Contract

The court may interfere under article 226 where, though the cause of action arises out of or pertains to a contract, there is some other feature which brings the cause within the sphere of public law, i.e. because of the exercise by the State of its sovereign power, apart from the contract; Mahajan v. J.M.C., (1991) 3 SCC 91, paragraph 46.

Contract

In the realm of contract interference through writ jurisdiction is not proper particularly when no unfairness is alleged. For this purpose "contract" methods arbitration clause; Union of India v. Graphic Industries, I.T. (1994) 5 SC 237.

Even in the case of a contract by the Government as a public utility undertaking, the court cannot interfere with the terms of the contract unless they are discriminatory, unreasonable or capricious (in which case article 14 of the constitution comes into play); O.N.G.C. v. Association of N.G.C. Industries Gujarat, AIR (1990) SC 1851.

Where it is not a case of breach of a concluded contract, but the statutory authority has refused to renew a contract with a long standing dealer on the basis of a change made in its policy without taking the dealer into confidence, the court may interfere on the ground of arbitrariness; Mahabir Auto v. I.O.C., AIR, 1990 SC 1031, 1039.

Co-operative Societies

Co-operative society is subject to writ jurisdiction—

- (i) if it can be classified as a State, or
- (ii) if it has a statutory public duty towards the petitioner.

Bye-laws of such a society are not "law". They are contracts between the society and its members or employees. But in case of termination of service, section 47, Andhra Pradesh Shops and Establishments Act provides a certain protection. As it is based on public policy, it will be enforced in an appropriate case, by writ.

Court martial

Mandamus will issue to prevent courts-martial from exceeding their jurisdiction, but not to interfere with their proper jurisdiction, e.g. on issues of military discipline, except in case of error of law; Ranvir v. Union of India, (1991) Cri LJ 1729, (Bom) paragraph 9.

The Supreme Court under article 32 and a High Court under article 226 can interfere with proceedings before a court-martial and grant appropriate relief where the impugned order has resulted in denial of fundamental rights of the party aggrieved; Mukherjee v. Union of India, (1990) 3 SCJ 193, paragraph 4.

Writ court can interfere with proceedings before a court-marital and grant appropriate relief where the sentence awarded by the court-martial is disproportionate to the offence committed, thereby violating article 14 of the Constitution; Ex-Naik v. Union of India, (1991) 2 UJSC 466, paragraph 6.

Criminal investigation

While the court should not normally interfere with criminal investigation, it may prohibit the continuance of a criminal proceeding at any stage before its conclusion, in extraordinary cases, e.g. where the proceeding was launched by a person who was not competent to make the F.I.R. or to institute prosecution under the relevant law; State of Haryana v. Bhajan, (1991) 2 SCJ 351, paragraph 144.

Discretion

The exercise of a statutory power must not be ultra vires. Thus, the discretion must be exercised in furtherance of accomplishment of the purpose for which it had been conferred. Thus, in the case of a public utility organisation, it must be exercised having regard to the consideration of the efficiency of the public service, within the limits of its resources; U.P.S.R.T.C. v. Ismail, (1991) 3 SCC 234, paragraph 15.

Even though the court will not interfere with the manner of exercise of a simple discretion, it will interfere where the statutory authority has failed to exercise the discretion in a particular case, which it was his duty to exercise; U.P.S.R.T.C. v. Ismail, (1991) 3 SCC 239, paragraphs 12-15 (3 Judges).

Where a discriminatory Rule fixing different age for retirement of employees belonging to the same class has been struck down by a court, those who had been wrongly retired at the lower age (say, 58) shall not be entitled to claim salary for the period intervening the higher age (say, 60) during which they did not actually render any service; nevertheless, their pension should be re-fixed by extending (by fiction) their retirement by the intervening period (i.e. 2 years) in the given case; Nand v. State of Orissa, AIR 1991 SC 1724.

Discrimination

An extra payment made to those who were willing to go on transfer to a remote place cannot be challenged as discriminatory by those who were not willing to go to that place; R.A.I. v. R.B.I. Staff, (1991) 2 UJSC 546, paragraph 3.

Domestic inquiry

In a domestic inquiry, the principles of natural justice must be observed. Where there were allegations of acceptance of illegal bets by a runner employed by the petitioner, the licence cannot be cancelled, merely on the statement of one employee, without calling the employee for cross-examination; Gandhi & Co. v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1990 Bom 218 (Ashok Agarwal, J.).

Education-general

The main witnesses of an alleged incident on misbehaviour by a student were Professors of the College. They were members of the Inquiry Committee and also members of the Disciplinary Committee. The principal passed rustication order on the basis of the report of the above Committee. It was held that the decision was vitiated on the ground of bias; Bhupendra Kumar Singhal v. P.R. Mehta, AIR 1990 Guj 48 (Reviews case law).

Education-Medical Colleges.

Where, for admission to a medical college certain seats are reserved for the Central Board of Secondary Education, and the Board does not sponsor the candidates so that the seats remain vacant, the seats must be filled from the waiting list. The University cannot say that it has a discretion not to fill the seats.

Making of a provision in the prospectus casts a legal duty on the University to give admission to the students who otherwise fulfil the qualifications. It was further held that the petitioners should not suffer for late admission and that shortage of lectures must be condoned by the University or the college; Sunehda Kalia v. State of Haryana, AIR 1990 P & H 239.

Petitioner was wrongly denied admission to M.S. General Surgery. Though 2 years had passed, he could not get relief. His representation was still pending. Court gave direction to admit the petitioner to M.S. Surgery; Dwijendra Nath v. Director of Medical Education, U.P., AIR 1990 All 131.

For admission to medical college, seats were reserved for Scheduled Tribes. Petitioner was described as Scheduled Tribe in Birth Register. Her father (a Government servant) was a member of Scheduled Tribe. It was held, that her application could not be rejected on flimsy grounds; Mythili v. T. Padnia, A.P. University of Health Services, AIR 1990 NOC 113 (AP); (1989) 2 APL 1288 (HC).

For admission test to medical course, "multiple choice" type objective questions were set. Petitioner challenged the key answers. It was held that the burden lay on her to prove that the key answers were wrong (On the facts, the key answers were held to be correct); Anjali Saxena v. Chairman, Professional Examination Board, AIR 1990 MP 253 (DB).

In the case of admission to medical institutions, the rule may be departed from in filling up vacant seats in view of the dearth of qualified doctors in this country. The court would not disturb any practical step adopted by the authorities to tide over a transitional difficulty; Principal v. Vandana, AIR 1991 SC 792, paragraph 9.

Facts

In general, a disputed question of fact is not investigated in a proceeding under article 226, particularly where an alternative remedy is available, e.g. the merits of rival claims to property or a disputed question of title; State of Rajasthan v. Bhawani, (1993) Supp (1) SCC 306, paragraph 7.

The High Court may interfere with a finding of fact, if it is shown that the finding is not supported by any evidence, or that the finding is 'perverse' or based upon a view of facts which could never be reasonably entertained; Arjun v. Jamnadas, (1990) 1 SCJ 59, paragraph 15.

A finding based on no evidence constitutes an error of law, but an error in appreciation of evidence or in drawing inferences is not, except where it is perverse, that is to say, such a conclusion as no person properly instructed in law could have reached, or it is based on evidence which is legally inadmissible; Board of Wakfs v. Hadi, (1993) Supp (1) SCC 192, paragraph 17.

If the conclusion on facts is supported by evidence on record, no interference is called for even though the court considers that another view is possible; Maharashtra S.B.S.E. v. Gandhi, (1991) 2 SCC 716, paragraph 10.

Fairness

The requirement of 'fairness' implies that even an administrative authority must not act arbitrarily or capriciously and must not come to a conclusion which is perverse or is such that no reasonable body of persons properly informed could arrive at; Natty v. State of Bihar, (1990) 2 SCC 48, paragraphs 13-15, 19. :

Once the test of 'fairness' is substituted for a 'hearing' in this area of administrative decisions, it would follow that it cannot require that much of hearing when a person is charged with some offence or misconduct. Notice of the penalty sought to be imposed with an opportunity for making a representation and consideration of that representation in a fair and just manner, would suffice; Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) 2 UJSC 303, paragraph 9.

Where the administrative function is statutory, the court must read into the statute the requirement of fairness, which means the minimum principles of natural justice; Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) UJSC 303, paragraph 9.

Fraud

Where a person has obtained an order from the High Court by fraud or false representation, that order as well as all advantages obtained thereunder shall be cancelled. Natural justice is not attracted to such a case; U.P. Junior Doctors v. Nandwani, AIR 1991 SC 909, paragraph 5.

A petition filed by the party aggrieved cannot be thrown out on the ground of forgery and fraud, merely because there was a bona fide mistake in stating the name of the petitioner in a petition drafted by another person; Rugmani v. Achuthan, (1991) Supp (1) SCC 520, paragraph 7.

Geographical limits

On a combined reading of clauses (1) and (2) of article 226, one can say that writ can be issued against a Government, person or authority if—

- (a) its seat is within the High Court's jurisdiction, or
- (b) the cause of action has arisen, wholly or in part, within the High Court's jurisdiction.

Interim orders

The High Court can not in writ jurisdiction make interim orders that would make the functioning of the constitutional institutions a mockery; Bihar Public Service Commission v. Dr. Shiv Jatan Kapur, (1994) 4 SCC 68.

Laches

Petition under article 226, challenging land acquisition proceedings, which is filed near about 7 years after the notification under section 6, Land Acquisition Act, 1894 is issued, is not maintainable, if the delay is not explained; V.N.E.P.P. Association v. Under Secretary, Delhi Admn., AIR 1990 SC 849, paragraph 4. (However, as the Government made an offer to make alternative site available, certain directions were issued by the Supreme Court).

Legal assistance

Right to be represented by a lawyer is not a necessary ingredient of natural but in particular circumstances it may be required as a condition of fair play, e.g. in the case of a departmental proceeding against an employee where the employer is a legally trained mind; Agarwal v. H.S.D.C., (1991) 2 SCC 283, paragraphs 4 and 8.

Right to be represented by a lawyer is not a necessary ingredient of natural justice but in particular circumstances, it may be required as a condition of fair play; Maharashtra S.B.S.E. v. Gandhi, (1991) 2 SCC 716, paragraph 17.

Legal binding

The law declared by the High Court is binding on all subordinate courts within the State; East India Commercial Co. v. Collector of Customs, AIR 1962 SC 1895.

Legitimate expectation

Under the doctrine of 'legitimate expectation', even a non-statutory policy or guideline issued by the State would be enforceable against the State if a person can show that he has been led to take certain action on the basis of or on the legitimate expectation that the Government would abide by such policy or guideline. In such a case, deviation from the policy would be arbitrary and involve a violation of article 14; Narendra v. Union of India, (1990) Supp SCC 440, paragraphs 106-107.

Local authority

The court can interfere with the action of a statutory local body where the action of the local authority is ultra vires, e.g. where a local authority, having the power to approve or disapprove building plans, approves the plan subject to a condition it has no authority to impose, mandamus will issue, commanding it to approve the plan as submitted, i.e. without the ultra vires condition; Bangalore M.T.C. v. Muddappa, AIR 1991 SC 1902.

A local authority having a legal grievance may be able to take out a writ. Thus, a writ was issued on the petition of a local authority against a public utility concern, for the later's failure to fulfil its statutory obligation to supply power to the local authority, which was a consumer of electricity; Corporation of Nagpur v. N.E.L. & P. Co., AIR 1985 Bom 498.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b/RseosPhQQ>

Mining Lease

Petition was filed to quash premature termination of lease for mining. Relief of damages was not claimed. Termination of the lease (premature) was void, because no hearing was given to the lessee. It was held, that it was not proper to ask the petitioner to file suit for compensation. The Supreme Court appointed an arbitrator to determine compensation/damages; Assam Sillimanite Ltd. v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1417.

As to premature termination, see State of Haryana v. Ram Kishan, AIR 1988 SC 1301: (1988) 3 SCC 416.

Mala fide

The mere fact that the Investigating Officer ruled out certain documents as irrelevant, is no ground to assume that he acted mala fide; State of Bihar v. Sharma, AIR 1991 SC 1260, paragraphs 16 and 23.

Mandamus

Mandamus will issue against an inferior tribunal where an inferior tribunal has refused to carry out the infra vires directions of its superior tribunal; Union of India v. Kamalakshi, (1991) 2 UJSC 617, paragraph 6.

Mandamus will not issue to direct a subordinate Legislative authority to enact or not to enact a rule, order or notification which it is competent to enact; Supreme Court Employees v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 338, paragraphs 50-56.

Mandamus would issue to cancel a seniority list or promotion and to make necessary adjustments, where the seniority list has been made in contravention of the statutory rules or making ad hoc deviations therefrom; Garg v. State of U.P., (1991) 2 UJSC 571, paragraphs 22 and 25.

The existence of a statutory remedy is no bar to mandamus where the ground on which relief is sought is beyond the competence of the statutory tribunal to entertain, e.g. where the act or omission complained of, e.g. alteration of delimitation of constituencies, took place at a time anterrior to the commencement of the electoral process; State v. Nagendra, AIR 1991 Kant 317, paragraph 35 (FB).

Mandamus will not issue against the Chief Justice of a High Court in the matter of assigning cases to the puisne Judges, in the absence of some clear breach of the Rules governing the matter; Avadhesh v. State, AIR 1991 All 52, paragraph 6.

Mandamus would issue to command a statutory authority to perform its duty to exercise its discretion according to law, but not to exercise its discretion in a particular manner unless that is expressly required by the law; U.P.S.R.T.C. v. Ismail, (1991) 3 SCC 239, paragraph 12 (3 Judges).

Relief by way of mandamus which is discretionary may be refused, when there is no legal or constitutional obligation which is capable of being enforced by mandamus, e.g. to direct any Minister to resign, in the absence of any statutory or constitutional provision; Avadhesh v. State, AIR 1991 All 52, paragraphs 8, 9 and 10; Cf. Vimla v. State of U.P., (1990) Supp SCC 770, paragraph 4.

Where an administrative authority has the duty to exercise a discretion or power, but has failed to exercise it, the court cannot, by issuing a mandamus, either direct the authority to make an order in exercise of the discretion in any particular direction nor can the court make the administrative order itself. The proper direction should be that the authority shall make a proper order after exercising his discretion accordingly to the circumstances of the case, e.g. even where the court finds the petitioner to be the highest bidder; Munindra v. State of U.P., (1993) Supp (1) SCC 437.

Natural justice

Dealing with the application of principle of natural justice in the context of the employment relationship, the Supreme Court has held that punishment cannot be applied retrospectively in respect of an act committed, before that particular act was made penal. It is a basic principle of natural justice that no one can be penalised on the ground of conduct which was not penal on the day it was committed. The date of show cause notice being April 21, 1983, the unauthorised absence from duty, which had been taken into consideration, is from December 20, 1982 to April 20, 1983. Whole of this period being prior to the date of amendment of regulation 1614, the same could not be made as a ground for proceeding under ground (c) of Regulation 1614. The notice served on the appellant was thus legal and as a consequence the order of termination cannot be sustained and has to be set aside; Pyare Lal Sharma v. Managing Director, (1989) 59 Factory Law Reports 220 (SC).

The applicability of the other rules of natural justice will depend on the statutory provisions under which action has been taken, and the facts and circumstances of each case; Laxmi v. Union of India, (1991) 2 SCJ 86, paragraph 6.

Principles of natural justice have been extended to administrative orders, where civil rights are affected or civil consequences ensue. (See 'certiorari against administrative action', post); Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) 3 SCC 38, paragraph 7.

Natural justice has been imported into article 311(2) of the Constitution itself by judicial interpretation of the expression 'reasonable opportunity' therein; Union of India v. Ramzan, (1991) 1 SCC 588, paragraphs 13 and 15.

The obligation to hear before deciding cannot be implied where there is anything in the statute itself to prohibit such obligation; S.C.W.S.W.A. v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 2 SCC 604, paragraph 15.

Where an order or notification can be made only after hearing the parties to be prejudicially affected thereby, a rescission or revocation thereof under section 21 of the General Clauses Act would require a similar hearing of the persons who would be affected by such rescission; S.C. & W.S. Welfare Assn. v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 2 SCC 604, paragraphs 15-16.

The court holds that "the principles of natural justice are applicable even to administrative inquiries, which means that even where the nature of the function (e.g. price-fixing) does not require the hearing of the person affected, the authority must nevertheless observe the requirement of reasonableness and fair play"; Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) 3 SCC 38, paragraph 7.

If a statutory provision either specifically or by necessary implication excludes the application of any rule of natural justice, then the court cannot ignore the mandate of the legislature or the statutory authority and read into the concerned provision the principles of natural justice; Neelima v. Harinder, AIR 1990 SC 1402.

No obligation to offer an opportunity of being heard arises where a student has secured admission through a fraudulent device; U.P.J.D.A.C. v. Nandwani, (1990) 4 SCC 633, paragraph 5.

There would be a sufficient compliance with the requirements of natural justice in cases of disciplinary proceedings against students, if in the given facts, the students have been given a fair deal; Maharashtra Board v. Gandhi, (1991) 2 SCC 716, paragraphs 15, 26 and 37.

Natural justice requires that opportunity to be heard must be given to the accused for enhancing the sentence; Govind v. State of Maharashtra, (1990) 4 SCC 718, paragraph 15.

Administrative functions of a legislative nature do not attract the requirements of natural justice; O.N.G.C. v. Assn. N.G.C., (1990) Supp SCC 397, 439; Sitaram Sugar Co. v. Union of India, (1990) 3 SCC 223, paragraph 44 (CB).

Principles of natural justice are not attracted to the disposal of a petition under section 117(2) of the Army Act, 1950; Union of India v. Amrik, (1991) 1 SCC 654, paragraph 8.

Party

A person who acquires interest during the pendency of a writ proceeding on the express condition that his interest would abide by the decision in that proceeding, need not be impleaded; N.C.H.S. v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 155, paragraph 14.

Preventive detention

It is open to the court to consider the facts and circumstances to ascertain whether the detenu was feigning ignorance of the language in which the order had been communicated to him; Kubic v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCJ 132, paragraph 10.

Under article 22(3) (b) [as well as section 11(4) of the National Security Act, which is in conformity with it], a person under preventive detention has no right to appear before the Bench through a lawyer; Anil v. Union of India, (1991) Cr LJ 605 (SC), paragraph 7.

The order of detention will be invalid, for contravention of article 22(5)—where there has been an unexplained delay in considering the representation of the detenu; Mahesh v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCJ 359, paragraph 20.

In the absence of unexplained delay in considering the representation of the detenu, the consideration of the representation is not vitiated merely because it has taken place after the order has been 'confirmed' because (under the COFEPOSA) Government has the power to revoke the order of detention if, after consideration of the representation, the Government finds that the order has not been in conformity with the statutory power; Abdulla v. Union of India, (1991) Cr LJ 790 (SC), paragraphs 19, 20 (CB).

The order of detention will be invalid, for contravention of article 22(5)—where the representation has not been considered by the authority specified by the statute; Amir v. Hingliana, Cr LJ 2713(SC), paragraph 12.

The genuineness of the subjective satisfaction is not whittled down by the mere fact that there was delay in arresting the detenu pursuant to the order of detention; Abdul v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1446.

The order of detention will be invalid, for contravention of article 22(5)— where the representation has not been considered by the authority specified by the statute; Kubic v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCJ 132, paragraph 22.

Under this ground (want of legislative competence) will come those cases where the ground shown in the detention order does not come under Entry 9 of List I or Entry 3 of List III. Thus, the order will be quashed where a solitary incident of breach of law and order, e.g. a murderous assault is relied upon as constituting a breach of 'public order'; Devaki v. Government of T.N., (1990) 3 SCJ 303, paragraph 19 (3 Judges).

Where there is no question of legislative competence as above, a solitary act may offer a good ground for the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority where there are circumstances to lead to the reasonable inference that the person concerned would be likely to repeat that act so as to warrant his detention, e.g. a single act of smuggling (under the COFEPOSA) followed by an attempt to obtain passport in a false name; Sultahn v. Jt. Secy., (1991) 1 SCJ 239, paragraph 7.

There would be violation of article 22 if all the materials which would have been relevant for the subjective satisfaction of the detaining authority were not placed before him or were not annexed to the order of detention and supplied to the detenu; Abdul v. Union of India, (1991) Cr LJ 430 (SC), paragraph 7; Ahmed Kutty v. Union of India, (1990) 2 SCC 1.

Apart from a plain transgression of the terms of the statute authorising the detention, the detention may be illegal by reason of the abuse of the statutory power, non-application of mind; Devaki v. Government of T.N., (1990) 3 SCJ 303, paragraph 3; Abhay v. Bhaw, (1991) 1 SCJ 607, paragraph 9.

The court has jurisdiction to issue an interim order of stay against the execution of an order of preventive detention. But the very object of preventive detention would be defeated if this power is used in every case. It should, therefore, be used sparingly, only in cases where the court is prima facie satisfied that the authority which passed the order had no authority to do so; Addl. Secy. v. Gadia, (1991) 1 SCJ 200, paragraph 19.

Price fixation

No opportunity of hearing need be given to consumers or prospective consumers or manufacturers, before fixing the price of a commodity, or the zoning of the factories for that purpose. But, even then, the requirements of reasonableness and fair play, which are emanations from the doctrine of natural justice, must be observed; Niyami v. Union of India, (1990) 4 SCC 516, paragraphs 11 and 12.

Probationer

Where under the relevant Rules the services of an unconfirmed probationer can be terminated by one month's notice and there is no provision for extending the period of probation, he cannot be deemed to have been confirmed merely on the expiry of the statutory period of probation. No question of giving him an opportunity for terminating his employment on the expiry of the specified period of probation arises; Municipal Corporation v. Ashok, (1991) 2 UJSC 170, paragraph 6.

Promissory estoppel

The doctrine of promissory estoppel cannot be invoked when the petitioner knew all the fact and there was no question of his being misled by the representation or the authority or the Government was under a legal duty or prohibition to act in a particular manner, or the application of the doctrine would involve the violation of a statute, or the petitioner failed to substantiate that he had altered his position, relying on the alleged representation or the officer concerned was not competent and acted beyond the scope of his authority, so that the alleged representation was ultra vires; Vasant v. Board of Trustees, AIR 1991 SC 14.

The doctrine of promissory estoppel would operate where injustice would be cause to the promisee if the promisor would be allowed to go back on the promise. But the facts giving rise to the doctrine must be pleaded; Andhra S.C. v. A.P.S.E.B., (1991) SCC 263, paragraphs 13-15.

Public interest litigation

Public interest litigation is a proceeding in which an individual or group seeks relief in the interest of the general public and not for its own purpose. The spate of such litigation has enriched the law, modified the traditional doctrine of locus standi and led to the devising of new remedies and procedures. Of the numerous cases on the subject, the following are worth study, as illustrating the basic and important features:—

- (i) S.P. Gupta v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 149, 194. (Scope and basic approach).
- (ii) D.C. Wadhwa v. State of Bihar, AIR 1987 SC 579, paragraph 38. (Locus Standi).
- (iii) Ratlam Municipality v. Vardichand, AIR 1980 SC 1622. (General).
- (iv) Fertilizer Corporation v. Union of India, AIR 1981 SC 344. (Locus Standi).
- (v) Peoples' Union for Democratic Rights v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 1473. (General).
- (vi) State of H.P. v. Parent, AIR 1985 SC 910. (Mode of entertaining).
- (vii) Shivajirao v. Mahesh, AIR 1985 SC 194, paragraphs 35 and 36. (Mode of entertaining).

Regarding public interest litigation, a Calcutta case elaborates as under:—

"In case of public interest litigation, the persons concerned who move such writ application not for enforcing his personal right but filed by public spirited and individual Disposing the cause of large number of people who are suffering under some legal wrong or injury and such person or determinate class of person is by reason of poverty, helplessness or disability or socially or economically disadvantaged position, unable to approach the court for relief and in such case any member of the public can maintain writ application."

Class actions are illustrated by Order 1, Rule 8 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908 and according to Mr. Justice Bhagwati Prasad Banerjee, members of the same class can file a writ application after obtaining leave of the court through one member filing it in a representative capacity and in such case the principle laid down in Order 1, Rule 8 is followed by which after notice is issued, any member of the class affected by the order may join and the members of the class are bound by such decision. This is permitted by law to avoid multiplicity of proceedings. However, according to the Calcutta judgment (paragraph 14), the position is different regarding unincorporated associations:—

"Unincorporated associations are not legal persons and as such, writ petitions are not maintainable. An association could be formed to protect the interest of consumers, tenants or other groups with the common interest but such group cannot move writ application. No aspect of the representative law has been changing more rapidly than the law governing standing and the standing barrier has been substantially lowered in recent years, but on the basis of the law relating to standing as in England or in America as also in India, it can be held without any difficulty that the writ petition at the instance of an association is not maintainable where the association itself is not affected by any order. The members of such association may be affected by common order and may have common grievance, but for the purpose of enforcing the rights of the members, writ petition at the instance of such association is not maintainable. The door of the writ court could be made open at the instance of persons or authorities under the aforesaid four categories and to hold that every Tom, Dick and Harry can move the writ application would render the standing requirement meaningless and would introduce a procedure which is not judicially recognised;" Sand Carriers v. Board, AIR 1990 Cal 176.

Where irregularities in hospital administration of a Government hospital are alleged, the court can appoint a commissioner to ascertain the facts. But it cannot issue mandamus directing the State Government to appoint a commission of inquiry. It is discretionary to set upon a commission of inquiry (unless the legislature passed a resolution). Where there is discretionary jurisdiction, no mandamus can be issued; Siddha Raj Dhadda v. State, , AIR 1990 Raj 34.

The High Court of Punjab and Haryana has held in Dr. Naginder Singh v. Punjab University, AIR 1990 P&H 157, that public interest litigation cannot be used to obtain a declaration about the validity of a law without any specific injury to the petitioner. In the above case, Dr. Naginder Singh, Director, Medical Diagnostic Centre, New Dayanand Medical College and Hospital, Ludhiana who lost the election to the Senate, challenged the very Constitution of the Senate of the Punjab University. His argument was that section 13(1) of the Punjab University Act, 1947 which gave the Chancellor power to nominate members on the Senate conferred an arbitrary power and was unconstitutional. Apart from rejecting the argument on the merits, the High Court (Mr. Justice M.M. Punchhi, now in the Supreme Court) made the following observations in paragraph 7 of the Judgment:—

"Lastly, we fail to see how the instant litigation is a public interest litigation. It is pure and simple an attempt to seek declaration about the validity of a law without any specific injury to the petitioner. In our law, without any specific injury to the petitioner, such a writ for mere declaration to test the validity of law does not lie. As held in; S.P. Gupta v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 149, the individual who moves the court for judicial redress must be acting bona fide with a view to vindicating the cause of justice and if he is acting for personal gain or private profit or out of political motivation or other oblique consideration, the court should not allow itself to be activated at the instance of such person and must reject his application at the threshold. It was further held that as a matter of prudence and not as a rule of law, the court may confine this strategic exercise of jurisdiction to cases where legal wrong or legal injury is caused to a determinate class or group of persons or the constitutional or legal right of such determinate class or group of persons is violated and as far as possible, not entertain cases of judicial redress. The petitioner's learned counsel failed to identify and determine the class or group of persons who are aggrieved against the vesting and use of the power to nomination of Senate Members by the Chancellor of the University. The petitioner was a part of the Senate in the yester year and, as stated earlier, he fought the election this time too, but failed. He has rather, patently filed the instant petition with oblique motives having lost the election to the Senate, with political motivation by accusing the Chancellor of politicising the Senate by nomination. Thus, on the facts of this as we are of the considered view that the petitioner lacks locus standi to initiate the instant litigation as a public interest litigation and thus we reject his petition at the very threshold."

The court should not allow an unscrupulous person to vindicate his personal grudge in the grab or protecting a public or social interest; Chhetriya Samiti v. State of U.P., (1991) 1 SCJ 130, paragraph 8.

The court should not allow an unscrupulous person to vindicate his personal grudge in the grab of protecting a public or social interest; Subhas v. State of Bihar, (1991) 1 SCJ 564, paragraph 7.

Elaborate directions have been given by the court for vindication of the public interest, in such proceedings, informally instituted, e.g. for reforming hospitals or jails; Rakesh v. State of Bihar, (1991) Supp (2) SCC 626; Mathur v. State of U.P., (1993) Supp (1) SCC 722, paragraphs 3 and 4.

An association cannot complain where only the personal rights of individual members are affected. This is not subject to the doctrine of "public interest litigation"; S.C.W.S.W. Assn. v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 2 SC 604, paragraph 7.

The law as to locus standi has been diluted by the advent of the doctrine of 'public interest litigation'; B.M.T. v. Muddappa, AIR 1919 SC 1902 paragraph 36.

Quasi-judicial authority

Quasi-Judicial orders of a superior administrative authority are binding on all subordinate authorities. The High Court would interfere under article 226, in case a subordinate authority fails to follow the superior's order, irrespective of any question of mala fides; Union of India v. K.F.C., (1991) 2 UJSC 617, paragraph 6.

It is not open to the parties before a quasi-judicial tribunal (as in the case of courts) to assail its record of proceedings and the statement of facts made therein, as incorrect, unless steps are taken before the same forum; Bhagwati v. D.S.M.D.C., (1990) 1 SCJ 433 paragraph 5.

Quo warranto

Quo warranto is a discretionary remedy which the court may grant or refuse according to the facts and circumstances of each case. Thus, the court may refuse it where the application was actuated by ill-will or malice, or ulterior motive; Mokhtiar v. State, AIR 1991 P&H 20, paragraph 6.

Reasons

An administrative act cannot be held to be mala fide or arbitrary, merely because reasons have not been given; State of Bihar v. Ramjee, (1990) 3 SCJ 52, paragraph 8.

Where the Rule requires an authority to give its reasons where it disagrees with the report of an Inquiry Officer, there is no need to record reasons where it agrees with the Inquiry Officer; Maharashtra S.B. v. Gandhi; (1991) 2 SCC 718, paragraph 24.

Except where the Legislature has expressly or by necessary implication dispensed with the requirement to give reasons, every judicial or quasi-judicial authority (whether its decisions are subject to appeal, revision or judicial review or not) must record reasons for its decision; Mukherjee v. Union of India, (1990) 3 SCJ 193, paragraphs 35-36 and 43 (CB).

Requirement to give reasons for the decisions of judicial or quasi-judicial authority is based on the need to ensure fair play and to exclude arbitrary action or capricious decision; Maharashtra S.B v. Gandhi, (1991) 2 SCC 716, paragraphs 20-21.

Reasonableness

Where an administrative action is prima facie unreasonable because there is no discernible principle to justify it, the burden is shifted to the State to show that the impugned decision is an informed action, and in such a case, if the reasons are not recorded, the decision will be struck down as violative of article 14 of the Constitution, Sreelekha v. State of U.P.; (1991) 1 SCC 212, paragraphs 18, 23, 29, 31 and 39-40.

In administrative law, 'reasonableness' has not the same meaning as in the law of torts, where the test used is that of a 'reasonable man'. In administrative law, it simply indicates an improper use or abuse of power. In this context, the court cannot interfere merely because the court thinks that the administrative action or decision has been unwise; Mahajan v. J.M.C., (1991) 3 SCC 91, paragraphs 41, 43 and 45.

Relief

While finding that an educational institution has wrongly interpreted the directions of the court, the court may condone the defect so far as the admissions already made on the basis of the wrong interpretation, in order to save the admitted candidates (who were not at fault, State of Bihar v. Sanjay, AIR 1990 SC 749, paragraph 6).

Equitable considerations weight with the court partly in adjusting the rights of competing co-employees under the Government, in matters of seniority, promotion and the like; Dwarka v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 428 paragraphs 11, 13-14.

The relief that may be granted under article 226 may be—

- (a) setting aside an illegal order;
- (b) declaratory;
- (c) restitutionary (Refund of invalid tax);
- (d) other consequential relief.

See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Calcutta Discount Co. v. I.T.O., AIR 1961 SC 372.
- (ii) BBL&T Merchants Association v. State of Bombay, AIR 1962 SC 486.
- (iii) State of M.P. v. Bhailal, AIR 1964 SC 1006.
- (iv) Dwarka v. I.T.O., AIR 1966 SC 81.
- (v) Desai v. Roshan, AIR 1976 SC 578.
- (vi) Rambhadraiah v. Secretary, AIR 1981 SC 1653.

Remedy-extraordinary and discretionary

The remedy of writ is—

- (a) extraordinary;
- (b) discretionary (Unless a fundamental right is involved);
- (c) dependent on there being a cause of action;
- (d) exercisable only against the parties before the Court.

The undermentioned cases illustrate the above aspects:-

- (i) Abraham v. I.T.O., AIR 1961 SC 609 (Alternative remedy).

- (ii) State of Rajasthan v. Karam Chand, AIR 1965 SC 913 (Fundamental right).

- (iii) Khurai Municipality v. Kamal Kumar, AIR 1965 SC 1321 (Mandatory provision violated).
- (iv) Bhopla Sugar Industry v. I.T.O., AIR 1967 SC 5949 (Alternative remedy).

Res Judicata

Where there has been a decision on the merits, the rule of constructive res judicata will be applicable to bar a second application founded on the same cause of action or as regards relief, which were asked for but not granted in the previous proceeding under article 226, or as regards a ground which ought to have been taken in the previous application, according to Explanation IV to section 11, Code of Civil Procedure; Direct Recruit Association v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1990 SC 1607, paragraph 35.

Service matters

In a writ proceeding relating to a service matter, even where the petition is dismissed on the merits, the court may recommend a lesser punishment in view of the meritorious service of the delinquent; Laxmi Shanker v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1970, paragraphs 5, 7; Kaiarki v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1991 SC 1241, paragraph 6.

State Government

Direction given by the High Court under article 226 cannot be altered by the State Government; Parukutty Mannadissiar v. State of Kerala, AIR 1990 SC 817, 819, paragraphs 4-6.

Statutory Authority

The court would interfere where the statutory authority blindly acts in compliance with the direction or advice given by the Government or the Commission; Nagaraj v. Syndicate Bank, (1991) 2 UJSC paragraphs 15,17 and 19.

Statutory instrument

A statutory instrument may be ultra vires if it abuses its power by acting in bad faith; Supreme Court Employees v. Union of India, AIR 1990 338 SC, paragraph 105.

Tax

Even where a petition under article 226 would lie for refund on the ground of declaration of unconstitutionality of a tax, the court would not bound to order refund automatically; Orissa Cement v. State of Orissa, AIR 1991 SC 1676, paragraphs 72-73 (3 Judges).

A refund of tax already collected may be ordered in a proceeding for a mandamus as a consequential relief for the enforcement of fundamental rights; Salonab Tea v. Supdt. of Taxes, AIR 1990 SC 772, paragraph 6.

Tribunal

Even where the jurisdiction of the courts is excluded by the statute or the constitution itself, e.g. under article 226 (2), the Supreme Court retains its jurisdiction to decide the parameters of the jurisdiction of the Tribunal which depends upon an interpretation of the constitution or the statute (as the case may be). What is excluded is the power of the courts to sit in judgment over the merits of the Tribunal's decision; State of T.N. v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 2 UJSC 134.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Unincorporated association

An unincorporated association does not fall within any of the above categories. Unincorporated associations are not legal "persons" and, as such, writ petitions are not maintainable by them. An association could be formed to protect the interests of consumers, tenants or other groups, with common interest, but such a group cannot move a writ application, if it is not incorporated. Nor can they move writ application as a public interest litigation in a representative capacity; Land Carriers Owners Union v. Trustees Board of Calcutta, AIR 1990 Cal 176, paragraphs 13 and 14 (Bhagabati Prasad Banerjee, J.).

Universities

The Chancellor, when acting under section 31(8) (a), U.P. State Universities Act, 1873, is not acting in a quasi-judicial capacity, but in an administrative capacity. There is no provision in the section for hearing, and natural justice cannot be implied. Of course, the Chancellor has to act properly and for the purpose for which the power is conferred. He must take a decision in accordance with the Act and the statutes of the University. He must not be guided by extraneous or irrelevant considerations. He must not act illegally, irrationally or arbitrarily; Neelima Misra v. Harinder Kumar Paintal, AIR 1990 SC 1402, 1410, 1411, paragraphs 24-26.

Waiver

A candidate cannot be forced to withdraw an application for admission to medical college. "If a candidate can withdraw his application for admission to Medical/Dental college, he can certainly withdraw the application for admission to Medical/ Dental college or physiotherapy course." The High Court pointed out that there was no rule by which the High Courts could obtain the candidate's signature on an application for withdrawal; S.K. Awatramane v. State of Gujarat, AIR 1990 Guj 65, 73, paragraph 13 (R.C. Mankad, J.).

As held in Bashesharnath v. I.T.C., AIR 1959 SC 149, article 14 is in the nature of an admonition to the State. There cannot be a waiver of fundamental rights. If a person who has taken an examination agrees (when applying for re-evaluation) to abide by the notification which prohibits re-ranking, that part of the notification is not binding on him; Ajay Bansal v. Bangalore University, AIR 1990 Karn 225, paragraph 17.

227. Power of superintendence over all courts by the High Court.—²[(1) Every High Court shall have superintendence over all courts and tribunals throughout the territories in relation to which it exercises jurisdiction.]

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, the High Court may—

- (a) call for returns from such courts;
- (b) make and issue general rules and prescribe forms for regulating the practice and proceedings of such courts; and

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 39 (w.e.f. 1-2-1977).

2. Clause (1) has been successively subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 40 (w.e.f. 21-2-1977) and the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 31 to read as above (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).

(c) prescribable forms in which books, entries and accounts shall be kept by the officers of any such courts.

(3) The High Court may also settle tables of fees to be allowed to the sheriff and all clerks and officers of such courts and to attorneys, advocates and pleaders practising therein:

Provided that any rules made, forms prescribed or tables settled under clause (2) or clause (3) shall not be inconsistent with the provision of any law for the time being in force, and shall require the previous approval of the Governor.

(4) Nothing in this article shall be deemed to confer on a High Court powers of superintendence over any court of tribunal constituted by or under any law relating to the Armed Forces.

¹[]

Notes on Article 227

Interference under article 227 (1) can be suo motu, but cannot be resorted to merely because the High Court takes a different view on the merits. Generally, it is limited to want of jurisdiction errors of law, perverse findings, gross violation of natural justice and so on.

See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Nibaran v. Mahendra, AIR 1963 SC 1895.
- (ii) D.N. Banerjee v. Mukherjee, (1953) SCR 302, 304.
- (iii) Chandavarka v. Ashalata, (1986) 4 SCC 447.
- (iv) Mohd. Yunus v. Mohd. Mustaque, AIR 1984 SC 38.

West Bengal Act 25 of 1988 has inserted, in the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, a new section 115A, giving revisional jurisdiction to the District Court. The new section 115A, inter alia bars further revision "by the High Court or any other court", by providing that the decision of the District Court on such proceeding shall be final. But the Calcutta High Court has held, that the Act cannot deprive the High Court of its power of superintendence under article 227 of the Constitution. "No legislation—and far less a State legislation—can forfeit, limit, curtail, enlarge or abridge the power under article 227 of the Constitution. By ordinary process of legislation, even the Union Legislature cannot do it"; Umaji v. Radhikabai, AIR 1988 SC 1272, following Paltu Dutta v. S.M. Nibedita, AIR 1990 Cal 262, 265, paragraph 11 (A.K. Nandi J).

Scope and nature

Jurisdiction vested in the High Court under article 227 is a revisional jurisdiction and, accordingly, no Letters Patent Appeal is competent from an order passed by a single Judge in exercise of such jurisdiction; Sushilabai v. Nihalchand, (1993) Supp (1) SCC 11, paragraph 4; R.D. CCB v. Dinkar, (1993) Supp (1) SCC 9, paragraph 3.

This power (power under article 227) does not vest the High Court with any unlimited prerogative to correct all species of hardship or wrong decisions made within the limits of the jurisdiction of the court or tribunal; Nizzar v. Varghese, AIR 1992 Ker 312.

The High Court would not interfere with a finding of fact, within the jurisdiction of the inferior tribunal, except where it is perverse or not based on any material whatever, or the conclusion arrived at is such that no reasonable tribunal could possibly have come to, or it has resulted in manifesting injustice; Mani v. Piroz, AIR 1991 SC 1492, paragraph 16.

1. Clause (5) was ins. by Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 40 (w.e.f. 1-2-1977) and omitted by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 31 (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).

Reasons

Where a statutory appellate tribunal brushes aside the well-reasoned order of the primary statutory authority, on conjectures and without giving cogent reasons, there is an error apparent on the record, and the High Court may interfere; Sate of W.B. v. Atul, (1991) Supp (1) SC 414, paragraph 11.

Jurisdictional

Relief under art. 227 is granted against inferior tribunals where the tribunal decides wrongly, a question as to its own jurisdiction; Ram Prasad v. S.T.A.T., AIR 1993 MP 92, paragraph 7 (DB).

Locus Standi

Any person who is likely to be affected by the impugned order, even though he has no present interest in the property, is entitled to make an application under art. 227. In the case of a public injury, even a neighbour has been allowed to apply; Sarada v. Shakuntala, AIR 1991 AP 20, paragraph 9.

228. Transfer of certain cases to High Court.—If the High Court is satisfied that a case pending in a court subordinate to it involves a substantial question of law as to the interpretation of this Constitution the determination of which is necessary for the disposal of the case,¹ [it shall withdraw the case and² [] may—].

(a) either dispose of the case itself, or

(b) determine the said question of law and return the case to the court from which the case has been so withdrawn together with a copy of its judgment on such question, and the said court shall on receipt thereof proceed to dispose of the case in conformity with such judgment.

³228A. Special provisions as to disposal of questions relating to constitutional validity of State Laws.—[Rep. by the Constitution (Forty-third Amendment) Act, 1977, sec. 10 (w.e.f. 13-4-1978)].

229. Officers and servants and the expenses of High Courts.—(1) Appointments of officers and servants of a High Court shall be made by the Chief Justice of the Court or such other Judge or officer of the court as he may direct:

Provided that the Governor of the State⁴ [] may by rule require that in such cases as may be specified in the rule no person not already attached to the court shall be appointed to any office connected with the court save after consultation with the State Public Service Commission.

(2) Subject to the provisions of any law made by the Legislature of the State, the conditions of service of officers and servants of a High Court shall be such as may be prescribed by rules made by the Chief Justice of the Court or by some other Judge or officer of the court authorised by the Chief Justice to make rules for the purpose :

Provided that the rules made under this clause shall, so far as they relate to salaries allowances, leave or pensions, require the approval of the Governor of the State¹ [].

(3) The administrative expenses of a High Court, including all salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the officers and servants of the court, shall be charged upon the Consolidated Fund of the State, and any fees or other moneys taken by the court shall form part of that Fund.

Notes on article 229

Rule made under article 229 (1) and (2) proviso must be observed. An appointment made by the Chief Justice without consulting the Public Service Commission is not proper; H.C. Puttaswamy A. v. Chief Justice of Karnataka High Court, AIR 1991 SC 295.

²[230. Extension of jurisdiction of High Courts to Union territories.—(1) Parliament may by law extend the jurisdiction of a High Court to, or exclude the jurisdiction of a High Court from, any Union territory.

(2) Where the High Court of a State exercises jurisdiction in relation to a Union territory,—

- (a) nothing in this Constitution shall be construed as empowering the Legislature of the State to increase, restrict or abolish that jurisdiction; and
- (b) the reference in article 227 to the Governor shall, in relation to any rules, forms or tables for subordinate courts in that territory, be construed as a reference to the President.

231. Establishment of a common High Court for two or more States.—(1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the preceding provisions of this Chapter, Parliament may by law establish a common High Court for two or more States or for two or more States and a Union Territory.

(2) In relation to any such High Court,—

- (a) the reference in article 217 to the Governor of the State shall be construed as a reference to the Governors of all the States in relation to which the High Court exercises jurisdiction;
- (b) the reference in article 227 to the Governor shall, in relation to any rules, forms or tables for subordinate courts, be construed as a reference to the Governor of the State in which the subordinated courts are situate; and
- (c) the references in articles 219 and 229 to the State shall be construed as a reference to the State in which the High Court has its principal seat:

Provided that if such principal seat is in a Union territory, the references in articles 210 and 229 to the Governor, Public Service Commission, Legislature and Consolidated Fund of the State shall be construed respectively as references to the President, Union Public Service Commission, Parliament and Consolidated Fund of India.]

CHAPTER VI—SUBORDINATE COURTS

(2) A person not already in the service of the Union or of the State shall only be eligible to be appointed a district judge if he has been for not less than seven years an advocate or a pleader and is recommended by the High Court for appointment.

post of district shall be vested in the High Court, but nothing in this article shall be construed as taking away from any such person any right of appeal which he may have under the law regulating the conditions of his service or as authorising the High Court to deal with him otherwise than in accordance with the conditions of his service prescribed under such law.

Notes on Article 235

The leading cases on article 235 are the following :—

(2) The Legislature of a State may, by law, make provision with respect to—

(a) the composition of the Metropolitan Planning Committees;

(b) the manner in which the seats in such Committees shall be filled:

Provided that not less than two-thirds of the members of such Committee shall be elected by, and from amongst, the elected members of the Municipalities and Chairpersons of the Panchayats in the Metropolitan area in proportion to the ratio between the population of the Municipalities and of the Panchayats in that area;

(c) the representation in such Committees of the Government of India and the Government of the State and of such organisations and institutions as may be deemed necessary for carrying out the functions assigned to such Committees;

(d) the functions relating to planning and coordination for the Metropolitan area which may be assigned to such Committees;

(e) the manner in which the Chairpersons of such Committees shall be chosen.

(3) Every Metropolitan Planning Committee shall, in preparing the draft development plan,—

(a) have regard to—

(i) the plans prepared by the Municipalities and the Panchayats in the Metropolitan area;

(ii) matters of common interest between the Municipalities and the Panchayats, including co-ordinated spatial planning of the area, sharing of water and other physical and natural resources, the integrated development of infrastructure and environmental conservation;

(iii) the overall objectives and priorities set by the Government of India and the Government of the State;

- (iv) the extent and nature of investments likely to be made in the Metropolitan area by agencies of the Government of India and of the Government of the State and other available resources whether financial or otherwise;
 - (b) consult such institutions and organisations as the Governor may, by order, specify.
- (4) The Chairperson of every Metropolitan Planning Committee shall forward the development plan, as recommended by such Committee, to the Government of the State.

243ZF. Continuance of existing laws and Municipalities.—Notwithstanding in this Part, any provision of any law relating to Municipalities in force in a State immediately before the commencement of the Constitution (Seventy-fourth Amendment) Act, 1992, which is inconsistent with the provisions of this Part, shall continue to be in force until amended or repealed by a competent Legislature or other competent authority or until the expiration of one year from such commencement, whichever is earlier:

Provided that all the Municipalities existing immediately before such commencement shall continue till the expiration of their duration, unless sooner dissolved by a resolution passed to that effect by the Legislative Assembly of that State or, in the case of a State having a Legislative Council, by each House of the Legislature of that State.

243ZG. Bar to interference by Courts in electoral matters.—Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution,—

- (a) the validity of any law relating to the delimitation of constituencies or the allotment of seats to such constituencies, made or purporting to be made Article 243ZA shall not be called in question in any Court;
- (b) no election to any Municipality shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as is provided for by or under any law made by the Legislature of a State.] -

PART X

THE SCHEDULED AND TRIBAL AREAS

244. Administration of Scheduled Areas and Tribal Areas.—(1) The provisions of the Fifth Schedule shall apply to the administration and control of the Scheduled Areas and Scheduled Tribes in any State¹[] other than²[the State of Assam³]⁴[Meghalaya, Tripura and Mizoram]]].

(2) The provisions of the Sixth Schedule shall apply to the administration of the tribal areas in²[the State of Assam, ³[⁵Meghalaya, Tripura and Mizoram]]].

⁶[244A. Formation of an autonomous State comprising certain tribal areas in Assam and creation of local Legislature or Council of Ministers or both therefor.]—(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, Parliament may, by law, form within the State of Assam an autonomous State comprising (whether wholly or in part) all or any of the tribal areas specified in⁷[Part I] of the table appended to paragraph 20 of the Sixth Schedule and create therefor—

(a) a body, whether elected or partly nominated and partly elected, to function as Legislature for the autonomous State, or

(b) a Council of Ministers, or both with such constitution, powers and functions, in each case, as may be specified in the law.

(2) Any such law as is referred to in clause (1) may, in particular,—

(a) specify the matters enumerated in the State List or the Concurrent List with respect to which the Legislature of the autonomous State shall have power to make laws for the whole or any part thereof, whether to the exclusion of the Legislature of the State of Assam or otherwise;

(b) define the matters with respect to which the executive power of the autonomous State shall extend;

(c) provide that any tax levied by the State of Assam shall be assigned to the autonomous State in so far as the proceeds thereof are attributable to the autonomous State;

(d) provide that any reference to a State in any article of this Constitution shall be construed as including a reference to the autonomous State; and

1. The words and letters "specified in Part A or Part B of the First Schedule" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.
2. Subs. by the North-Eastern Areas (Reorganisation) Act, 1971 (81 of 1971), sec. 71, for "for State of Assam" (w.e.f. 21-1- 1972).
3. Subs. by the State of Mizoram Act, 1986 (34 of 1986), sec. 39, for "Meghalaya and Tripura" (w.e.f. 20-2- 1987).
4. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-ninth Amendment) Act, 1984, sec. 2, for "and Meghalaya" (w.e.f. 1985).
5. Subs. by the State of Mizoram Act, 1986 (34 of 1986), sec. 39, for "Meghalaya and Tripura and Union territory of Mizoram" (w.e.f. 20-2- 1987).
6. Ins. by the Constitution (Twenty-second Amendment) Act, 1969, sec. 2.
7. Subs. by the North-Eastern Areas (Reorganisation) Act, 1971 (81 of 1971), sec. 71, for "Part A" (w.e.f. 21-1-1972).

(e) make such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions as may be deemed necessary.

(3) An amendment of any such law as aforesaid in so far as such amendment relates to any of the matters specified in sub-clause (a) or sub-clause (b) of clause (2) shall have no effect unless the amendment is passed in each House of Parliament by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting.

(4) Any such law as is referred to in this article shall not be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368 notwithstanding that it contains any provision which amends or has the effect of amending this Constitution.

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE UNION AND THE STATESCHAPTER I--LEGISLATIVE RELATIONSDistribution of Legislative Powers*

245. Extent of laws made by Parliament and by the Legislature of States.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may make laws for the whole or any part of the territory of India, and the Legislature of a State may make laws for the whole or any part of the State.

(2) No law made by Parliament shall be deemed to be invalid on the ground that it would have extra-territorial operation.

Notes on Article 245*Legislative powers of Parliament and State Legislatures: Limitations*

Legislative power under the Indian Constitution is subject to the following limitation:

- The federal scheme of distribution of legislative powers.
- Fundamental rights and other provisions of the Constitution, as to what laws can be passed.
- Constitutional provisions as to prior sanction or subsequent approval of the President in respect of certain Bills.
- The rule that a State Legislature cannot legislate extra-territorially—though Parliament does not suffer from this limitation, by virtue of article 245(2).
- The doctrine that the Legislature cannot delegate matters of policy.
- The doctrine that the legislation must not be a fraud on the Constitution.
- The doctrine that the legislature must make a 'law'. Its function is not adjudicatory nor executive, but only legislative.

Limitation (a) above flows from article 246.

Limitation (b) above flows from articles 12 and 13.

Limitation (c) above flows (i) from the general doctrine that all authority and power must be exercised in conformity with the Constitution and (ii) from the words 'Subject to the provisions of this Constitution' in article 245(1).

Limitation (d) above flows from the words 'for the whole or any of the State' in article 245(1) (as regards State Legislatures). See the undermentioned cases :

- State of Bihar v. Charusila*, AIR 1959 SC 1002.
- Tata Iron & Steel Co. v. State of Bihar*, AIR 1958 SC 452.

Limitation (e) above flows from the general principle that power given to a body by the Constitution must, in its essentials, be exercised by that body only.

Limitation (f) flows from another general principle that all constitutional and statutory powers must be exercised for the purpose for which they are intended. This aspect has been discussed exhaustively in; D.C. Wadhwa v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 579, See also Poona Municipality v. Dattatraya, AIR 1965 SC 555.

Limitation (g) above flows from interpretation of the word 'law' occurring in article 245(1) which confers the power to make 'laws'. On this point, see the undermentioned cases :

- Basanta v. Empor*, AIR 1944 FC 86.

- (ii) Indira v. Raj Narain, AIR 1975 SC 2299.
- (iii) Mishri Lal v. State of Orissa, AIR 1977 SC 1686.
- (iv) Government of A.P. v. H.M.T., AIR 1975 SC 2037.
- (v) City of Ahmedabad v. New Shorrock Spinning, AIR 1970 SC 119.
- (vi) Tirath Ram v. State of U.P., AIR 1973 SC 405.

Delegation

The power to alter the applicability of the Act, by amending the Schedule, according to the change in local conditions, may be delegated, provided standards for guidance are provided in the Act; Kishan v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1990 SC 2269, paragraph 4.

The Legislature may leave it to the judgment of a local administrative body as to the necessity of applying or introducing the Act in a local area, or the determination of a contingency or even, upon the happening of which the legislative provisions are made to operate this is known as conditional legislation; Orient Paper v. State of Orissa, AIR 1991 SC 672, paragraphs 27-29.

Incidental Provisions

While enacting a law in exercise of a particular legislative power, the legislature may make all incidental and ancillary provisions to make the law effective, but it would not extend to purposes which are not ancillary; T.E.S.C. v. State of Assam, AIR 1990 SC 123, paragraph 129.

But taxation is not an ancillary power and cannot be deduced from a regulatory law; Synthetics v. State of U.P., AIR 1990 SC 1927.

Limits

In a federal Constitution, transgression of its limits of power by a legislature may be (i) open, direct and overt or (ii) disquised, indirect and covert. The latter is called 'colourable legislation'. Entries in the 7th Sch. should be construed as to avoid conflict. On applying this test the Expenditure Tax Act is not colourable legislation. It is within the competence of Parliament; Federation of Hotel and Restaurant v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1637.

Motive

If the legislature is competent to make a particular law, its motive in enacting it, or the fact that it would operate harshly on some persons, or that it failed to enact a connected legislation, is irrelevant; Ashok v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1792, paragraph 6.

Subjudice

If a legislature has the power to amend a provision, there is nothing colourable if it uses that power during the pendency of a writ petitions challenging the validity of that provision in order to adverse in possible adverse verdict in that writ petition; Hotel Balaji v. State of A.P., AIR 1993 SC 1048, paragraph 32.

Validating Act

Legislature may validate an unlawful executive Act, including an unauthorised assessment of tax, and with retrospective effect, subject to constitutional limitation; Yadlapati v. State of A.P., AIR 1991 SC 704, paragraph 7.

The validating power and to give retrospective effect to any legislation can be exercised only subject to constitutional limitations; Yadlapati v. State of A.P., AIR 1991 SC 704, paragraph 7.

246. Subject-matter of laws made by Parliament and by the Legislatures of States.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in clauses (2) and (3), Parliament has exclusive power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List I in the Seventh Schedule (in this Constitution referred to as the 'Union List').

(2) Notwithstanding anything in clause (3), Parliament, and, subject to clause (1) the Legislature of any State¹[*] also, have power to make laws with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List III in the Seventh Schedule (in this Constitution referred to as the 'Concurrent List').

(3) Subject to clauses (1) and (2), the Legislature of any State¹[*] has exclusive power to make laws for such State or any part thereof with respect to any of the matters enumerated in List II in the Seventh Schedule (in this Constitution referred to as the 'State List').

(4) Parliament has power to make laws with respect to any matter for any part of the territory of India not included²[in a State] notwithstanding that such matter is a matter enumerated in the State List.

Notes on Article 246

Doctrine of pith and substance

In no field of constitutional law is the comparative approach more useful than in regard to the doctrine of pith and substance. This is a doctrine which has come to be established in India and derives its genesis from the approach adopted by the courts (including the Privy Council) in dealing with controversies arising in other federations. Briefly stated, what the doctrine means is this. Where the question arises of determining whether a particular law relates to a particular subject mentioned in one list or another, the court looks to the substance of the matter. Thus, if the substance falls within Union List, then the incidental encroachment by the law on the State List does not make it invalid. This principle had come to be established by the Privy Council when it determined appeals from Canada or Australia involving the question of legislative competence of the federation or the States in those countries. In India, the doctrine came to be established in the pre-independence period under the Government of India Act, 1935. The classical example is the Privy Council judgment in Prafulla v. Bank of Commerce, AIR 1946 PC 60, holding that a State law dealing with money lending (a State subject) is not invalid merely because it incidentally affects promissory notes (Union List, entry 46). The doctrine is sometimes expressed in terms of ascertaining the true character of legislation and it is also emphasised that the name given by the Legislature to the legislation in the short title is immaterial. Again, for applying pith and substance doctrine, regard is to be had (i) to the enactment as a whole, (ii) to its main objects, and (iii) to the scope and effect of its provisions—

The undermentioned decisions illustrate the above proposition:-

- (i) Southern Pharmaceuticals v. State of Kerala, AIR 1981 SC 1865, paragraph 15 (incidental encroachment to be disregarded).
 - (ii) Premi v. Chhabra, (1984) 2 SCC 302, paragraph 8.
 - (iii) State of Rajasthan v. Chawla, AIR 1959 SC 544, 547.
 - (iv) Amar Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1955) 2 SCR 803 (extent of invasion immaterial).
1. The words and letters "specified in Part A or Part B of the First Schedule" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.
 2. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for "in Part A or Part B of the First Schedule".

(v) D.C.G.M. v. Union of India, AIR 1983 SC 937, paragraph 33 (Incidental encroachment immaterial).

operative Society

Inder State list entry 32, legislation can be passed for providing for nomination by Government & Chairman and members of the Committee of Management of cooperative societies. It is open to State to legislate on any or all aspects of cooperative societies including their managements; Komal Prasad Gupta v. State, AIR 1990 Pat 81, paragraph 24 (FB).

legislative list : Entries

Entries in the legislative lists are to be construed according to pith and substance. Bombay Money-Lenders Act, 1946 is enacted under the State list, entry relating to "Money-lending, money lenders and relief of agricultural indebtedness". It does not fall within Union list, entry 46 (Bills of exchange etc.); Bhanushankar v. Kamal Tara Bineders, AIR 1990 Bom 140, 141 (DB).

As observed by the Supreme Court in Ujagar Prints v. Union of India, AIR 1989 SC 516 graph 23:—

"Entries in the legislative lists, it may be recalled, are not sources of the legislative power, but merely topics or fields of legislation and must receive a liberal construction inspired by a broad generous spirit and not in a narrow pedantic sense. The expression with respect to article 246(g) in the doctrine of pith and substance in the understanding of the exertion of the legislative power and wherever the question of legislative competence is raised, the test is whether the legislature looked at as a whole is substantially with respect to the particular topic of legislation. If the legislation has a substantial and not merely a remote connection with the entry, the matter may well be taken to be legislation on the topic."

entry of goods

State Legislature cannot levy taxes on the entry of goods into local which are not meant for consumption, use or sale therein. If in the exercise of its authority, the State Legislature uses wide words, such words are construed in such a manner that it is held that the State Legislature had intended to restrict those words and phrases in their meaning within the parameters of the competence of the State Legislature. The State Legislature cannot empower municipal committees to levy taxes only on the entry of goods within the local areas, when those goods are not meant for consumption, sale or use within that area; Indian Oil Corporation v. Municipal Corporation, AIR 1990

essential Commodities

Our legislation relation to essential commodities illustrates the position what is an essential commodity has to be determined not merely from the terms of the Essential Commodities Act, 1955, but also with reference to section 2(a) (xi) read with notifications issued thereunder from time to time, Section 2(a)(xi) provides as under:

"Any other class of commodity which the Central Government may, by notified order declare to be an essential commodity for the purposes of this Act, being a commodity with respect to which Parliament has power to make laws by virtue of Entry 33 in List III in the Seventh Schedule of the Constitution."

Thus, for determining the scope of the Act, one has to refer to the entry in this Constitution relating to the subject. Now, the Constitution, in the Concurrent List, Entry 33, provides as under: "Trade and Commerce in, and the production, supply and distribution of,— the products of any industry where the control of such industry by the Union is declared by Parliament by law to be expedient in the public interest, and imported goods of the same kind as such products".

It may further be mentioned that section 2 of the Industries (Development and Regulation) Act 1951 declares that it is expedient in the public interest that the Union should take under its control the commodities specified in the schedule to the Act, which includes cement. On this basis the Delhi High Court in Trans Yamuna Cement Dealers Association v. Governor of Delhi, AIR 1982 Del 247, has held that the Delhi Cement and Licensing and Control Order, 1982 is valid.

Mala fide

Under the unamended Income Tax Act, 1961 the legislature had already classified Income Tax Officer into grades and given power to Government to appoint and sanction their appointments. The amendment of 1987 redesignated these posts and made certain other provisions. It was held that it can hardly be argued that the amended Act was passed mala fide to destroy the cause of action in the present petitions. This is apart from the fact that no legislation can be challenged on the ground that it is mala fide; Hundraj Kanyalal Sajnani v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1106.

Mines

Union list entry 54 reads "Regulation of mines and mineral development to the extent to which such regulation and development under the control of the Union is declared by Parliament by law to be expedient in the public interest. Such a law was passed in 1957—The Mines and Minerals (Regulation and Development) Act, 1957. The Act of 1957 covers all mineral oils, including minor entry 23 reads—"Regulation of mines and mineral development, subject to the provisions of List I with respect to regulation and development under the control of the Union". Any legislation by the State after such declaration by Parliament is unconstitutional, because that field is abstracted from the legislative competence of the State Legislature; Nanganayaka v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1990 Karn 97, 103, 104, paragraphs 10-13. See the undermentioned cases :

Baijnath v. State of Bihar, AIR 1970 SC 1436, 1443, 1444, 1445 (reviews case law).

State of Tamil Nadu v. Hind Stones, AIR 1981 SC 711.

Preventive detention

With reference to legislative entries relating to preventive detention (Union list entry 9 and Concurrent list 1, entry 3) the expressions (i) 'security of State' and 'security of India' are different expressions. It has been held that Parliament can enact legislation for preventive detention of smugglers (COFEPOSA) and for the forfeiture of assets obtained by smuggling; Attorney-General of India v. Amratlal Pranjivanlal, JT (1994) 3 SC 583.

Stamp duties

Article 25(b) of the Bombay Stamp Act, 1958 (as amended in 1985), which levies stamp duty on documents of transfer of shares in cooperative societies, falls within concurrent list, entry 44 (Stamp duties—but not including rates of stamp duty and State list entry 63(Rates of Stamp duty in respect of document other than those specified in the provision of List I with regard to rates of stamp duty). It is therefore within the competence of the State legislature. In any case the Act has received the assent of President and its validity cannot be questioned. See the undermentioned cases :

Hanuman Vitamin Foods. v. State, AIR 1990 Bom 204, 207, 208, paragraphs 5 and 6 (DB) following; Bar Council of U.P. v. State of UP, AIR 1973 SC 231, paragraph 12.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFA5b7RseosPhQQ>

Preventive detention

Construing Union list entry 66, Supreme Court has held that the University Grants Commission has jurisdiction to coordinate and maintain standards of higher education. The Regulation of 1991, made under section 26, University Grants Commission Act regarding qualifications for teachers was held to be valid; University of Delhi v. Raj Singh, JT (1994) 6 SC 1.

Pith and substance

No question of conflict between two lists will arise if the impugned legislation, by the application of the doctrine of 'pith and substance' appears to fall exclusively under one list, and the encroachment upon another list is only incidental; Viswanathiah v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 3 SCC 358, paragraph 9.

Reconciliation

It should be considered whether a fair reconciliation cannot be effected by giving to the language of the Union Legislative List a meaning which, if less wide than it might in another context bear, is yet one that can properly be given to it and equally giving to the language of the State Legislative list a meaning which it can properly bear; Federation of Hotel and Restaurant v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1637, paragraph 12 (CB).

Effect of declaration

Even when Parliament makes a declaration under Entry 52 of List I that the control of a particular industry by the Union is expedient in the public interest, the State Legislature shall retain its power to legislate in regard to the raw materials used in that industry; Viswanathiah v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 3 SCC 358, paragraph 6 (3 Judge Bench).

Even when Parliament legislates under Entry 7 or 52 of List I, the exclusion of the State Legislature is not total, it would be confined only to those aspects of the industry which are brought under the control of the Union by the relevant legislation; Orissa Cement Co. v. State, (1991) Supp I SCC 430, paragraphs 42 and 43.

Effect of subject to

When one Entry is made subject to another Entry, it means that out of the scope of the former Entry, a field of legislation covered by the latter Entry has been reserved to be specially dealt with by the appropriate Legislature; Mahabir v. State, AIR 1991 Pat 40, paragraph 46.

Industries

The power of the State Legislature as regards industries other than those falling under the union list is exclusive; Viswanathiah v. State of Karnataka, (1991) 3 SCC 358, paragraphs 6 and 8.

247. Power of Parliament to provide for the establishment of certain additional courts.— Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, Parliament may by law provide for the establishment of any additional courts for the better administration of laws made by Parliament or of any existing law with respect to a matter enumerated in the Union List.

248. Residuary powers of legislation.—(1) Parliament has exclusive power to make any law with respect to any matter not enumerated in the Concurrent List or State List.

(2) Such power shall include the power of making any law imposing a tax not mentioned in either of those List.

249. Power of Parliament to legislate with respect to a matter in the State list in the national interest.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, if the Council of States has declared by resolution supported by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting that it is necessary or expedient in the national interest that Parliament should make laws with respect to any matter enumerated in the State List specified in the resolution, it shall be lawful for Parliament to make laws for the whole or any part of the territory of India with respect to that matter whole the resolution remains in force.

(2) A resolution passed under clause (1) shall remain in force for such period not exceeding one year as may be specified therein:

Provided that, if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of any such resolution is passed in the manner provided in clause (1), such resolution shall continue in force for a further period of one year from the date on which under this clause it would otherwise have ceased to be in force.

(3) A law made by Parliament which Parliament would not but for the passing of a resolution under clause (1) have been competent to make shall, to the extent of the incompetency, cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the resolution has ceased to be in force, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of the said period.

250. Power of Parliament to legislate with respect to any matter in State List if a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Chapter, Parliament shall, while a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, have power to make laws for the whole or any part of the territory of India with respect to any of the matters enumerated in the State List.

(2) A law made by Parliament which Parliament would not but for the issue of a Proclamation of Emergency have been competent to make shall, to the extent of the incompetence, cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of six months after the Proclamation has ceased to operate, except as respects things done or omitted to be done before the expiration of the said period.

251. Inconsistency between laws made by Parliament under articles 249 and 250, and laws made by the Legislatures of States.—Nothing in articles 249 and 250 shall restrict the power of the Legislature of a State to make any law which under this Constitution it has power to make, but if any provision of a law made by the Legislature of a State is repugnant to any provision of a law made by Parliament which Parliament has under either or the said articles power to make, the law made by Parliament, whether passed before or after the law made by the Legislature of the State, shall prevail, and the law made by the Legislature of the State shall to the extent of the repugnancy, but so long only as the law made by Parliament continues to have effect, be inoperative.

252. Power of Parliament to legislate for two or more States by consent and adoption of such legislation by any other State.—(1) If it appears to the Legislatures of two or more States to be desirable that any of the matters with respect to which Parliament has no power to make laws for the States except as provided in articles 249 and 250 should be regulated in such States by Parliament by law, and if resolutions to that effect are passed by all the Houses of the Legislatures of those States, it shall be lawful for Parliament to pass an Act for regulating that matter accordingly, and any Act so passed shall apply to such States and to any other State by which it is adopted afterwards by resolution passed in that behalf by the House or, where there are two Houses, by each of the Houses of the Legislature of that State.

(2) Any Act so passed by Parliament may be amended or repealed by an Act of Parliament passed or adopted in like manner but shall not, as respects any State to which it applies, be amended or repealed by an Act of the Legislature of that State.

Notes on Article 252

The article makes it possible for Parliament to make such laws relating to State subjects as regards such States whose legislature empower Parliament in this behalf by resolutions. Passing of the resolutions is a condition precedent for vesting the power in Parliament.

When only a distinct and separate part of a State Entry is transferred by the resolutions the State Legislature, do not lose their power to legislate with respect to the rest of that Entry; Krishna v. Land Tribunal, AIR 1993 SC 883, paragraph 3.

253. Legislation for giving effect to international agreements.—Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, Parliament has power to make any law for the whole or any part of the territory of India for implementing any treaty, agreement or convention with any other country or countries or any decision made at any international conference, association or other body.

254. Inconsistency between laws made by Parliament and laws made by the Legislatures of States.—(1) If any provision of a law made by the Legislature of a State is repugnant to any provisions of a law made by Parliament which Parliament is competent to enact, or to any provision of an existing law with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent List, then, subject to the provisions of clause (2), the law made by Parliament, whether passed before or after the law made by the Legislature of such State, or, as the case may be, the existing law, shall prevail and the law made by the Legislature of the State shall, to the extent of the repugnancy, be void.

(2) Where a law made by the Legislature of a State¹ [] with respect to one of the matters enumerated in the Concurrent List contains any provision repugnant to the provisions of an earlier law made by Parliament or an existing law with respect to that matter, then, the law so made by the Legislature of such State shall, if it has been reserved for the consideration of the President and has received his assent, prevail in the State:

Provided that nothing in this clause shall prevent Parliament from enacting at any time any law with respect to the same matter including a law adding to, amending, varying or repealing the law so made by the Legislature of the State.

1. The words and letters " specified in Part A or Part B of the First Schedule" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

Note on Article 254

The operation of article 254 is not complex. The real problem that in practice arises is the problem of determining whether a particular State law is repugnant to a Central Act. A number of judicial decisions (noted below) give guidance as to when repugnancy arises. The important rulings are:

- (i) Zaverbhai v. State of Bombay, AIR 1954 SC 752.
- (ii) Tika Ramji v. State of U.P., (1956) SCR 393.
- (iii) Municipal Corporation v. Shiv Shankar, AIR 1971 SC 815.
- (iv) Karunanidhi v. Union of India, AIR 1979 SC 898.
- (v) Western Coalfields v. Special Area Development, AIR 1982 SC 697.
- (vi) Raghbir v. State of Haryana, AIR 1981 SC 2037.

Union and State legislation

The scheme of distribution of legislative powers under the India Constitution—such distribution being a necessary component of a federal political structure—raises interesting issues where the co-existence of central and State laws in a particular area give rise to litigation. Such problem arises either because the Union or a State may illegally encroach upon the province of the other parallel legislature or it may arise because though there is no encroachment as such on each other's sphere, yet, the two laws clash with each other. The two situations are, strictly speaking, different from each other and they must be judged by two different test. Where the subject-matter of the legislation in question falls within either the Union List or the State List only, the question is to be decided with reference to legislative competence. One of the two laws must necessarily be void because leaving aside matters in the Concurrent List, the Indian Constitution confers exclusive jurisdiction upon Parliament for matters in the Union List and upon a State Legislature for matters in the State List. The correct doctrine applicable is that of ultra vires.

The above is a case of exclusive jurisdiction and since one of the two laws must be void, the question of inconsistency between the two has no application. Only one law will survive and other law will not survive. In contrast, where the legislation passed by the Union and the State is on a subject-matter included in the Concurrent List, then the matter cannot be determined by applying the test of ultra vires because the hypothesis is that both the laws are constitutionally valid. In such a case, the test to be adopted will be that of repugnancy under article 254(2). It follows that it is only where the legislation is on a matter in the Concurrent List that it would be relevant to apply the test of repugnancy. Notwithstanding the contrary view expressed by some authors, this is the correct position. Such a view was expressed by Dr. D. Basu in his Commentary on the Constitution of India (1950), page 564 and it is this view that has been upheld by the Supreme Court in the undermentioned decisions :-

- (i) Deep Chand v. State of U.P., AIR 1959 SC 648.
- (ii) Premnath v. State of J&K, AIR 1959 SC 749.
- (iii) Ukha v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1963 SC 1531, paragraph 20.
- (iv) Bar Council v. State of U.P., AIR 1973 SC 231, 238.
- (v) Barai v. Henry, 1983 SC 150, paragraph 15.

Legal practitioners, Repugnance

Section 48(8) of the Karnataka Land Reforms Act, 1961 (as amended in 1974) prohibited the legal practitioners from appearing in proceedings before Land Tribunals. This was held to be repugnant to section 30 of the Advocates Act, 1961 and section 14 of the Bar Council's Act, 1926. The Supreme Court held that Union List Entries 77 and 78 are concerned with persons entitled to practice before the Supreme Court and High Court and these entries have been construed in; O.N. Mohanti v. Bar Council of India, AIR 1968 SC 888 as applied in Jaswant Kaur v. State of Haryana, AIR 1977 P&H 221, as regulating all aspects of the rights of advocates; Srinivas Ragavachar v. State of Karnataka, (1987) 2 SCC 692.

The test of 'pith and substance' has been applied to determine whether the State law has substantially transgressed on the field occupied by the law of Parliament. There is no 'repugnance' where the encroachment is not substantial, or the subject-matter of the legislation is not the same; State of U.P. v. Synthetic, (1991) 4 SCC 139, paragraphs 18 and 28.

If the State Legislature enacts a law which is not covered by its exclusive List-II but relates to a subject included in List-I, it is a patent case of ultra vires, because of art. 246 (1). It is beyond the competence of the State Legislature under clause (2) and pertains to the exclusive jurisdiction of Parliament under clause (1) of article 246; Orissa Cement v. State of Orissa, AIR 1991 SC 1676, paragraph 61.

Even when the provisions which are valid are distinct and separate from those which are invalid, if they all form part of a single scheme which is intended to be operative as a whole, then also the invalidity of a part will result in the failure of the whole; Fed. of M.A.R. v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1992 SC 103, paragraph 7 (3 Judge Bench).

In order to be valid assent for the purposes of clause (2), it must appear that the President was apprised of the reason why the assent was sought (e.g., that the State Act was repugnant to an earlier Act made by Parliament), and if there was any special reason why his assessment was sought; Kannan v. Dt. Collector, AIR 1991 AP 43, paragraph 7 (F.B.).

255. Requirements as to recommendations and previous sanctions to be regarded as matters of procedure only.—No Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of a State¹[], and no provision in any such Act, shall be invalid by reason only that some recommendation or previous sanction required by this Constitution was not given, if assent to that Act was given—

- (a) where the recommendation required was that of the Governor, either by the Governor or by the President;
- (b) where the recommendation required was that of the Rajpramukh, either by the Rajpramukh or by the President;
- (c) where the recommendation or previous sanction required was that of the President, by the President.

Notes on Article 255

Neither the Legislature nor the President has the power to declare that non-compliance with article 255 of the Constitution was of no effect; Utkal C. & J. v. State of Orissa, AIR 1987 SC 2310. By giving his assent to a subsequent Bill, the President cannot validate, with retrospective effect an earlier Act which had failed for want of the President's assent under article 255 so as to validate acts done under the invalid statute, because it would amount to a declaration that non-compliance with article 255 was of no consequence, which is a declaration beyond the competence of the President; Abdul Kadir v. State of Kerala, AIR 1976 SC 182.

CHAPTER II—ADMINISTRATIVE RELATIONS

General

256. Obligation of States and the Union.—The executive power of every State shall be so exercised as to ensure compliance with the laws made by Parliament and any existing laws which apply in that State, and the executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of such directions to a State as may appear to the Government of India to be necessary for that purpose.

257. Control of the Union over State in certain Cases.—(1) The executive power of every State shall be so exercised as not to impede or prejudice the exercise of the executive power of the Union, and the executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of such directions to a State as may appear to the Government of India to be necessary for that purpose.

(2) The executive power of the Union shall also extend to the giving of directions to a State as to the construction and maintenance of means of communication declared in the direction to be of national or military importance:

Provided that nothing in this clause shall be taken as restricting the power of Parliament to declare highways or waterways to be national highways or national waterways or the power of the Union with respect to the highways or waterways so declared or the power of the Union construct and maintain means of communication as part of its functions with respect to naval, military and air force works.

(3) The executive power of the Union shall also extend to the giving of directions to a State as to the measures to be taken for the protection of the railways within the State.

(4) Where in carrying out any direction given to a State under clause (2) as to the construction or maintenance of any means of communication or under clause (3) as to the measures to be taken for the protection of any railway, costs have been incurred in excess of those which would have been incurred in the discharge of the normal duties of the State if such direction had not been given, there shall be paid by the Government of India to the State such sum as may be agreed, or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by an arbitrator appointed by the Chief Justice of India, in respect of the extra cost so incurred by the State.

¹257A. Assistance to States by deployment of armed forces or other forces of the Union.—[Rep. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 33 (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).]

258. Power of the Union to confer powers, etc., on States in certain cases.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the President may, with the consent of the Government of a State, entrust either conditionally or unconditionally to that Government or to its officers functions in relation to any matter to which the executive power of the Union extends.

1. https://en.wikipedia.org/w/index.php?title=Article_256&oldid=784908730.

(2) A law made by Parliament which applies in any State may, notwithstanding that it relates to a matter with respect to which the Legislature of the State has no power to make laws, confer powers and impose duties, or authorise the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties, upon the State or officers and authorities thereof.

(3) Where by virtue of this article powers and duties have been conferred or imposed upon a State or officers or authorities thereof, there shall be paid by the Government of India to the State such sum as may be agreed, or, in default of agreement, as may be determined by an arbitrator appointed by the Chief Justice of India, in respect of any extra costs of administration incurred by the State in connection with the exercise of those powers and duties.

¹[258A. Power of the States to entrust functions to the Union.—Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the Governor of a State may, with the consent of the Government of India, entrust either conditionally or unconditionally to that Government or to its officers functions in relation to any matter to which the exclusive power of the State extends.]

259. Armed Forces in States in Part B of the First Schedule.—{Rep. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch. J}

260. Jurisdiction of the Union in relation to territories outside India.—The Government of India may by agreement with the Government of any territory not being part of the territory of India undertake any executive, legislative or judicial functions vested in the Government of such territory, but every such agreement shall be subject to, and governed by, and law relating to the exercise of foreign jurisdiction for the time being in force.

261. Public acts, records and judicial proceedings.—(1) Full faith and credit shall be given throughout the territory of India to public acts, records and judicial proceedings of the Union and of every State.

(2) The manner in which and the conditions under which the acts, records and proceedings referred to in clause (1) shall be proved and the effect thereof determined shall be as provided by law made by Parliament.

(3) Final judgments or orders delivered or passed by civil courts in any part of the territory of India shall be capable of execution anywhere within that territory according to law.

Disputes Relating to Waters

262. Adjudication of disputes relating to waters of inter-State rivers or river valleys.—(1) Parliament may by law provide for the adjudication of any dispute of complaint with respect to the use, distribution or control of the waters of, or in, any inter-State river or river valley.

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 18.

<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

(2) Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, Parliament may by law provide that neither the Supreme Court nor any other court shall exercise jurisdiction in respect of any such dispute or complaint as is referred to in clause (1).

Notes on Article 262

The Inter State Water Disputes Act, 1956, (33 of 1956) is legislation passed under article 262 of the Constitution. Section 11 of the Act excludes the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court in respect of a water dispute referred to the Tribunal. But the Supreme Court can direct that Central Government to fulfill its statutory obligation under section 4 of the Act, which is mandatory, particularly when the State of Tamil Nadu supported the writ petition filed for the purpose by a registered society; Tamil Nadu C.N.V.V.N. U.P. Sangam v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1316.

Co-ordination between States

263. Provisions with respect to an inter-State Council.—If at any time it appears to the President that the public interest would be served by the establishment of a Council charged with the duty of—

- (a) inquiring into and advising upon disputes which may have arisen between States;
- (b) investigating and discussing subjects in which some or all of the State, or the Union and one or more of the States, have a common interest; or
- (c) making recommendations upon any such subject and, in particular, recommendations for the better co-ordination of policy and action with respect to that subject, it shall be lawful for the President by order to establish such a Council, and to define the nature of the duties to be performed by it and its organisation and procedure.

Notes on Article 263

The Supreme Court has held that once the Central Government finds that the dispute referred to in the request received from the State Government cannot be settled by negotiations, it becomes mandatory for the Central Government to constitute a tribunal and to refer the dispute to it for adjudication.

If the Central Government fails to make such reference, the court may, on an application under Art. 32 by an aggrieved party issue mandamus to the Central Government to carry out its statutory obligation; T.N. Cauvery Sangam v. Union of India, (1990) 3 SCC 440, paragraph 18.

It is held by the Supreme Court that—

- (a) It is the exclusive function and duty of a court to interpret a statute and to determine the limits of the jurisdiction of any tribunal or statutory authority. This jurisdiction of the court is not barred by s.11 of the Act.
- (b) What is barred is the question whether any party before the tribunal is entitled to any relief on the merits.

In this case the tribunal held that it had no jurisdiction to grant any interim relief under the Act. The Supreme Court, on appeal by Special leave, held that the jurisdiction to grant interim relief had been con by agreement between the parties before the tribunal and the Supreme Court directed the tribunal to decide on the merits whether the appellant was entitled to any interim relief on the facts of the case; State of T.N. v. State of Karnataka, (1991) Supp (1) SCC 240, paragraphs 12, 15 and 22.

FINANCE, PROPERTY, CONTRACTS AND SUITS

CHAPTER I—FINANCE

General

¹[264. Interpretation.—In this Part, “Finance Commission” means a Finance Commission constituted under article 280.]

265. Taxes not to be imposed save by authority of law.—No tax shall be levied or collected except by authority of law.

Notes on Article 265

Article 265 requires that—

- (i) there must be a law;
- (ii) the law must authorise the tax; and
- (iii) the tax must be levied and collected according to the law.

Tax illegally levied must be refunded. Doctrine of “unjust enrichment” has to be applied after having regard to the facts of each case; New Indira Industries v. Union of India, AIR 1990 Bom 239 (FB) (case law reviewed).

Writ court can order refund of tax, paid under mistake of law; Salonah Tea Co. Ltd. v. Superintendent of Taxes, AIR 1990 SC 772, 774-776, paragraphs 6-13.

The authorisation made by the statute to levy a tax must be express. Taxing power cannot be derived from the delegation of mere regulating power, even though the tax was within the competence of the Legislature which made the delegation. The power to tax is not incidental or ancillary to the power to legislate on a matter; Synthetics & Chemicals Ltd. v. State of U.P., AIR 1990 SC 1927 (1952-53); Subhash v. State of Haryana, AIR 1992 P&H 20.

There is noting in the Constitution to present the same person or property being subject to both state and municipal legislation; Sri Krishna v. T.A.C.C., AIR 1991 SC 2096, paragraph 30.

266. Consolidated Funds and Public Accounts of India and of the States.— (1) Subject to the provisions of article 267 and to the provisions of this Chapter with respect to the assignment of the whole or part of the net proceeds of certain taxes and duties to States, all revenues received by the Government of India, all loans raised by that Government by the issue of treasury bills, loans or ways and means advances and all moneys received by that Government in repayment of loans shall form one consolidated fund to be entitled “the Consolidated Fund of India”, and all revenues received by the Government of a State, all loans raised by that Government by the issue of treasury bills, loans or ways and means advances and all money received by that Government in repayment of loans shall form one consolidated fund to be entitled “the Consolidated Fund of the State”.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for article 264.

- (2) All other public moneys received by or on behalf of the Government of India or the Government of a State shall be credited to the public account of India or the public account of the State, as the case may be.
- (3) No moneys out of the Consolidated Fund of India or the Consolidated Fund of a State shall be appropriated except in accordance with law and for the purposes and in the manner provided in this Constitution.

267. Contingency Fund.—(1) Parliament may by law establish a Contingency Fund in the nature of an imprest to be entitled; the Contingency Fund of India into which shall be paid from time to time such sums as may be determined by such law, and the said Fund shall be placed at the disposal of the President to enable advances to be made by him out of such Fund for the purposes of meeting unforeseen expenditure pending authorisation of such expenditure by Parliament by law under article 115 or article 116.

(2) The Legislature of a State may by law establish a Contingency Fund in the nature of an imprest to be entitled "the Contingency Fund of the State" into which shall be paid from time to time such sums as may be determined by such law, and the said Fund shall be placed at the disposal of the Governor^[] of the State to enable advances to be made by him out of such Fund for the purposes of meeting unforeseen expenditure pending authorisation of such expenditure by the Legislature of the State by law under article 205 or article 206.

Distribution of Revenues between the Union and the States

268. Duties levied by the Union but collected and appropriated by the States.—(1) Such stamp duties and such duties of excise on medicinal and toilet preparations as are mentioned in the Union List shall be levied by the Government of India but shall be collected—

- (a) in the case where such duties are leviable within any² [Union territory], by the Government of India, and
 - (b) in other case, by the States within which such duties are respectively leviable.
- (2) The proceeds in any financial year of any such duty leviable within any State shall not form part of the Consolidated Fund of India, but shall be assigned to that State.

269. Taxes levied and collected by the Union but assigned to the States.—(1) The following duties and taxes shall be levied and collected by the Government of India but shall be assigned to the States in the manner provided in clause (2), namely,—

- (a) duties in respect of succession to property other than agricultural land;
- (b) estate duty in respect of property other than agricultural land;
- (c) terminal taxes on goods or passengers carried by railway, sea or air;
- (d) taxes on railway fares and freights;

1. The words "or Rajpramukh" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for "State specified in Part C of the First Schedule".

- (e) taxes other than stamp duties on transaction in stock-exchanges and futures markets;
- (f) taxes on the sale or purchase of newspapers and on advertisements published therein;
- ¹[g) taxes on the sale or purchase of goods other than newspapers, where such sale or purchase takes place in the course of Inter State Trade or commerce;]
- ²[h) taxes on the consignment of goods (whether the consignment is to the person making it or to any other person), where such consignment takes place in the course of inter-State trade or commerce.]

(2) The net proceeds in any financial year of any such duty or tax, except in so far as those proceeds represent proceeds attributable to ³[Union territories], shall not form part of the Consolidated Fund of India, but shall be assigned to the States within which that duty or tax is leviable in that year, and shall be distributed among those States in accordance with such principles of distribution as may be formulated by Parliament by law.

⁴[(3) Parliament may by law formulate principles for determining when a ⁵[Sale of purchase of, or consignment of, goods] takes place in the course of inter-State trade or commerce.]

Notes on article 269

As to clause (1), sub-clauses (g) and (h) relating to inter-State purchases and consignments, see the 7th Schedule, Union List, entries 92A and 92B. Entry 92B was inserted by the 46th Amendment in 1982.

A law which, though purporting to impose tax on the price at which raw materials are purchased actually becomes effective with reference to manufactured goods on their despatch to a place outside the State, is a "Consignment tax", falling the competence of Parliament under article 269 (1)(g) and Union List, entry 92 B; Goodyear India v. State, AIR 1990 SC 781, 795, 796, 797, 798, paragraphs 35-40 (History of 46th Amendment and Law Commission of India, 61st report, referred to).

By reason of the new Entry (Entry 92B, in List I (7th Sch.) inserted by 46th Amendment Act, 1982), held when a tax is imposed by a State on the mere despatch of goods by a manufacturer to his own branches outside the state, the tax is ultra vires because it is a consignment tax within the exclusive competence of Parliament under Entry 92B of List I.

When a question arises as to the competence of a legislature to impose a tax, in a conflict between two competing jurisdictions, the nomenclature used by the taxing State is not conclusive. The court has to apply the doctrine of pith and substance in order to find out the real nature of the tax, with reference to its taxing event; Goodyear v. State of Haryana, AIR 1990 SC 781, paragraphs 37-41 and 76; Mukerian Papers v. State of Punjab, 2 SCC 580, paragraphs 5 and 6.

270. Taxes levied and collected by the Union and distributed between the Union and the States.—(1) Taxes on income other than agricultural income shall be levied

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Sixth Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 3.
2. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1982, sec. 2.
3. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for "States specified in Part C in the First Schedule".
4. Ins. by the Constitution (Sixth Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 3.
5. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1982, sec. 2, for "Sale or purchase of goods".

and collected by the Government of India and distributed between the Union and the States in the manner provided in clause (2).

(2) Such percentage, as may be prescribed¹, of the net proceeds in any financial year of any such tax, except in so far as those proceeds represent proceeds attributable to² [Union territories] or to taxes payable in respect of Union emoluments, shall not form part of the Consolidated Fund of India, but shall be assigned to the States within which that tax is leviable in that year, and shall be distributed among those States in such manner and from such time as may be prescribed.

(3) For the purposes of clause (2), in each financial year such percentage as may be prescribed of so much of the net proceeds of taxes on income and does not represent the net proceeds of taxes payable in respect of Union emoluments shall be deemed to represent proceeds attributable to² [Union territories].

(4) In this article—

(a) “taxes on income” does not include a corporation tax;

(b) “Prescribed” means—

(i) until a Finance Commission has been constituted, prescribed by the President by order, and

(ii) after a Finance Commission has been constituted, prescribed by the President by order after considering the recommendations of the Finance Commission;

(c) “Union emoluments” includes all emoluments and pensions payable out of the Consolidated Fund of India in respect of which income-tax is chargeable.

271. Surcharge on certain duties and taxes for purposes of the Union.— Notwithstanding anything in articles 269 and 270, Parliament may at any time increase any of the duties or taxes referred to in those articles by a surcharge for purposes of the Union and the whole proceeds of any such surcharge shall form part of the Consolidated Fund of India.

272. Taxes which are levied and collected by the Union and may be distributed between the Union and the States.— Union duties of excise other than such duties of excise on medicinal and toilet preparations as are mentioned in the Union List shall be levied and collected by the Government of India, but, if Parliament by law so provides, there shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India to the States to which the law imposing the duty extends sums equivalent to the whole or any part of the net proceeds of that duty, and those sums shall be distributed among those States in accordance with such principles of distribution as may be formulated by such law.

273. Grants in lieu of export duty on jute and jute products.— (1) There shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India in each year as grants-in aid of the revenues of the States of Assam, Bihar, Orissa and West Bengal, in lieu of assignment of any

1. See the Constitution (Distribution of Revenues) Order, 1979 (C.O. 112).

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and sch., for “States” specified in Part C of the First Schedule”.

share of the net proceeds in each year of export duty on jute and jute products to those States, such sums as may be prescribed.

(2) The sums so prescribed shall continue to be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India so long as any export duty on jute or jute products continues to be levied by the Government of India or until the expiration of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution, whichever is earlier.

(3) In this article, the expression "prescribed" has the same meaning as in article 270.

274. Prior recommendation of President required to Bills affecting taxation in which States are interested.—(1) No Bill or amendment which imposes or varies any tax or duty in which States are interested, or which varies the meaning of the expression "agricultural income" as defined for the purposes of the enactments relating to Indian Income-tax, or which affects the principles on which under any of the foregoing provisions of this chapter, moneys are or may be distributable to States, or which imposes any such surcharge for the purposes of the Union as is mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, shall be introduced or moved in either House of Parliament except on the recommendation of the President.

(2) In this article, the expression "tax or duty in which States are interested" means—

- (a) a tax or duty the whole or part of the net proceeds whereof are assigned to any State; or
- (b) a tax or duty by reference to the net proceeds whereof sums are for the time being payable out of the Consolidated Fund of India to any State.

275. Grants from the Union to certain States.—(1) Such sums as Parliament may by law provide shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India in each year as grants-in-aid of the revenues of such States as Parliament may determine to be in need of assistance, and different sums may be fixed for different States:

Provided that there shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India as grants-in-aid of the revenues of a State such capital and recurring sums as may be necessary to enable that State to meet the costs of such schemes of development as may be undertaken by the State with the approval of the Government of India for the purpose of promoting the welfare of the Scheduled Tribes in that State or raising the level of administration of the Scheduled Areas therein to that of the administration of the rest of the areas of that State:

Provided further that these shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India as grants-in-aid of the revenues of the State of Assam sums, capital and recurring equivalent to—

- (a) the average excess of expenditure over the revenues during the two years immediately preceding the commencement of this Constitution in respect of the administration of the tribal areas specified in [Part I] of the table appended to paragraph 20 of the Sixth Schedule; and

1. Subs. by the North-Eastern Areas (Reorganisation) Act, 1971 (81 of 1971), sec. 71, for "Part A" (w.e.f. 21-1-1972).

(b) the cost of such schemes of development as may be undertaken by that State with the approval of the Government of India for the purpose of raising the level of administration of the said areas to that of the administration of the rest of the areas of that State.

- ¹[(1A) On and from the formation of the autonomous State under article 244A,—
- any sums payable under clause (a) of the second proviso to clause (1) shall, if the autonomous State comprises all the tribal areas referred to therein, be paid to the autonomous State, and, if the autonomous State comprises only some of those tribal areas, be apportioned between the State of Assam and the autonomous State as the President may, by order, specify;
 - there shall be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India as grants-in aid of the revenues of the autonomous State sums, capital and recurring, equivalent to the costs of such schemes of development as may be undertaken by the autonomous State with the approval of the Government of India of the purpose of raising the level of administration of that State to that of the administration of the rest of the State of Assam.]

(2) Until provision is made by Parliament under clause (1), the powers conferred on Parliament under that clause shall be exercisable by the President by order and any order made by the President under this clause shall have effect subject to any provision so made by Parliament:

Provided that after a Finance Commission has been constituted no order shall be made under this clause by the President except after considering the recommendations of the Finance Commission.

276. Taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in article 246, no law of the Legislature of a State relating to taxes for the benefit of the State or of a municipality, district board, local board or other local authority therein in respect of professions, trades, callings or employments shall be invalid on the ground that it relates to a tax on income.

(2) The total amount payable in respect of any one person to the State or to any one municipality, district board, local board or other local authority in the State by way of taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments shall not exceed ²[two thousand and five hundred rupees] per annum.

(3) The power of the Legislature of a State to make laws as aforesaid with respect to taxes on professions, trades, callings and employments shall not be construed as limiting in any way the power of Parliament to make laws with respect to taxes on income accruing from or arising out of professions, trades, callings and employments.

277. Saving.—Any taxes, duties, cesses or fees which, immediately before the commencement of this Constitution, were being lawfully levied by the Government of any

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Twenty-second Amendment) Act, 1969, sec. 3.

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Sixtieth Amendment) Act, 1988, sec. 2, for "two hundred and fifty rupees".

3. Proviso omitted by the Constitution (Sixtieth Amendment) Act, 1988, sec. 2.

State or by any municipality or other local authority or body for the purposes of the State, municipality, district or other local area may, notwithstanding that those taxes, duties, cesses or fees are mentioned in the Union List, continue to be levied and to be applied to the same purposes until provision to the contrary is made by Parliament by law.

Notes on Article 277

For meaning of 'tax' and 'fee' see notes on article 265.

278. Agreement with States in Part B of the First Schedule with regard to certain financial matters.—[Rep. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.]

279. Calculation of "net proceeds", etc.—(1) In the foregoing provisions of this Chapter, "net proceeds" means in relation to any tax or duty the proceeds thereof reduced by the cost of collection, and for the purposes of those provisions the net proceeds of any tax or duty or of any part of any tax or duty, in or attributable to any area shall be ascertained and certified by the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, whose certificate shall be final.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, and to any other express provision of this Chapter, a law made by Parliament or an order of the President may, in any case where under this part the proceeds of any duty or tax are, or may be, assigned to any State, provide for the manner in which the proceeds are to be calculated, for the time from or at which and the manner in which any payments are to be made, for the making of adjustments between one financial year and another, and for any other incidental or ancillary matters.

280. Finance Commission.—(1) The President shall, within two years from the commencement of this Constitution and thereafter at the expiration of every fifth year or at such earlier time as the President considers necessary, by order constitute a Finance Commission which shall consist of a Chairman and four other members to be appointed by the President.

1. Sub-clause (bb) ins. by the Constitution (Seventy-third Amendment) Act, 1992, sec. 3 (w.e.f. 20-4-1993).

- ¹[(c) the measures needed to augment the Consolidated Fund of a State to supplement the resources of the Municipalities in the State on the basis of the recommendations made by the Finance Commission of the State;]
²[(d) any other matter referred to the Commission by the President in the interests of sound finance.]
- (4) The Commission shall determine their procedure and shall have such powers in the performance of their functions as Parliament may by law confer on them.

281. Recommendations of the Finance Commission.—The President shall cause every recommendation made by the Finance Commission under the provisions of this Constitution together with an explanatory memorandum as to the action taken thereon to be laid before each House of Parliament.

Miscellaneous Financial Provisions

283. Custody, etc. of Consolidated Funds, Contingency Funds and moneys credited to the public accounts.—(1) The custody of the Consolidated Fund of India and the Contingency Fund of India, the payment of moneys into such Funds, the withdrawal of moneys therefrom, the custody of public moneys other than those credited to such funds received by or on behalf of the Government of India, their payment into the public account of India and the withdrawal of moneys from such account and all other matters connected with or ancillary to matter aforesaid shall be regulated by law made by Parliament, and, until provision in that behalf is so made, shall be regulated by rules made by the President.

- Sub-clause (c) ins. by the Constitution (Seventh-fourth Amendment) Act, 1992, sec. 3 (w.e.f. 20-4-1993); previously sub-clause (c) was omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.
- Sub-clause (c) re-lettered as sub-clause (d) by the Constitution (Seventy-Fourth Amendment) Act, 1992, sec. 3 (w.e.f. 20-4-1993); previously sub-clause (d) was re-lettered as sub-clause (c) by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, sec. 29 and Sch.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall, until Parliament by law otherwise provided, prevent any authority within a State from levying any tax on any property of the Union to which such property was immediately before the commencement of this Constitution liable or treated as liable, so long as that tax continues to be levied in that State.

Notes on Article 285

Property of a Union is exempted from State taxation under article 285 except for taxes which were imposed on the Central Government before the Constitution. In Punjab, vehicles of railways were not being subjected to road tax before 1950 and they cannot be subjected to tax after the Constitution. Even though the relevant rules were there, the tax was not actually being levied against the Union of India's vehicles. Writ petition by the Union of India was accepted; Union of India v. State of Punjab, AIR 1990 P&H 183 (J.S. Sekhon J) (It is not clear how the High Court entertained a dispute between the Union of India and the State. Under the Constitution, the Supreme Court has, exclusive jurisdiction in such disputes).

Property owned by a Government company or a statutory corporation, which has a corporate personality of its own, cannot be said to be 'property of the Union' and may, therefore, be liable to State or municipal taxation; I.A.I. v. Municipal Court, AIR 1991 Del 302, paragraph 35.

286. Restrictions as to imposition of tax on the sale or purchase of goods.—(1) No Law of a State shall impose, or authorise the imposition of, a tax on the sale or purchase of goods where such sale or purchase takes place—

- (a) outside the State; or
- (b) in the course of the import of the goods into, or export of the goods out of, the territory of India.

¹[]

²[(2) Parliament may by law formulate principles for determining when a sale or purchase of goods takes place in any of the ways mentioned in clause (1)].

³[(3) Any law of a State shall, in so far as it imposes, or authorises the imposition of—

1. Explanation to clause (1) omitted by the Constitution (Sixth Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 4.

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Sixth Amendment) Act, 1956, for clauses (2) and (3).

3. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1982, sec. 3, for clause (3) (w.e.f. 12-2-1983).

- (a) a tax on the sale or purchase of goods declared by Parliament by law to be of special importance in inter-State trade or commerce; or
 (b) a tax on the sale or purchase of goods, being a tax of the nature referred to in sub-clause (b), sub-clause (c) or sub-clause (d) of clause (29A) of article 366, be subject to such restrictions and conditions in regard to the system of levy, rates and other incidents of the tax as Parliament may by law specify.]

Notes on Article 286

For the purposes of clause (a), a sale or purchase shall be deemed to have taken place in the State in which the goods have actually been delivered as a direct result of such sale or purchase for the purpose of consumption in that State, notwithstanding the fact that under the general law relating to sale of goods the property in the goods has by reason of such sale or purchase passed in another State; Associated Cement v. C.S.T., (1991) Supp (1) SCC 251, paragraphs 6-9.

A sale may be for the purpose of export but not in the course of export, e.g. the 'penultimate sale' for the purpose of export; Murli v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCC 377, paragraphs 6-7 (3 Judges).

Export sales become complete only after the goods reach the foreign destination; State of Orissa v. M.M.T.C., JT (1994) 4 SC 628.

287. Exemption from taxes on electricity.—Save in so far as Parliament may by law otherwise provide, no law of a State shall impose, or authorise the imposition of, a tax on the consumption or sale of electricity (whether produced by a Government or other persons) which is—

- (a) consumed by the Government of India, or sold to the Government of India for consumption by that Government; or
- (b) consumed in the construction, maintenance or operation of any railway by the Government of India or a railway company operating that railway, or sold to that Government or any such railway company for consumption in the construction, maintenance or operation of any railway, and any such law imposing, or authorising the imposition of, a tax on the sale of electricity shall secure that the price of electricity sold to the Government of India for consumption by that Government, or to any such railway company as aforesaid for consumption in the construction, maintenance or operation of any railway, shall be less by the amount of the tax than the price charged to other consumers of a substantial quantity of electricity.

288. Exemption from taxation by States in respect of water or electricity in certain cases.—(1) Save in so far as the President may by order otherwise provided, no law of a State in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution shall impose, or authorise the imposition of, a tax in respect of any water or electricity stored, generated, consumed, distributed or sold by any authority established by any existing law or any law made by Parliament for regulating or developing any inter-State river or river-valley.

Explanation.—The expression "law of a State in force" in this clause shall include a law of a State passed or made before the commencement of this Constitution and not previously repealed, notwithstanding that it or parts of it may not be then in operation either at all or in particular areas.

(2) The Legislature of a State may by law impose, or authorise the imposition of, any such tax as is mentioned in clause (1), but no such law shall have any effect unless it has, after having been reserved for the consideration of the President, received his assent; and if any such law provides for the fixation of the rates and other incidents of such tax by means of rules or orders to be made under the law by any authority, the law shall provide for the previous consent of the President being obtained to the making of any such rule or order.

289. Exemption of property and income of a State from Union taxation.—(1) The property and income of a State shall be exempt from Union taxation.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall prevent the Union from imposing, or authorising the imposition of, any tax to such extent, if any, as Parliament may by law provide in respect of a trade or business of any kind carried on by, or on behalf of, the Government of a State, or any operations connected therewith, or any property used or occupied for the purposes of such trade or business, or any income accruing or arising in connection therewith.

(3) Nothing in clause (2) shall apply to any trade or business, or to any class of trade or business, which Parliament may by law declare to be incidental to the ordinary functions of Government.

290. Adjustment in respect of certain expenses and pensions.—Where under the provisions of this Constitution the expenses of any court or Commission, or the pension payable to or in respect of a person who had served before the commencement of this Constitution under the Crown in India or after such commencement in connection with the affairs of the Union or of a State, are charged on the Consolidated Fund of India or the Consolidated Fund of a State, then, if—

- (a) in the case of a charge on the Consolidated Fund of India, the court or commission serves any of the separate needs of a State, or the person has served wholly or in part in connection with the affairs of a State; or
- (b) in the case of a charge on the Consolidated Fund of a State, the court or Commission serves any of the separate needs of the Union or another State, or the person has served wholly or in part in connection with the affairs of the Union or another State, there shall be charged on and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the State or, as the case may be, the Consolidated Fund of India or the Consolidated Fund of the other State, such contribution in respect of the expenses or pension as may be agreed, or as may in default of agreement be determined by an arbitrator to be appointed by the Chief Justice of India.

the State of Kerala every year to the Travancore Devaswom Fund; and a sum of thirteen lakhs and fifty thousand rupees shall be charged on, and paid out of the Consolidated Fund of the State of¹ [Tamil Nadu] every year to the Devaswom Fund established in that State for the maintenance of Hindu temples and shrines in the territories transferred to that State on the 1st day of November, 1956, from the State of Travancore-Cochin.]

291. Privy purse sums of Rulers.—(Rep. by the Constitution (Twenty-sixth Amendment) Act, 1971, sec. 2.)

CHAPTER II—BORROWING

292. Borrowing by the Government of India.—The executive power of the Union extends to borrowing upon the security of the Consolidated Fund of India within such limits, if any, as may from time to time be fixed by Parliament by law and to the giving of guarantees within such limits, if any, as may be so fixed.

293. Borrowing by States.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this article, the executive power of a State extends to borrowing within the territory of India upon the security of the Consolidated Fund of the State which such limits, if any, as may from time to time be fixed by the Legislature of such State by law and to the giving of guarantees within such limits, if any, as may be so fixed.

(2) The Government of India may, subject to such conditions as may be laid down by or under any law made by Parliament, make loans to any State or, so long as any limits fixed under article 292 are not exceeded, give guarantees in respect of loans raised by any State, and any sums required for the purpose of making such loans shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India.

(3) A State may not without the consent of the Government of India raise any loan if there is still outstanding any part of loan which has been made to the State by the Government of India or by its predecessor Government, or in respect of which a guarantee has been given by the Government of India or by its predecessor Government.

(4) A consent under clause (3) may be granted subject to such conditions, if any, as the Government of India may think fit to impose.

CHAPTER III—PROPERTY, CONTRACTS, RIGHTS, LIABILITIES, OBLIGATIONS AND SUITS

294. Succession to property, assets, rights, liabilities and obligations in certain cases.—As from the commencement of this Constitution—

(a) all property and assets which immediately before such commencement were vested in His Majesty for the purposes of the Government of Dominion of India and all property and assets which immediately before such commencement were

1. Sub. by the Madras State (Alteration of Name) Act, 1968, (53 of 1968), sec. 4 for "Madras" (w.e.f. 14-1-1969)

vested in His Majesty for the purposes of the Government of each Governor's Province shall vest respectively in the Union and the corresponding State, and (b) all rights, liabilities and obligations of the Government of the Dominion of India and of the Government of each Governor's Province, whether arising out of any contract or otherwise, shall be the rights, liabilities and obligations respectively of the Government of India and the Government of each corresponding State, subject to any adjustment made or to be made by reason of the creation before the commencement of this Constitution of the Dominion of Pakistan or of the Provinces of West Bengal, East Bengal, West Punjab and East Punjab.

295. Succession to property, assets, rights, liabilities and obligations in other cases.—(1) As from the commencement of this Constitution—

- (a) all property and assets which immediately before such commencement were vested in any Indian State corresponding to a State specified in Part B of the First Schedule shall vest in the Union, if the purposes for which such property and assets were held immediately before such commencement will thereafter be purposes of the Union relating to any of the matters enumerated in the Union List, and
- (b) all rights liabilities and obligations of the Government of any Indian State corresponding to a State specified in Part B of the First Schedule, whether arising out of any contract or otherwise, shall be the rights, liabilities and obligations of the Government of India, if the purposes for which such rights were acquired or liabilities or obligations were incurred before such commencement will thereafter be purposes of the Government of India relating to any of the matters enumerated in the Union List, subject to any agreement entered into in that behalf by the Government of India with the Government of that State.

(2) Subject as aforesaid, the Government of each State specified in Part B of the First Schedule shall, as from the commencement of this Constitution, be the successor of the Government of the corresponding Indian State as regards all property and assets and all rights, liabilities and obligations, whether arising out of any contract or otherwise, other than those referred to in clause (1).

296. Property accruing by escheat or lapse or as Bona vacantia.—Subject as hereinafter provided, any property in the territory of India which, if this Constitution had not come into operation, would have accrued to His Majesty or, as the case may be, to the Ruler of an Indian State by escheat or lapse, or as bona vacantia for want of a rightful owner, shall, if it is property situated in a State, vest in such State, and shall, in any other case, vest in the Union:

Provided that any property which at the date when it would have so accrued to His Majesty or to the Ruler of an Indian State was in the possession or under the control of the Government of India or the Government of a State shall, according as the purposes for which it was then used or held were purposes of the Union or of a State, vest in the Union or in that State.

Explanation.— In this article, the expressions "Rulers" and "Indian State" have the same meanings as in Article 136. <https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

(2) All other resources of the exclusive economic zone of India shall also vest in the Union and be held for the purposes of the Union.

(3) The limits of the territorial waters, the continental shelf, the exclusive economic zone, and other maritime zones, of India shall be such as may be specified, from time to time, by or under any law made by Parliament].

²[298. Power to carry on trade, etc.—The executive power of the Union and of each State shall extend to the carrying on of any trade or business and to the acquisition, holding and disposal of property and the making of contracts for any purpose:

Provided that—

(a) the said executive power of the Union shall, in so far as such trade or business or such purpose is not one with respect to which Parliament may make laws, be subject in each State to legislation by the State; and

(b) the said executive power of each State shall, in so far as such trade or business or such purpose is not one with respect to which the State Legislature may make laws, be subject to legislation by Parliament.]

Notes on Article 298

Trade of business

The leading case on this article is Anraj v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1984 SC 781. The case discusses, inter alia, the relationship between (a) articles 73 and 298, (b) article 258 and 298.

Extra-territorial operation

It has been held that the power of a State under article 298 extends to carrying on a trade in other States also; Khazan Singh v. State of U.P., AIR 1974 SC 669. This implies that article 298 has been treated as an independent source of executive power. For, otherwise, on a combined reading of article 162 and 245(1), the executive power of a State would be confined to the area of the State, as its legislative power is so confined by virtue of article 245.

Where a firm has been carrying on the business of selling lubricants for 18 years, abrupt stoppage of supply by the Indian Oil Corporation without notice is arbitrary. Decision of the State/public authority under article 298 of the Constitution is an administrative decision and can be impeached on the ground that the decision is arbitrary or violative of article 14 of the Constitution of India or any of the grounds available in the public law field. In respect of a corporation like the Indian Oil Corporation, when, without informing the parties concerned, an alleged change of policy and (on that basis) action to seek to bring to an end the course of transaction over 18 years involving large amount of money is taken, the action is not fair action, especially in view of the monopolistic nature of the corporation in this field. Therefore, it is necessary to reiterate that even in the field of public law, the relevant persons who are concerned or likely to be affected should be taken into confidence.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Fortieth Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 2, for article 297 (w.e.f. 27-5-1976).

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Sixty-ninth Amendment) Act, 1991, sec. 29, for article 298.

<https://nclt.judgments.nic.in/AAAPPAFFAL/RSceosHQ>

Whether, and in what circumstances, that confidence should be taken into consideration, cannot be laid down on any straight-jacket basis. It depends on the nature of the right involved and nature of the power sought to be exercised in a particular situation; Mahabir Auto Stores v. Indian Oil Corporation, AIR 1990 SC 1031 reversing; M/s Mahabir Auto Stores v. Indian Oil Corporation Ltd., AIR 1989 Del 315.

299. Contracts.—(1) All contracts made in the exercise of the executive power of the Union or of a State shall be expressed to be made by President, or by the Governor [] of the State, as the case may, and all such contracts and all assurances of property made in the exercise of that power shall be executed on behalf of the President or the Governor [] by such persons and in such manner as he may direct or authorise.

(2) Neither the President nor the Governor [] shall be personally liable in respect of any contract or assurance made or executed for the purposes of this Constitution, or for the purposes of any enactment relating to the Government of India heretofore in force, nor shall any person making or executing any such contract or assurance on behalf of any of them be personally liable in respect thereof.

Notes on Article 299

The position resulting from article 299 can be stated in this form:

- (a) Government contracts must be expressed as to be made by the President or the Governor.
- (b) They shall be executed by the competent person and in the prescribed manner.
- (c) If the above requirements are not complied with
 - (i) Government is not bound by the contract, because article 299 is mandatory;
 - (ii) the officer executing the contract would be personally bound;
 - (iii) the Government, however, if it enjoys the benefit of performance by the other party to the contract, would be bound to give recompense on the principle of quantum meruit or quantum valebat (service or goods received). This is on quasi-contract (sections 65 and 70, Contract Act).
 - (iv) Besides this, the doctrine of promissory estoppel may apply on the facts.
- (d) In any case, the President or the Governor is not personally liable on the contract.

Following are the important decisions supporting the above proposition:—

- (i) State of W.B. v. B.K. Mondal, AIR 1962 SC 779. (Article 299 is mandatory).
- (ii) Karamshi v. State of Bombay, AIR 1964 SC 1714. (Person executing must be authorised to enter into the control).
- (iii) Union of India v. Rallia Ram, AIR 1963 SC 1685. (Tender and acceptance).
- (iv) Bihar Co-op Society v. Siphai, AIR 1977 SC 2149. (Quantum meruit).
- (v) M.P. Sugar Mills v. State of U.P., AIR 1979 SC 627. (Promissory estoppel).
- (vi) New Marine Coal Co. v. Union of India, AIR 1964 SC 152.

The freedom of the Government to enter into business with anybody it likes is subject to the condition of reason and fair play as well as public interest; Mahabir Auto v. I.O.C., AIR 1990 SC 1031.

300. Suits and proceedings.—(1) The Government of India may sue or be sued by the name of the Union of India and the Government of a State may sue or be sued by the name of the State any may, subject to any provisions which may be made by Act of Parliament or of the Legislature of such State enacted by virtue of powers conferred by this Constitution, sue or be sued in relation to their respective affairs in the like cases as the Dominion of India and the corresponding provinces or the corresponding Indian States might have sued or been sued if this Constitution had not been enacted.

(2) If at the commencement of this Constitution—

- (a) any legal proceedings are pending to which the Dominion of India is party, the Union of India shall be deemed to be substituted for the Dominion in those proceedings; and
- (b) any legal proceedings are pending to which a Province or an Indian State is a party, the corresponding State shall be deemed to be substituted for the province or the Indian State in those proceedings.

Notes on Article 300

Government liability in tort

- (a) The ruling principle is that Government is not liable for torts of its employees committed in the course of performance of sovereign functions.
- (b) The theoretical doctrine as per (a) above is still adhered to, but it is being applied in a liberal manner and the courts interpret "sovereign" narrowly, as is shown by recent law.

It is enough to cite the following cases of importance:

- (i) P&O Steam Navigation Co. v. Secretary of State, (1861) 5 Bom HCR App A. (This was really a Calcutta ruling, reported in the Bombay series).
- (ii) State of Rajasthan v. Vidyawadi, AIR 1962 SC 933.
- (iii) Shyam Sunder v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1974 SC 980, paragraph 21.
- (iv) Kasturi Lal v. State of U.P., AIR 1965 SC 1039.

300A. Persons not to be deprived of property save by authority of law.— No person shall be deprived of his property save by authority of law.]

Notes on Article 300A

Nature of the right

Right not to be deprived of property save by authority of law is no longer a fundamental right, though it is still a constitutional right; Bishamber v. State of U.P., AIR 1982 SC 33.

State Financial Corporation

Section 29, State Finance Corporation Act, 1951 gives the Corporation power to take possession of the property of an individual concerned, if the latter makes the default in payment of any loan etc. The Finance Corporation Act does not violate articles 14, 19, 21 or 300A of the Constitution. The principles of natural justice have to be read into the section. The Board of the Corporation consists of high ranking officials. When the industrial concern enters into an agreement with the Corporation it is fully aware of the provision. If the Corporation acts unfairly, the action can be challenged, but that does not vitiate the provision; Alka Ceramics v. Gujarat State Finance Corp., AIR 1990 Guj 105 (DB) (Case on article 300A).

Requisitioning

There was a dispute between the operators of mini buses and their workers. Instead of referring the dispute to the proper forum, the State Government, purporting to act under section 3, West Bengal Requisition of Vehicles Act, 1979 requisitioned the buses. The buses were then run by the Municipality though the requisition order did not mention that they would be so run. It was held, that the requisition was illegal. Further, though the order was passed by the District Magistrate, he was actually acting under the orders of the State Transport Minister. Hence the requisitioning was mala fide and for extraneous purpose and void.

New Barrackpore Mini Bus Owners Association v. District Magistrate, AIR 1990 Cal 268, 290 to 293, paragraphs 42-55 (Mahitosh Majumdar J) (reviews case law).

As to the general effect of article 300A see; Elizabeth v. State of Kerala, AIR 1991 Ker 162, paragraph 24 (FB); and TESC v. State of Assam, AIR 1990 SC 123, 138.

After the Constitution (44th Amendments) Act, the right to property is only a constitutional right. It is not a part of the basic structure. The Constitution (66th Amendment) Act, 1990 does not destroy the basic structure of the Constitution; M.K. Kachar v. State of Gujarat, JT (1994) 4 SC 473.

A letter written by Private Secretary to the Minister, to the General Manager, Railways confers no legal right, nor can it be said to raise 'Legitimate expedience'; Union of India v. Graphic Industries, JT (1994) 5 SC 237.

PART XIII

TRADE, COMMERCE AND INTERCOURSE WITHIN THE TERRITORY OF INDIA

301. Freedom of trade, commerce and intercourse.—Subject to the other provisions of this Part, trade, commerce and intercourse throughout the territory of India shall be free.

Notes on Article 301

Imposition of duty does not in every case tantamounts to infringement of article 301. One has to determine whether the impugned provision amounts to a restriction directly and immediately on the movement of trade or commerce. See the undermentioned cases :

302. Power of Parliament to impose restrictions on trade, commerce and intercourse.—Parliament may by law impose such restrictions on the freedom of trade, commerce or intercourse between one State and another or within any part of the territory of India as may be required in the public interest.

303. Restrictions on the legislative powers of the Union and of the States with regard to trade and commerce.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in article 302, neither Parliament nor the Legislature of a State shall have power to make any law giving, or authorising the giving of, any preference to one State over another, or making, or authorising the making of, any discrimination between one State and another, by virtue of any entry relating to trade and commerce in any of the Lists in the Seventh Schedule.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall prevent Parliament from making any law giving, or authorising the giving of, any preference or making, or authorising the making of, any discrimination if it is declared by such law that it is necessary to do so for the purpose of dealing with a situation arising from scarcity of goods in any part of the territory of India.

304. Restrictions on trade, commerce and intercourse among States.—Notwithstanding anything in article 301 or article 303, the Legislature of a State may by law—

- (a) impose on goods imported from other States¹ [or the Union territories] any tax to which similar goods manufactured or produced in that State are subject, so

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

however, as not to discriminate between goods so imported and goods so manufactured or produced; and

(b) impose such reasonable restrictions on the freedom of trade, commerce or intercourse with or within that State as may be required in the public interest:

Provided that no Bill or amendment for the purpose of clause (b) shall be introduced or moved in the Legislature of a State without the previous sanction of the President.

Notes on Article 304

The test of reasonableness for the purpose of clause (b) of article 304 would be the same as the test adopted for the purpose of article 196. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Tika Ramji v. State of U.P., (1956) SCR 393.
- (ii) Kalyani Stores v. State of Orissa, AIR 1966 SC 1686.

Article 304 (a)

The list of article 304(a) may be thus stated. Taxation by a State on goods imported from outside is valid provided it is non-discriminatory and this includes of sales tax so long as it is non-discriminatory. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) State of Madras v. Nataraja, AIR 1969 SC 147.
- (ii) State of Rajasthan v. Mangilal, (1969) SCC 710.
- (iii) Indian Cement v. State of A.P., AIR 1988 SC 567.

A notification issued in exercise of legislative power under sections 24 and 25, U.P. Sales Tax Act, 1948, is a "law" within articles 304 and 306; Video Electronics v. State of Punjab, AIR 1990 SC 820.

An action which furthers the economic development of the whole of India and its unity by removing economic barriers cannot be said to be discriminatory; Video Electronics v. State of Punjab, AIR 1990 SC 820, paragraphs 20-28 (3 Judges).

Regulation and Prohibition must be distinguished from each other.

(a) A rule which totally prohibits the movement of forest produce between specified hours is prohibitory, (b) A rule which permits, transport, subject to specified conditions, for preventing public injury or to serve the public good e.g. in pursuance of the directive under article 51A would be a reasonable restriction whether under article 19(1)(g) or under article 304; State of T.N. v. Sanjeetha, AIR 1993 SC 237, paragraphs 17 and 18.

The illegal felling of trees may be regulated by requiring that no forest produce should be transported from one place to another without obtaining a permit from a specified officer; Aramachine v. State of Rajasthan, AIR 1992 Raj 7, paragraphs 10, 14 and 17.

Where the State law does not offend against article 301 or article 303, it need not be examined whether the conditions imposed by article 304 are satisfied; Video Electronics v. State of Punjab, AIR 1990 SC 820, paragraphs 20, 28 (3 judges).

Where an assessee purchases upon scrap from both local dealers in the State of Karnataka and dealers outside the State and the State of Karnataka imposes a tax on the sale of ingots manufactured out of scrap purchased from outside the State while ingots manufactured from locally purchased scrap would not be subjected to such a tax, the would be hit by clause (a) of article 304; Andhra S.C. v. C.C.D.T., AIR 1990 SC 1912, paragraphs 22-23.

Article 304(b)

A requirement to deposit a cash amount as security for realisation of the money due under a Chit Fund Scheme has been held to be in the public interest; Subodhaya Chit Fund (P.) Ltd. v. Director of Chits, AIR 1991 SC 998, paragraph 4.

Where the original Act received the President's sanction under article 304 (b) no fresh sanction is required where the Amending Act, without imposing any additional restriction merely varied the form of restriction; Subodhaya Chit Fund (P.) Ltd. v. Director of Chits, AIR 1991 SC 998, paragraph 5.

¹[305. Saving of existing laws and laws providing for State monopolies.—Nothing in articles 301 and 303 shall affect the provisions of any existing law except in so far as the President may by order otherwise direct; and nothing in article 301 shall affect the operation of any law made before the commencement of the Constitution (Fourth Amendment) Act, 1955, in so far as it relates to, or prevent Parliament or the legislature of a State from making any law relating to, any such matter as is referred to in sub-clause (ii) of clause (6) of article 19.]

Notes on Article 305

Where a pre-existing State Act is amended by a post Constitution Act then the protection of article 305—

- (a) is available to the amending Act also if it is merely clarificatory; but
- (b) is not available in so far as the amending Act makes any additional provisions; Punjab Traders v. State of Punjab, AIR 1990 SC 2300, paragraph 14.

306. Power of certain States in Part B of the First Schedule to impose restrictions on trade and commerce.—{Rep. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch. J}

307. Appointment of authority for carrying out the purposes of articles 301 to 304.—Parliament may by law appoint such authority as it considers appropriate for carrying out the purposes of articles 301, 302, 303 and 304, and confer on the authority so appointed such powers and such duties as it thinks necessary.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Fourth Amendment) Act, 1955, scc. 4.

SERVICES UNDER THE UNION AND THE STATES

CHAPTER I—SERVICES

308. Interpretation.—In this Part, unless the context otherwise requires, the expression “State”¹ [does not include the State of Jammu and Kashmir].

309. Recruitment and conditions of Service of persons serving the Union or a State.—Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Acts of the appropriate Legislature may regulate the recruitment, and conditions of service of persons appointed, to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any State:

Provided that it shall be competent for the President or such person as he may direct in the case of services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union, and for the Governor²[] of a State or such person as he may direct in the case of services and posts in connection with the affairs of the State, to make rules regulating the recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed, to such services and posts until provision in that behalf is made by or under an Act of the appropriate Legislature under this article, and any rules so made shall have effect subject to the provisions of any such Act.

Notes on Article 309

Administrative instructions

Though non-statutory Rules cannot modify statutory Rules, there is nothing to prevent the Government from issuing administrative instructions on matters upon which the statutory Rules are silent; Comptroller v. Mohan, (1992) 1 SCC 20.

Adverse remarks

Adverse remarks against which a representation is pending should not be taken into account when considering an employee's case for selection to the Selection Grade, etc.; State of M.P v. Bani, (1990) Supp SCC 736, paragraph 6.

If an adverse order is challenged in a court of law, it is always open to the competent authority to place before the court the reasons which may have led to the rejection of the representation; Union of India v. E.G. Numbudri, AIR 1991 SC 1216

A copy of the adverse entry is to be supplied to the employee within a reasonable time. This obligation to communicate does not extend to any observation in the entry which is not adverse to the employee; Baikuntha v. D.M.O., (1992) 2 SCC 299, paragraph 33 (3 Judges).

The remarks in a Confidential Report are used as data of comparative merit when questions of promotion, confirmation, crossing of efficiency bar, termination of service, etc. of the employees in question arise; Union of India v. Nambudri, (1991) 3 SCC 38, paragraph 6.

Application under section 19 of the Administrative Tribunals Act lies for expunction of adverse remarks; State of M.P. v. Bani, (1990) SCC 738, paragraph 5.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch., for “means a State specified in Part A or Part B of the First Schedule”.

2. The Words “or Rajpramukh” omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

Appointment

Though a person, by making an application for a post pursuant to an advertisement, does not acquire any vested right to be appointed to that post, he acquires a right to be considered for selection according to the terms of that advertisement. The eligibility of a candidate for selection for a post depends upon whether he is qualified in accordance with the relevant Rules as they existed at the date of the advertisement for recruitment; Devin v. Karnataka P.S.C., (1990) 3 SCC 157.

Armed forces

As regards retirees from the Armed Forces, the Supreme Court has not accepted the demand of retirees of armed forces for "one rank one pension"; Indian Ex-Service League v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1182, paragraphs 8, 10 and 18.

It is legitimate for the State Government to announce special benefits of pension, increments etc, to persons enrolled in the armed forces during emergency as contrasted with those enrolled before emergency. Older men, by joining the military service, lost the chance of joining other Government departments. The discrimination is reasonable; Dhan Singh v. State of Haryana, AIR 1991 SC 1047.

Compulsory retirement

Compulsory retirement does not contain any stigma and is based on the subjective satisfaction of the authority. However, an order of compulsory retirement cannot be quashed under article 226, on the ground that the adverse entry was not communicated to the petitioner, or that rules of natural justice or the requirements of article 21 of the Constitution have not been complied with; Union of India v. Reddy, AIR 1990 SC 563, paragraph 27; State of Sikkim v. Sonam, (1991) Supp 1 SCC 179, paragraphs 4 and 5.

Criminal proceedings

Since article 20 (2) has been held to be applicable only to punishment in judicial proceedings, there is no question of its application where a prosecution or acquittal in a criminal proceeding is followed by a departmental proceeding against a Government servant and vice versa. Conversely, recovery of embezzled or other recovery due to the Government by departmental proceeding can not bar a criminal prosecution for the offence, if any; Bishwanath v. Union of India, (1991) 16 ATC 912 (Cal), paragraphs 14-16 (FB).

Discrimination

Even as between employees of the same class of service, it would be permissible to give weightage to those who acquire a relevant higher qualification, which is reasonable, e.g. giving accelerated promotion to the most meritorious in order to attract brilliant candidates to the public service; Biswas v. State Bank of India, (1991) 2 UJSC 567, paragraph 4.

If the Rule be applicable to all classes of Government servants, it cannot be challenged as discriminatory, but if it is mala fide, or arbitrary or perverse, the order may be struck down; Baikuntha v. C.D.M.O., (1992) 2 SCC 299, paragraphs 32 and 34 (3 Judges).

Exploitation

The State should not exploit its employees nor should it take advantage of the helplessness of either the employees or the unemployed persons. The State should act as a model employer and give equal pay for equal work. It should not keep a person in a temporary or ad hoc status for long, and take steps for their regularisation; State of Haryana v. Pyara, (1992) 4 SCC 18.

The rule of equality of pay cannot be so applied as to give to an employee the higher emoluments of a post in which he has never worked; Virender v. Avinash, AIR 1991 SC 958.

In general, the grant of a higher pay to a junior in the same cadre would be violative of the rule of "equal pay for equal work". But to this there are exceptions founded on justifiable grounds or intelligible differential. e.g. where the higher pay offered to a junior is personal to him, say, on account of additional duties; Chief Engineer v. Jagdish, AIR 1991 (SC), paragraph 5.

Examination

The court would not interfere with the comparative merits of candidates as assessed by the examining body, in the absence of bias or mala fides or material irregularity in the Constitution of the examining body or the procedure adopted by it—because these are matters requiring an expertise which the courts do not possess; Dalpat v. Mahajan, (1990) 1 SCC 305, paragraph 12 (3 Judges); Jaswant v. State of Punjab, (1990) Supp (1) SCC 313, paragraph 6.

Gratuity

Government has no longer any discretion to forfeit gratuity on any ground; Jesurajnam v. Union of India, (1990) Supp SCC 640, paragraph 2.

High Court

In regard to making appointments to clerical posts in the subordinate courts, the Chief Justice of the High Court cannot depart from the constitutional and statutory provisions on the subject. If the Chief Justice takes upon himself the power of both the authorities mentioned above to make selections for, as well as appointments in, the establishments of the subordinate courts, such appointments shall be void; Puttaswamy v. Chief Justice, AIR 1991 SC 295.

Interpretation

Subject to certain limitations, Government's interpretation of its own rules and the policy decisions made thereunder should be respected by the courts; Ajeet v. State of Rajasthan, (1991) Supp 1 SCC paragraph 12.

Interview

There is nothing contrary in preparing a select list based on the results of the written test alone and then to call for interview out of that list, depending upon the number of vacancies available; Biswas v. State Bank of India, (1991) 2 UJSC 567, paragraph 4.

Where the Rules relating to recruitment do not require that both written and viva voce tests should be adopted, selection by interview alone cannot be held to be illegal. There is no inflexible standard as to the duration of an interview. A candidate cannot complain that the interview was too short, except in the case of a Selection post. i.e., of a higher category; Sardara Singh v. State of Punjab, AIR 1991 SC 2248, paragraphs 6 and 7.

The court would not interfere where, in the absence of the Rules fixing any pass marks for the interview test, the examining body fixes a 40% pass marks for the interview as for the written test; Manjeet v. E.S.I.C., AIR 1990 SC 1104, paragraph 6 (3 Judge Bench).

Lien

When a Government servant's lien is suspended under the Rules, e.g. while he is appointed to a deputation post, he loses all chances of being considered for promotion during the period of such suspension of lien. His lien in the parent cadre is revived only when he reverts to the parent cadre either on his own option, or on release from the deputation; Ram Saran v. State of Punjab, (1991) 2 SCC 253, paragraphs 14, 19-21.

The lien on a post is acquired only when the employee has been confirmed and made permanent on that post and not earlier; Triveni v. State of U.P., AIR 1992 SC 492, paragraphs 21-22.

Mandamus

Mandamus would issue to give the petitioner the same pay scale as has been given to employees of the same cadre, without any rational justification; State of W.B. v. Debdas, (1991) 1 SCC 138, paragraph 15; State of Rajasthan v. Gurcharan, (1990) Supp SCC 778, paragraphs 10-11.

Mandate to Government

In an appeal from a judgment of the Andhra Pradesh High Court, the Supreme Court has held that the High Court or the Administrative Tribunal cannot issue a mandate to the State Government to make service rules under article 309 of the Constitution. "The courts cannot usurp the functions assigned to the executive under the Constitution and cannot even indirectly require the executive to exercise its rule-making power in any manner. The Court cannot assume to itself a supervisory power over the rule-making power of the executive under article 309 of the constitution". The Constitution does not permit the court to direct or advise the executive in matters of policy or to sermonise regarding any matter which, under the Constitution, lies within the sphere of legislature or executive; Mallikarjuna Rao v. State of A.P., AIR 1990 SC 1251, 1255, paragraphs 10-12.

Officiating Post

Where an officer, substantively holding a post, it ordered merely to discharge the duties of a higher post in the exigencies of public service, he is not entitled to the emoluments of the higher post. He can claim only what is called the "charge allowance"; Ramakant v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1145, paragraph 4.

Privacy

The L.I.C. cannot terminate the services of a lady employee who refuses to give particulars about her menstrual periods. To demand such information compulsorily violates the right of privacy flowing from article 21 of the Constitution. The L.I.C. can (if it so chooses) get the employee medically examined, if the information in question is required to check pregnancy, etc. Neera v. L.I.C., (1992) 1 SCC 286.

Promissory Estoppel

A change of policy is also controlled by the doctrines of promissory estoppel; Amrit v. State of Punjab, (1992) 2 SCC 411, paragraphs 4-6.

Promotion

Any change in the Rules which affects the right to be considered for promotion would offend articles 14 and 16 but not a change which merely affect the chances of promotion. Any change in the Rules will, therefore, not be applicable only to vacancies which occurred prior to the amendment. But the petitioner was given the benefit of a retrospective amendment which took place during the pendency of his litigation; Sheshrao v. Govindrao, AIR 1991 SC 76, paragraph 3.

In considering an employee for promotion, the relevant authority is entitled to take into consideration the penalties imposed on him, including censure upto the date when such consideration takes place; Union of India v. K.V. Janakiraman, AIR 1991 SC 2010, paragraph 8 (3 Judges).

The mere pendency of a departmental proceeding at any stage is not sufficient for not considering an employee's case for promotion or to withhold his promotion; Union of India v. Tejendra, (1991) 4 SCC 129, paragraph 4.

Withholding of promotion on reasonable ground is permissible; Arunmugam v. State of T.M., (1991) Supp (1) SCC 199, paragraph 5.

The consideration of an employee for promotion may be postponed if he is suspended in view of the initiation of disciplinary or criminal proceedings against him; Union of India v. K.V. Janakiraman, AIR 1991 SC 2010: (1991) 4 SCC 109, paragraphs 16, 17 and 26 (3 Judge Bench).

Where a person entitled to promotion under a statutory rule was unlawfully denied consideration, he would be entitled to be considered for promotion with the retrospective effect and his seniority would also be re-fixed on that basis. In such a case, those who would be affected by such order cannot complain of discrimination, but the court may issue suitable directions to avoid hardship to them; Ram v. State of U.P., AIR 1991 SC 1818.

Where a person entitled to promotion under a statutory Rule was unlawfully denied consideration he would be entitled to be considered for promotion with the retrospective effect and his seniority would also be fixed on that basis; Ramaual v. State of H.P., (1991) Supp (1) SCC 198, paragraph 3.

Provident Fund

Under a pension scheme, Government has a continuing obligations so long as the retiree is alive. In a Provident Fund scheme, the retiree's right is crystallised on the date of retirement and after that date Government has no obligation. Hence if, under the Provident Fund scheme, option is given to the pension from a specified cut off date, there is no discrimination and it would not be hit by article 14 of the Constitution; Krishna v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 1782, paragraphs 30 and 31.

While under a pension scheme Government has a continuing obligation so long as the retiree is alive, in a Provident Fund scheme, each retiree's right is crystallised on the date of retirement and Government has no continuing obligation thereafter. Hence, if an option is given to the employee under the P.F. scheme to switch over to the Pension scheme from a specified cut off date, it would not be hit by article 14 of the Constitution; B.R.O.A. v. Union of India, AIR 1992 SC 767, paragraphs 8 and 10.

Contributory Provident Fund retirees and Pension scheme optees form two different classes; State of Rajasthan v. Rajasthan Pensioner Samaj, AIR 1991 SC 1743.

Qualification

The court would not interfere with the propriety of particular qualification for a post laid down by the Government; Rangaswamy v. Government of A.P., (1990) 1 SCC 288, paragraph 6.

It is competent for the appropriate authority to prescribe relevant qualifications for appointment to a post, provided they are not unconstitutional. It is not for the courts to consider and assess whether they are proper. A person who is aggrieved, can move the appropriate authority for review of the prescribed qualifications; Rangaswamy v. Government of A.P., AIR 1990 SC 535.

Being a matter of policy, it is open to the Government to change the qualifications for a post from time to time. But unless the amendment is given retrospective effect, it cannot affect the right of a candidate who was duly qualified according to the rules which were in force at the time when the selection was made by the body authorised to make it; Mahendran v. State of Karnataka, (1990) 1 SCC 411, paragraphs 4-5 (3 Judges).

Quota

When appointments are made from more than one source, it is permissible to fix the ratio (known as 'quota') for recruitment from the different sources, and if rules are framed in this regard, they must ordinarily be followed strictly; Direct Recruit Association v. State of Maharashtra, (1990) 2 SCC 715, paragraphs 21 and 47 (CB).

Railways

Employees in Railway Institutes and Railway Clubs are not railway employees and cannot be treated on par with employees in statutory railway canteens; All India Railway Institute Employees' Association v. Union of India, AIR 1990 SC 952.

Recruitment

In the absence of any constitutional bar (e.g. article 233), determination of the mode of recruitment to a service or post, say by promotion, transfer or direct appointment, is a matter of policy of the Government or other appropriate authority; Union of India v. Syed, (1992) 1 UJSC 590, paragraph 13 (3 Judges); Rangaswamy v. Government of A.P., AIR 1990 SC 535.

Subject to constitutional provisions (e.g. article 233 of the Constitution), it is for the Government (or other appropriate authority) to decide as a matter of policy, whether recruitment to a particular service should be by (a) promotion, (b) direct recruitment, or (c) transfer; Orissa J.S.A. v. State of Orissa, AIR 1991 SC 382, paragraph 3.

Retrenchment

- (i) Where, owing to reduction of work or shrinkage of cadre, retrenchment becomes necessary, then the principle of "last come, first go" is applicable, subject to what is stated in (ii) below,
- (ii) If, in disregard of this principle, a junior is retained in preference to a senior, article 14 of the constitution is violated,
- (iii) But the above principle does not apply where services of a temporary employee are terminated on an assessment of his merit in accordance with the conditions of his service,
- (iv) In such a case, retaining a Junior with merit is no discrimination.

See the undermentioned cases :

Triveni v. State of U.P., AIR 1992 SC 496.

State of U.P. v. Kaushal, (1991) 1 SCC 691, paragraph 5 (3 Judges).

Retrospectivity

A rule operates prospectively unless it is made retrospective by express provision or by necessary intendment; Mahendran v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1990 SC 405, paragraph 5.

A rule operates prospectively unless it is made retrospective by express provision or by necessary intendment; Bevin v. K.P.S.C., AIR 1990 SC 1233, paragraph 13.

Even where the restructuring of a service is necessitated by the mistake on the part of the Department, such change should not be so interpreted so as to prejudice those who were in service prior to the date when the change in the rule took place; Nirmal v. Union of India, (1991) Supp (2) SCC 363, paragraphs 3 and 5.

Rules

So long as a Rule framed under article 309 is not duly amended, it is binding on the Government and its action in matter covered by the rules must be regulated by the Rules; Bhamagar v. Union of India, (1991) 1 SCC 544, paragraph 13 (3 Judges).

A rule made in exercise of the power under the proviso to article 309 constitutes law within the meaning of article 235. For the same reason, such rule may be struck down only on such grounds as may invalidate a legislative measure, e.g. violation of articles 14 and 16 of the Constitution, and not because the court considers it to be unreasonable; Bansal v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 978, paragraph 21.

If the Rules are amended and the Government withdraws the requisition, before the candidates are called for interview pursuant to the advertisement, but the Service Commission goes on with the selection in terms of the original Rules, a candidate so selected acquires no vested right; Jaiswal v. Debi, (1992) 1 UJSC 731, paragraph 5.

A question of conflict arises where a service has got two sets of Rules made under article 309—e.g. General Recruitment Rules and Special Recruitment Rules (applicable to a particular Department such as the Motor Vehicles Branch); Raghunath v. State of Karnataka, AIR 1992 SC 81, paragraph 7.

Rule making power

Rules as to service matters may be made—

- (a) under article 309, proviso, or
- (b) subject to law made by competent legislation by executive orders; State of Haryana v. Oiara, (1992) 4 SCC 118, paragraph 21.

Salary

It has been laid down by a Constitution Bench, that the salary drawn on the date of retirement cannot be re-opened as a result of any enhancement made at a later date for persons retiring subsequently; India Ex-Services League v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1182, paragraphs 21 and 22.

Seniority

Even where the order of appointment may have stated that the appointment was temporary or stop gap etc. yet, where it is established that the appointee has been working in that post for a long period (number of years) without break, the court may apply the principle of "continuous officiation" and hold that the appointee be deemed to have been regularised; Nayar v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 1574; State of Haryana v. Piara, AIR 1992 SC 2130, paragraph 12 (3 Judges).

A subsequent restructuring of the service or delay in holding the selection for which the employee was not responsible cannot take away his seniority for promotion which he had acquired prior to the date of restructure; Nirmal v. Union of India, (1991) Supp (2) SCC 363, paragraphs 4-6.

It is open to the State to lay down any criteria which it thinks appropriate, for determining seniority in service and it is not competent for the court to strike down such Rule except on the ground that it is arbitrary or it results in inequality of opportunity amongst employees belonging to the same class, which would offend article 14 or 16 of the Constitution; Dhan Singh v. State of Rajasthan, (1991) 2 Supp SCC 190, paragraph 10.

Where promotees have acquired a higher qualification or are selected by the Public Service Commission, Government can give them some weightage in seniority. There is no improper discrimination and court cannot interfere with such a policy decision of the Government; State of A.P. v. Muralidhar, AIR 1992 SC 922.

Where a person has been denied seniority by a wrong application of the rules or without any reasonable ground, the court may direct the competent authority to place him in the higher grade with effect from the date when his junior was placed therein, with consequential monetary benefits; Dharam v. Administrator, (1991) 17 ATC 925, paragraph 4.

In general, the court would not interfere with rules, or even executive instructions laying down the principles of seniority if they are 'reasonable, just and equitable'; Devdutta v. State of M.P., (1992) 19 ATC 154 (SC), paragraph 17.

As between employees serving in the same service or cadre, seniority shall be determined by the Rules made under article 309. If there is no unconstitutionality in such Rules, the seniority inter se must be determined according to the criteria laid down in such Rules, e.g. rank and merit (where selected by the P.S.C.) the court cannot lay down any other criteria; State of T.N. v. Pari, (1991) 3 SCJ 302, paragraph 10 (3 Judges).

The interpretation of Rules as to quota consistent with the Constitution, may be a difficult task. No question of seniority arises till a person is appointed substantively to a cadre post under the Rules; Chopra v. State of Haryana, (1992) 19 ATC 493 (SC), paragraphs 10-17.

When a person is appointed to a post according to the Rules, his seniority is to be counted from the date of his appointment and not according to the date of his confirmation; Direct Recruit Association v. State of Maharashtra, (1990) 2 SCJ 377, paragraph 13 (CB).

If Rules have been made fixing a quota or ratio for appointment from the two sources, then inter se seniority has to be guided by the quota rules; Saxena v. State of U.P., (1992) 19 ATC 96 (SC), paragraphs 6-7; Direct Recruit Association v. State of Maharashtra, (1992) 2 SCC 715 paragraph 47.

Government can make rules laying down that persons recruited on a regular basis shall be placed (in seniority) below persons regularised. There is no illegality calling for court intervention. The former came into service after passing a competitive examination; Bhatnagar v. Union of India, (1991) 1 ACC 544, paragraphs 8, 9 and 12 (3 Judges).

Where the Rules themselves make a distinction between persons appointed in the Directorate and the subordinate services as separate cadres, and such Rules are not held to be unconstitutional, a claim that common seniority should be maintained between the two cadres, is untenable; Som Raj v. State of Haryana, (1990) 2 SCJ 1, paragraphs 5-6.

Service matters: Judicial interference

Judicial interference in service matters is called for only in order to examine that the action challenged before the court from the point of—

- (a) fundamental rights,
- (b) statutory provisions,
- (c) rules and instructions,
- (d) fairness; State of Haryana v. Piara, (1992) 4 SCC 118, paragraph 21.

Temporary service

The State should not keep a person in temporary or ad hoc service for a long period. It should take steps for his regularisation; Dharwad Association v. State of Karnataka, (1990) 2 SCC 396, paragraph 23.

Termination

If the termination (of an employee) is arbitrary, it will be violative of article 16, even though the employee is of an ad hoc, temporary or officiating status, or even casual employee; Shrilekha v. State of U.P., (1991) 1 SCC 212.

Transfer

When a person belongs to a service or cadre which is transferable, then, in the absence of any statutory restrictions, a person appointed to the cadre or service is transferable from one post to another, in the interests of public service. In such a case, transfer is an incident of the service and the employee cannot complain except where (a) it is ordered in violation of some mandatory statutory rule, (b) if it is actuated by mala fides, that is, some collateral purpose other than the interests of the administration. The court cannot, therefore, interfere on the mere ground that the transfer was made at the request of the employee and the competent authority granted it to avoid hardship; Shilpi v. State of Bihar, (1991) Supp (2) SCC 659, paragraphs 3-4.

Where employees are transferred from a Government Department to a statutory corporation and provision is made in the statute (or in the directions issued thereunder) that their existing conditions of service would not be adversely affected by the transfer, the court would interfere if the corporation frames regulations to change the conditions of service to the disadvantage of the employees, e.g. in the matter of the age for retirement; Dubey v. M.P.S.R.T.C., (1991) Supp (1) SCC 426, paragraph 11.

Vacancies

State is not bound to fill up a vacancy. But the decision not to fill up a vacancy has to be taken bona fide for good reasons. The mere fact that a person's name appears in the merit list does not give him a right to be appointed. But if the vacancy is filled up, the comparative merit (as reflected in the recruitment test) has to be respected and no discrimination is permissible; Shankaran v. Union of India, (1991) 3 SCC 47, paragraph 7a.

310. Tenure of office of persons serving the Union or a State.—(1) Except as expressly provided by this Constitution, every person who is a member of a defence service or of a civil service of the Union or of an all-India service or holds any post connected with defence or any civil post under the Union holds office during the pleasure of the President, and every person who is a member of a civil service of a State or holds any civil post under a State holds office during the pleasure of the Governor¹[] of the State.

(2) Notwithstanding that a person holding a civil post under the Union or a State holds office during the pleasure of the President or, as the case may be, of the Governor²[] of the State, any contract under which a person, not being a member of a defence service or of an all India service or of a civil service of the Union or a State, is appointed under this Constitution to hold such a post may, if the President or the Governor³[] as the case may be, deems it necessary in order to secure the services of a person having special qualifications, provide for the payment to him to compensation, if before the expiration of an agreed period that post is abolished or he is, for reasons not connected with any misconduct on his part, required to vacate that posts.

Notes on Article 310

Pleasure

The doctrine of pleasure codified in article 310(1) of the Constitution is a legacy of the English in order to doctrine that a servant of the crown holds office during the pleasure of the sovereign. But protect civil servants against the political interference, article 311 introduces certain safeguards. Moreover a specific contract can override the doctrine of pleasure; Purshotam v. Union of India, AIR 1958 SC 36, 41; Motran v. Union of India, AIR 1965 SC 600.

Where the doctrine of pleasure applies there are no limitation other than those flowing from the Constitution or from rules or orders under the Constitution; Madho Singh v. State of Bombay, AIR 1960 Bom 285.

Exceptions to the doctrine as found in the Constitution illustrated of articles 124, 148, 217, 218 and 324. It is also subject to fundamental rights; State of Orissa v. Dhirendranath, AIR 1961 SC 1715; Union of India v. More, AIR 1962 SC 630, 633.

Contract

As to the effect of contract; State of Gujarat v. Kampaval, 1 (1992) 3 SCC 226.

Expiry of term

Where article 310 (2) applies and the services terminates on expiry of period then—

- (a) no notice is required.
- (b) there is no question of premature retirement; State of Gujarat v. Kampaval, (1992) 3 SCC 226; Agarwal v. Union of India, (1992) 1 UJSC 266.

311. Dismissal, removal or reduction in rank of persons employed in civil capacities under the Union or a State.—(1) No person who is a member of a civil service of the Union or an all-India service or a civil service of a State or holds a civil post under the Union or a State shall be dismissed or removed by an authority subordinate to that by which he was appointed.

³[Provided that where it is proposed after such inquiry, to impose upon him any such penalty, such penalty may be imposed on the basis of the evidence adduced during such inquiry and it shall not be necessary to give such person any opportunity or making representation on the penalty proposed:

Provided further that this clause shall not apply}

- (a) where a person is dismissed or removed or reduced in rank on the ground of conduct which has led to his conviction on a criminal charge; or

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Fifteenth Amendment) Act, 1963, sec. 10, for clauses. (2) and (3).

2. Certain words omitted by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 44 (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

3. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 44, for certain words (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

- (b) where the authority empowered to dismiss or remove a person or to reduce him in rank is satisfied that for some reason, to be recorded by that authority in writing, it is not reasonably practicable to hold such inquiry; or
 - (c) where the President or the Governor, as the case may be, is satisfied that in the interest of the security of the State it is not expedient to hold such inquiry.
- (3) If, in respect of any such person as aforesaid, a question whether it is reasonably practicable to hold such inquiry as is referred to in clause (2), the decision thereon of the authority empowered to dismiss or remove such person or to reduce him in rank shall be final.]

Notes on Article 311

Misconduct

The Punjab Police Manual makes a distinction between 'misconduct' and 'gravest misconduct'. If the court objectively finds that the conduct in question is not of the gravest kind, then only a minor punishment can be awarded. In such a case, an order of dismissal would be set aside; State of Punjab v. Ram, (1992) 4 SCC 54 (3 Judges).

Relief by Supreme Court

The extraordinary powers of the Supreme Court are not fettered by any limitations. The court can grant any relief to meet the interests of justice on equitable grounds, e.g. to direct the State to make some ex gratia payment to an employee whose appeal has been dismissed. See the undermentioned cases :

- (i) Triveni v. State of U.P., (1992) 1 SCJ 27, paragraph 31.
- (ii) Rajendra v. State of M.P., (1992) Supp 2 SCC 513.
- (iii) State of U.P. v. Sani, (1992) 19 ATC 264 (SC).
- (iv) Prabhuswamy v. K.S.R.T.C., 19 ATC 266 (SC).

The court may reduce a punishment of 'removal' into that of compulsory retirement; Mohapatra v. Sr. Supdt., (1991) Supp (2) SCC 503, paragraph 6.

Where the court directed reinstatement of a probationer who had been discharged without a lawful ground the court further directed that she would not be entitled to the salary from the date of her discharge till that of her reinstatement, on a collateral ground; Neera v. L.I.C., (1992) 1 SCJ 321, paragraph 14.

The powers of the Supreme Court under article 136 to do substantial justice being wide enough, the court may make compassionate orders even where the appellant has no legal right in his favour, e.g. where a temporary employee has been discharged on the availability of a regular recruit through the U.P.S.C., or he is discharged by notice according to Rules; Triveni v. State of U.P., AIR 1992 SC 496, paragraph 28.

Administrative Tribunal

In view of section 14(1)(b) of the Specific Relief Act, 1963 the court cannot direct the employer to reinstate a dismissed employee, even though as a result of the declaration of the court that the dismissal was wrongful or unconstitutional, the Government may be obliged to put him back to his post or another post of the same status; Om Prakash v. State of U.P., (1991) Supp (2) SCC 436, paragraph 3.

There may be circumstances in which the court may not on equitable grounds, interfere with an order of reinstatement which has been already implemented; Union of India v. Chhida, (1991) Supp (2) SCC 16, paragraph 5.

The High Court, in writ jurisdiction, is not a court of appeal. It cannot interfere on the ground of inadequacy or unreliability of the evidence on which the disciplinary authority has acted. It cannot review the evidence and come to its own conclusions; Maharashtra S.B.E. v. Gandhi, (1992) 2 SCC 716, paragraphs 10, 38.

After the establishment of an Administrative tribunal under the Administrative tribunals Act, 1985 and application under section 19 of that Act would lie to the Tribunal, in place of the High Court under article 226 of the Constitution. See the undermentioned cases:

- (i) Union of India v. Deep, (1992) 4 SCC 432, paragraphs 3 and 6.
- (ii) C.S.I.R. v. Labour Court, (1992) 19 ATC 414 (Luck), paragraph 2.

So far as employees of the Government or authorities coming under article 323A(1) of the Constitution and section 14 of the Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 are concerned the jurisdiction of the civil courts now belongs to the Tribunal set up under the Act [sec. 15(1)], and the remedy of the aggrieved employee is by an application under section 19 of the Act; Ashok v. Union of India, (1992) 20 ATC 501 (Pat).

By reason of section 28(b) of the Administrative Tribunal Act, 1985 the Administrative Tribunal shall not be entitled to exercise its jurisdiction over any matter which is pending before an Industrial Tribunal under the Industrial Disputes Act, 1947 e.g. in a conciliation proceeding under section 33 of the Act; Sat Pal v. Dir., C.P.W.D., (1992) 19 ATC 544 (Del.).

Appeal lies to the Supreme Court from decision of Administrative Tribunal by special leave.

This jurisdiction of the Supreme Court has not been effected by article 323A(2)(d) of the Constitution.

The Supreme Court would interfere where the matter in question falls outside the jurisdiction of the Administrative Tribunal under the governing statute.

Proviso to article 311(2)

This proviso is attracted when the authority is satisfied (from the material placed before it) that it is not reasonably placed to hold a departmental enquiry. The decision to do so cannot rest solely on the ipse dixit of the concerned authority. It is incumbent on those who support the order to show that the satisfaction is based on certain objective facts and is not the outcome of whim or caprice. There must be independent material to justify the dispensing with the inquiry envisaged by article 311(2); Jaswant v. State of Punjab, (1991) 1 SCC 362, paragraph 5.

Abolition of post

Even in the case of a permanent post, article 311(2) is not attracted, simply because abolition of a post for administrative exigencies could not be said to be a 'punishment' for some misconduct, and also because the creation and abolition of a post is the exclusive concern of the executive. The court thus upheld the abolition of the posts of Election Commissioners within 3 months of their creation; Dhanva v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1745.

Where a post (even if it is a permanent post) is abolished, article 311(2) is not attracted. There is no "punishment" and no misconduct; Kamra v. N.I.A., (1992) 2 SCC 36, paragraphs 4 and 5.

Adverse remarks

Where there is no rule requiring the competent authority to record or communicate reasons for rejecting a representation against adverse remarks, such order of rejection cannot be challenged merely on the ground of non-recording of reasons, provided it was passed in a fair and just manner, after considering the materials on record. The competent authority may show the reasons from the notings in the file and other materials on the record; Government of India v. Nambudri, AIR 1991 SC 1261, paragraphs 10 and 11.

Appeal

For article 311(2), proviso to apply, it is not necessary for the Government to wait until the disposal of appeal or revision presented against conviction. But if the conviction is subsequently set aside, on appeal or otherwise, the order of dismissal ceases to have effect and the employee is entitled to be reinstated forthwith and to recover arrears of salary from the date of dismissal till he is properly dismissed in compliance with article 311(2); Babu Lal v. State of Haryana, (1991) 2 SCC 35, paragraph 7.

Civil post

The provisions of article 311 extend to all persons holding a civil post under the Union or a State, including members of the all India and State Service. Members of the Defence Services are thus excluded from the scope of this article, but not police officers. The only persons who are excluded from the purview of article 311(1) (which is in the nature of an exception to the general provision in article 310(1)) are—

- (a) members of Defence Services, and
- (b) persons holding any post connected with defence, but not Police Officers; Central Bank v. Bernard, (1991) 1 SCC 319, paragraph 5.

Compulsory retirement

Compulsory retirement (if penal) must comply with article 311; Ram Ekbal Sharma v. State of Bihar, AIR 1990 SC 1368.

Even though the order of compulsory retirement may be couched in innocuous language without making any imputations against the Government servant, the court may, in appropriate cases, lift the veil to find out whether the order is based on any misconduct of the Government servant or whether it is bona fide; Ram Ekbal Sharma v. State of Bihar, AIR 1990 SC 1368.

- (i) Compulsory retirement in the public interest carries no stigma under rule 16(3), All India Services (Death-cum- Retirement) Rules, 1958 and the officer retains full pensionary benefits.
- (ii) Loss of efficiency at that age is a ground of public interest. It is not a punishment. Hence article 311(2) is not attracted.
- (iii) Even if adverse entries are not communicated, the order is valid if there are no mala fides etc; Baikuntha v. C.D.M.O., (1992) 2 SCC 299.

Even an adverse report for a single year may constitute sufficient material for the Government to come to a decision that the employee's standard of work was not satisfactory and should therefore be retired. The reason is that the nature of the delinquency, and whether it is of such a nature as to require compulsory retirement is for the departmental authorities to decide. The court will not interfere with the exercise of that power except on the ground of mala fides etc; P&T Board v. Murthy, (1992) 2 SCC 317, paragraph 5.

Compulsory retirement under article 465A, Note 1, Civil Service Regulations would not attract article 311(2) even if, in fact, the order is passed on the ground of misconduct, inefficiency or the like. Government servant does not, in such a case, lose terminal benefits. No penal consequences are involved. Such an order does not amount to dismissal or removal; Baikuntha v. C.D.M.O., (1992) 2 SCC 299, paragraphs 30 and 34.

Assuming that there is no legal or constitutional infirmity, a single adverse entry or adverse entries in the last 2 years, casting doubt upon the integrity of the employee can be the basis for compulsory retirement in the public interest; Post and Telegraph Board v. Murthy, (1992) 2 SCC 317.

Confirmation

Where the appointment of a temporary employee is made for an unspecified or indefinite period of time, he cannot claim that he has been automatically confirmed on the expiry of the period of appointment. It is true, that the period can be extended indefinitely. But that does not mean that the services of the incumbent holding the post would be extended; Dhiraj v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 73.

Compulsory retirement

Where an order of compulsory retirement has become final by an appellate order but the petitioner prays for a reconsideration of that order, what is to be determined by the authority (or Tribunal) on such prayer, is not whether the order of compulsory retirement was vitiated on the merits (as is done while hearing an appeal), but whether the conditions for reconsideration, according to the relevant Rules or circulars, were fulfilled; State of Rajasthan v. Shiv, AIR 1992 SC 1587, paragraphs 8 and 9 (3 Judges).

An order of compulsory retirement is not liable to be quashed on the mere ground that uncommunicated adverse remarks were taken into consideration; Baikuntha v. C.D.M.O., (1992) 2 SCC 299, paragraph 34 (3 Judges).

Copy of Report

Where the action proposed is not based on a report, or the disciplinary authority itself is the Inquiry Officer, the omission to supply a copy thereof to the delinquent will not vitiate the proceedings; Union of India v. Ram Jan, (1991) 1 SCC 588, paragraphs 16-18 (3 Judges).

Criminal proceedings

Where the employee was acquitted on the merits and was reinstated on the basis thereof, and thereafter allowed to retire on superannuation, it would be against the interest of justice, to re-start the disciplinary proceedings against him on the basis of certain observations of the High Court in the case relating to a co-accused; Prafulla v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1992 SC 2209.

Date of birth

A question as to disputed age would not ordinarily be gone into in a writ petition because it is a question of fact. A decree passed against a University or Board to correct the date of birth is not binding on the Government if the State has not been made a party. It can only be treated as evidence; Director v. Sitadevi, AIR 1991 SC 308.

Where an employee has throughout his career accepted a particular date as his date of birth, by his own statement, and near about the date of his superannuation, he makes a representation and files some documents, the order of the relevant authority, made upon a consideration of those documents, cannot be assailed on the ground that the order or rejection of his representation was made without giving him a personal hearing; Executive Engineer v. Rangadhar, (1992) 2 UJSC 453, paragraph 3.

Dismissal

When a Government servant has been dismissed in contravention of either article 311(1) or article 311(2), or of a mandatory statutory rule, or of the principles of natural justice, he would be entitled to bring a suit against the Government; State of Punjab v. Ram, AIR 1992 SC 2188, paragraph 11.
<https://t.me/joinchat/AAAAAFFALE5b7RseosPhQQ>

Whether any order discharging an employee, in exercise of the power conferred by the conditions of service amounts to an order of "dismissal" would depend upon several factors, such as—

- the nature of the enquiry, if any, that may have been held;
- the proceedings taken in the enquiry;
- the substance of the final order passed on such inquiry;
- material that existed prior to such order.

For this purpose, court is entitled to examine the facts and the circumstances and the order; Babulal v. State of Haryana, (1991) 1 SCJ 296, paragraph 8.

Fresh inquiry

Where an order of dismissal is set aside by any court on the merits, but the competent authority decides to hold a fresh departmental proceeding against the delinquent officer, he will not be entitled to be reinstated or to recover arrears of pay since the date of the original order of dismissal on the ground that it was declared by administrative authority to be a nullity; Nelson v. Union of India, AIR 1992 SC 1980, paragraph 10.

Inquiry: Dispensing with

The reasons recorded must ex facie show that it was not reasonably practicable to hold a disciplinary inquiry, and must not be vague or irrelevant; C.S.O. v. Singasan, (1991) 1 SCC 729, paragraph 5.

Inquiry: Initiation and conduct

Article 311(1) does not require that the inquiry should be initiated or conducted by a particular level of authority; Srinivasa v. C.A.G., (1993) 1 SCC 419, paragraphs 4-6.

Legal assistance

Ordinarily, natural justice does not postulate a right to be represented or assisted by a lawyer, in departmental inquiries. But in particular circumstances, the rules of natural justice or fairness, may require that the person charged should have professional help if he so desires; I.I.T. v. Union of India, (1991) Supp (2) SCC 12, paragraph 15 (3 Judges).

Ordinarily, natural justice does not postulate a right to be represented or assisted by a lawyer, in departmental inquiries. But in particular circumstances, the rules of natural justice or fairness may require that the person charged should have professional help, if he so desires; Aggarwal v. H.S.D.C., (1991) 2 SCC 283, paragraphs 6 and 8.

No general principle regarding representation by a lawyer valid in all can be enunciated. A decision has to be reached on a case to case basis on the situation particularities and the special requirement of justice of the case. Where the Presiding Officer is stated to be a man of law, justice would require that the other party who has no legal background is represented by a lawyer; Aggarwal v. H.S.D.C., AIR 1991 SC 1221.

Malice

Malice will be proved—

- where it is shown that the discretionary power was exercised for an unauthorised or extraneous purpose, e.g. where there is nothing on the record to justify the order of premature retirement of the petitioner or the alleged 'public interest' is founded on non-existent facts or circumstances, or on no evidence;

- (ii) where it is shown that the order is arbitrary or perverse or, in other words, no reasonable person could form such opinion on the given material.

In case of post for fixed tenure, malice will be presumed; Baikuntha v. C.D.M.O., (1992) 2 SCC 299, paragraph 34; Aggarwal v. Union of India, (1992) 3 SCC 526.

Opportunity

Though the delinquent is no longer entitled to make any representation to the disciplinary authority as to the nature or quantum of the punishment proposed, the 42nd Amendment has not taken away the delinquent's right of appeal against the final order in the disciplinary proceeding where he can show that the findings of the Inquiry Officer or any of them have not been established on the materials before the Inquiry Officer and that the Punishing Authority has been influenced by Such findings; Union of India v. Ramjan, (1991) 1 SCC 588, paragraphs 15-17.

Penal order

Even where an order is innocuous on its face and purports to be an order of discharge in accordance with the terms and conditions of the appointment, the court can lift the veil and find out the real nature of the order and to set it aside if it is penal in nature and was made without giving the employee any opportunity to show cause why he should not be dismissed for the misconduct alleged; Babulala v. State of Haryana, AIR 1991 SC 1310, paragraph 8.

Reinstated employee

Where the reinstated employee has actually discharged his duties without any such fresh fixation of pay made in the order of reinstatement, he should get his full salary for that period; Nelson v. Union of India, AIR 1992 SC 1980, paragraph 14 (3 Judges).

Removal

According to the Departmental Rules, there is some difference between dismissal and removal, as to their consequences. Thus, while a person 'dismissed' is ineligible for re-employment under the Government, no such disqualification attaches to a person 'removed'; Dattatraya v. Municipal Commissioners, (1992) 2 SCC 547, paragraphs 6-8.

Seniority

The court will not disturb a seniority after a long lapse of time from when it was fixed; Dograv v. State of H.P., (1992) 4 SCC 455, paragraphs 10 and 11.

Temporary appointment

In State of U.P. v. Kaushal, (1991) 1 SCC 691, the court has summed up the position as under:

- "(a) If, on the perusal of the character roll entries or on the basis of preliminary inquiry on the allegations made against an employee, the competent authority is satisfied that the employee is not suitable for the service whereupon the services of the temporary employees are terminated, no exception can be taken to such an order or termination. A Government servant has no right to hold the post; his services are liable to be terminated by giving him one month's notice without assigning any reason either under the terms of the contract providing for such termination or under the relevant statutory rules regulating the terms and conditions of temporary Government servants.
- (b) However, this court has made it clear that if the competent authority decides to take punitive action, it may do (only) by holding a formal inquiry by framing charges and giving an opportunity to the Government servant in accordance with the provisions of article 311 of the Constitution"; Triveni v. State of U.P., AIR 1992 SC 496, paragraphs 26 and 27.

Where an appointment order states that the post was temporary, though likely to continue for an indefinite period, the person appointed does not acquire an legal right to extension, and his services may be terminated by issuing notice under the Civil Services (Temporary) Rules, 1949; Dhiraj v. Union of India, (1991) Supp (2) SCC 203, paragraph 8.

If, on the perusal of character roll entries or on the basis of preliminary inquiry into the allegations made against an employee, the Government is satisfied that he is not suitable, and, consequently the services of the temporary employee are terminated, then no exception can be taken to such termination. Such termination is not punitive; State of U.P. v. Kaushal, (1991) 1 SCC 691; Saxena v. State of U.P., (1992) Supp (1) SCC 524, 534.

Tenure post

A 'tenure post' means a post held for a specified term. The appointment terminated on the expiry of that term. The question of superannuation or of premature retirement does not arise in the case of such post; Agarwal v. Union of India, (1992) 2 UJSC 266, paragraph 16.

Appointment to a tenure post for which there is a fixed period comes to an end on expiry of the period. A person so appointed cannot be compulsorily retired. An order of compulsory retirement, passed against such a person on the basis of (alleged) "public interest" is liable to be quashed; Agarwal v. Union of India, (1992) 3 SCC 526, paragraphs 16-17.

Term: Expiry of

There is no question of application of article 311(2) where a person's services are sought to be terminated at the expiry of the term for which he was engaged or at the expiry of the period of notice by which, in accordance with the conditions of his service, his services could be terminated, provided of course, the contract itself is not unconstitutional, say, for contravention of article 311(2); Triveni v. State of U.P., AIR 1992 SC 496, paragraphs 26 and 27 (3 Judges).

312. All India Services.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in ¹[Chapter VI of Part VI or Part XI], if the Council of States has declared by resolution supported by not less than two-thirds of the members present and voting that it is necessary or expedient in the national interest so to do, Parliament may by law provide for the creation of one or more all-India services ²[including an all-India judicial service] common to the Union and the States, and, subject to the other provisions of this chapter, regulate the recruitment, and the conditions of service of persons appointed, to any such service.

(2) The service known at the commencement of this Constitution as the Indian Administrative Service and the Indian Police Service shall be deemed to be services created by Parliament under this article.

²[(3) The All-India judicial service referred to in clause (1) shall not include any post inferior to that of a district judge as defined in article 236.]

(4) The law providing for the creation of the all-India judicial service aforesaid may contain such provisions for the amendment of Chapter VI of Part VI as may be necessary

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 45, for "Part XI" (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

2. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 45. (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

for giving effect to the provisions of that law and no such law shall be deemed to be an amendment of this Constitution for the purposes of article 368.]

Notes on Article 312

No law under clause (3) has been made so far.

¹[312A. Power of Parliament to vary or revoke conditions of service of officers of certain services.—(1) Parliament may by law—

- (a) vary or revoke, whether prospectively or retrospectively, the conditions of services as respects remuneration, leave and pension and the rights as respects disciplinary matters of persons who, having been appointed by the Secretary of State or Secretary of State in Council to a civil service of the Crown in India before the commencement of this Constitution, continue on and after the commencement of the Constitution (Twenty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1972, to serve under the Government of India or of a State in any service or post;
- (b) vary or revoke, whether prospectively or retrospectively, the conditions of service as respects pension of persons who, having been appointed by the Secretary of State or Secretary of State in Council to a civil service of the Crown in India before the commencement of this Constitution, retired or otherwise ceased to be in service at any time before the commencement of the Constitution (Twenty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1972:

Provided that in the case of any such person who is holding or has held the office of the Chief Justice or other judge of the Supreme Court or a High Court, the Comptroller and Auditor-General of India, the Chairman or other member of the Union or a State Public Service Commission or the Chief Election Commissioner, nothing in sub-clause (a) or sub-clause (b) shall be construed as empowering Parliament to vary or revoke, after his appointment to such post, the conditions of his service to his disadvantage except in so far as such conditions of service are applicable to him by reason of his being a person appointed by the Secretary of State in Council to a civil service of the Crown in India.

(2) Except to the extent provided for by Parliament by law under this article, nothing in this article shall affect the power of any Legislature or other authority under any other provision of this Constitution to regulate the conditions of service of persons referred to in clause (1).

(3) Neither the Supreme Court nor any other court shall have jurisdiction in

- (a) any dispute arising out of any provision of, or any endorsement on, any covenant, agreement or other similar instrument which was entered into or executed by any person referred to in clause (1), or arising out of any letter issued to such person, in relation to his appointment to any civil service of the Crown in India or his continuance in service under the Government of the Dominion of India or a Province thereof;
- (b) any dispute in respect of any right, liability or obligation under article 314 as originally enacted.

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Twenty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1972, sec. 2 (w.e.f 29-8-1972).

(4) The provisions of this article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in article 314 as originally enacted or in any other provision of this Constitution.]

313. Transitional provisions.—Until other provision is made in this behalf under this Constitution, all the laws in force immediately before the commencement of this Constitution and applicable to any public service or any post which continues to exist after the commencement of this Constitution, as an all-India service or as service or post under the Union or a State shall continue in force so far as consistent with the provisions of this Constitution.

314. Provision for protection of existing officers of certain services.—[Rep. by the Constitution (Twenty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1972, sec. 3, w.e.f. 29-8-1972].

CHAPTER II—PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSIONS

315. Public Service Commissions for the Union and for the States.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this article, there shall be a Public Service Commission for the Union and a Public Service Commission for each State.

(2) Two or more States may agree that there shall be one Public Service Commission for that group of States, and if a resolution to that effect is passed by the House or, where there are two Houses, by each House of Legislature of each of those States, Parliament may by law provide for the appointment of a Joint State Public Service Commission (referred to in this chapter as Joint Commission) to serve the needs of those States.

(3) Any such law as aforesaid may contain such incidental and consequential provisions as may be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the purposes of the law.

(4) The Public Service Commission for the Union, if requested so to do by the Governor¹ [] of a State, may, with the approval of the President, agree to serve all or any of the needs of the State.

(5) References in this Constitution to the Union Public Service Commission or a State Public Service Commission shall, unless the context otherwise requires, be construed as references to the Commission serving the needs of the Union or, as the case may be, the State as respects the particular matter in question.

316. Appointment and term of office of members.—(1) The Chairman and other members of a Public Service Commission shall be appointed, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, by the President, and in the case of a State Commission, by the Governor¹ [] of the State:

Provided that as nearly as may be one-half of the members of every Public Service Commission shall be persons who at the dates of their respective appointments have held office for at least ten years either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State, and in computing the said period of ten years any period before the commencement of this Constitution during which a person has held office under the Crown in India or under the Government of an Indian State shall be included.

1. The words "or Rajpramukh" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

¹[(1A) If the office of the Chairman of the Commission becomes vacant or if any such Chairman is by reason of absence or for any other reason unable to perform the duties of his office, those duties shall, until some person appointed under clause (1) to the vacant office has entered on the duties thereof or, as the case may be, until the Chairman has resumed his duties, be performed by such one of the other members of the Commission as the President, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, and the Governor of the State in the case of a State Commission, may appoint for the purpose.]

(2) A member of a Public Service Commission shall hold office for a term of six years from the date on which he enters upon his office or until he attains, in the case of the Union Commission, the age of sixty-five years, and in the case of a State Commission or a Joint Commission, the age of ²[sixty-two years], which is earlier:

Provided that—

(a) a member of a Public Service Commission may, by writing under his hand addressed, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, to the President, and in the case of a State Commission, to the Governor³[] of the State, resign his office;

(b) a member of a Public Service Commission may be removed from his office in the manner provided in clause (1) or clause (3) of article 317.

(3) A person who holds office as a member of a Public Service Commission shall, on the expiration of his terms of office, be ineligible for re-appointment to that office.

Notes on Article 316

The requirement in article 316(1) proviso, as to one half members being persons who have held office under the Government is directory. Hence in a State Public Services Commission comprising eleven members, a challenge to the seventh member (who belongs to the non-service category) is not sustainable in law; Jai Shankar Prasad v. State of Bihar, (1993) 2 SCC 597.

317. Removal and suspension of a member of a Public Service Commission.—(1) Subject to the provisions of clause (3), the Chairman or any other member of a Public Service Commission shall only be removed from his office by order of the President on the ground of misbehaviour after the Supreme Court, on reference being made to it by the President, has, on inquiry held in accordance with the procedure prescribed in that behalf under article 145, reported that the Chairman or such other member, as the case may be, ought on any such ground to be removed.

(2) The President, in the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, and the Governor³[] in the case of a State Commission, may suspend from office the Chairman or any other member of the Commission in respect of whom a reference has been made to the Supreme Court under clause (1) until the President has passed orders on receipt of the report of the Supreme Court on such reference.

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Fifteenth Amendment) Act, 1963, sec. 11.

2. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-first Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 2, for "sixty years".

3. The words "or Rajpramukh" omitted by the constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in clause (1), the President may by order remove from office the Chairman or any other member of a Public Service Commission if the Chairman or such other member, as the case may be,

- (a) is adjudged an insolvent; or
- (b) engages during his term of office in any paid employment outside the duties of his office; or
- (c) is, in the opinion of the President, unfit to continue in office by reason of infirmity of mind or body.

(4) If the Chairman or any other member of a Public Service Commission is or becomes in any way concerned or interested in any contract or agreement made by or on behalf of the Government of India or the Government of a State or participates in any way in the profit thereof or in any benefit or emolument arising therefrom otherwise than as a member and in common with the other members of an incorporated company, he shall, for the purposes of clause (1), be deemed to be guilty of misbehaviour.

Notes on Article 317

Important judgments as to Public Service Commissions are the following:—

- (i) Reference under article 317(1), AIR 1983 SC 996.
- (ii) U.P. Public Service Commission v. Suresh, AIR 1987 SC 1953.
- (iii) K.P. Sen v. State of W.B., AIR 1966 Cal 356.
- (iv) Hargovind v. Raghukul, AIR 1979 SC 1109.

Proportion

The validity of the appointment of a particular member cannot be challenged on the ground that he did not belong to the category which was required to make up the 50% proportion; Jai v. State of Bihar, (1993) 2 SCC 597, paragraph 9-12.

Misconduct

In article 124(4) the word 'proved' qualifies the word 'misconduct' while that qualification is absent in article 317(1).

Such proof in the case of a Supreme Court Judge, comes from (the law enacted by Parliament under clause (5) of article 124), the inquiry under the Judges (Inquiry) Act, 1968, which is absent in the case of a member of a Public Service Commission. In the case of a member of the P.S.C., the inquiry and proof of misbehaviour shall be made by the Supreme Court, while in the case of a Supreme Court Judge, that is to be done by the Committee set up under the Judges (Inquiry) Act; Sub-Committee v. Union of India, AIR 1992 SC 320, paragraph 45.

If the Chairman of a State Public Service Commission is slapped on the face by another it is a case of misbehaviour under article 317(1) and renders the latter member liable to be removed.¹

Infirmities under article 317(3)(c) must be such as to disable the member from the efficient discharge of his functions and must be of post—appointment origin. Where a university professor is appointed a member of State Public Service Commission and is known to be blind, he cannot be removed on the ground of infirmity; Jai Shankar Prasad v. State of Bihar, (1993) 2 SCC 597.

1. In the matter of reference under article 317(1) of the Constitution of India, (1992) 2 SCC 236, 250 (3 Judges).

The provisions of priviso (b) to article 316 and the word 'only' in article 317(a) make it clear that the power to remove a Public Service Commission has been vested exclusively in the President.

Hence, no court can exercise this power even by means of the writ of quo warranto.

The determination as to whether a member should be removed on the ground of infirmity is left to the subjective satisfaction of the President as to whether the infirmity is such that it incapacitates the particular member for discharging the functions of his office; Jai v. State of Bihar, (1993) 2 SCC 597, paragraphs 13, 15 and 18.

In a reference under article 317 regulating enquiry and report on the allegations made against the Chairman Manipur State Public Service Commission, the Supreme Court directed that direct evidence in relation to the reference should be recorded by a sitting Judge of the High Court. JT (1994) 2 SC 63.

Members of State Public Service Commission are not equal to the Chairman and cannot claim the same facilities as the Chairman; Bihar Public Service Commission v. Dr Shiv Jatan Thakur, JT (1994) SC 681.

318. Power to make regulations as to conditions of service of members and staff of the Commission.—In the case of the Union Commission or a Joint Commission, the President and, in the case of a State Commission, the Governor¹ [] of the State may by regulations

- (a) determine the number of members of the Commission and their conditions of service; and
- (b) make provision with respect to the number of members of the staff of the Commission and their conditions of service:

Provided that the conditions of service of a member of a Public Service Commission shall not be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment.

319. Prohibition as to the holding of offices by members of Commission on ceasing to be such members.—On ceasing to hold office,

- (a) the Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission shall be ineligible for further employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State;
- (b) the Chairman of a State Public Service Commission shall be eligible for appointment as the Chairman or any other member of the Union Public Service Commission or as the Chairman of any other State Public Service Commission, but not for any other employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State;
- (c) a member other than the Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission shall be eligible for appointment as the Chairman of the Union Public Service Commission or as the Chairman of a State Public Service Commission, but not for any other employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State;
- (d) a member other than the Chairman of a State Public Service Commission shall be eligible for appointment as the Chairman or any other member of the Union Public Service Commission or as the Chairman of that or any other State Public Service Commission, but not for any other employment either under the Government of India or under the Government of a State.

320. Functions of Public Service Commission.—(1) It shall be the duty of the Union and the State Public Service Commission to conduct examinations for appointment to the services of the Union and the services of the State respectively.

(2) It shall also be the duty of the Union Public Service Commission, if requested by any two or more States so to do, to assist those States in framing and operating schemes of joint recruitment for any services for which candidates possessing special qualifications are required.

(3) The Union Public Service Commission or the State Service Commission, as the case may be, shall be consulted—

- (a) on all matters relating to methods of recruitment to civil services and for civil posts;
- (b) on the principles to be followed in making appointments to civil services and posts and in making promotions and transfers from one service to another and on the suitability of candidates for such appointments, promotions or transfers;
- (c) on all disciplinary matters affecting a person serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State in a civil capacity, including memorials or petitions relating to such matters;
- (d) on any claim by or in respect of a person who is serving or has served under the Government of India or the Government of a State or under the Crown in India or under the Government of an Indian State, in a civil capacity, that any costs incurred by him in defending legal proceedings instituted against him in respect of acts done or purporting to be done in the execution of his duty should be paid out of the Consolidated Fund of India, or, as the case may be, out of the Consolidated Fund of the State;
- (e) on any claim for the award of a pension in respect of injuries sustained by a person while serving under the Government of India or the Government of a State or under the Crown in India or under the Government of an Indian State, in a civil capacity, and any question as to the amount of any such award, and it shall be the duty of a Public Service Commission to advise on any matter so referred to them and on any other matter which the President, or, as the case may be, the Governor¹[] of the State, may refer to them:

Provided that the President as respects the all-India services and also as respects other services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union and the Governor²[] as respects other services and posts in connection with the affairs of a State, may make regulation specifying the matters in which either generally, or in any particular class of case or in any particular circumstances, it shall not be necessary for a Public Service Commission to be consulted.

 2. The words " or Rajpramukh as the case may be" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

(4) Nothing in clause (3) shall require a Public Service Commission to be consulted as respects the manner in which any provision referred to in clause (4) of article 16 may be made or as respects the manner in which effect may be given to the provisions of article 335.

(5) All regulations made under the proviso to clause (3) by the President or the Governor¹ [] of a State shall be laid for not less than fourteen days before each House of Parliament or the House or each House of the Legislature of the State, as the case may be, as soon as possible after they are made, and shall be subject to such modifications, whether by way of repeal or amendment, as both Houses of Parliament or the House or both Houses of the Legislature of the State may make during the session in which they are so laid.

Notes on Article 320

Some of the important decisions on article 320 are the following:—

- (i) Neelima v. State of Haryana, AIR 1987 SC 169. (Commission's duty to forward names).
- (ii) Keshave v. U.P. HESC, (1985) 1 SCC 671. (Method of selection).
- (iii) State of U.P. v. Rajasthan, AIR 1988 SC 162. (Re-opening selection).

If before the selection is held, the Government withdraws its requisition from the Public Service Commission neither the candidate nor the Commission itself can insist on continuing the process of selection; Jaiswal v. Debi, AIR 1992 SC 749, paragraph 5.

When the Public Service Commission issues an advertisement at the behest of the Government a candidate who is otherwise eligible according to the relevant Rules acquires a right to be considered for selection in accordance with those Rules as they existed at the date of the advertisement cannot be deprived of that right by any subsequent amendment of the Rules unless it is retrospective; Devin v. U.P.S.C., AIR 1990 SC 1233.

A selection by the Public Service Commission does not confer any right to the post upon the candidate and the Government has no legal duty to fill up all or any of the vacancies. At the same time, it is now established that the Government is to act fairly and has no licence of acting in an arbitrary manner; Shankaran v. Union of India, (1991) 3 SCC 47 (CB).

If the Government wants to disapprove or reject the list submitted by the Public Service Commission it ought to do so within a reasonable time of the receipt of the list and for reasons to be recorded and the Government cannot accept a part of the list and reject the rest; Asha v. State of J & K, (1993) 2 SCC 573, paragraphs 7 and 8.

Even where the court finds that the action of the appointing authority in making an appointment overriding the selection made by the Public Service Commission was arbitrary, the court may not on humanitarian grounds, quash such appointment after a long lapse of time; Puttaraswamy v. Chief Justice, (1991) Supp 2 SCC 421, paragraphs 12 and 17.

321. Power to extend functions of Public Service Commissions.—An Act made by Parliament or, as the case may be, the Legislature of a State may provide for the exercise of additional functions by the Union Public Service Commission or the State Public Service Commission as respects the services of the Union or the State and also as respects the services of any local authority or other body corporate constituted by law or of any public institution.

1. The words "or Rajpramukh" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 am Sch.

322. Expenses of Public Service Commissions.—The expenses of the Union or a State Public Service Commission, including any salaries, allowances and pensions payable to or in respect of the members or staff of the Commission shall be charged on the Consolidated Fund of India, or, as the case may be, the Consolidated Fund of the State.

323. Reports of Public Service Commissions.—(1) It shall be the duty of the Union Commission to present annually to the President a report as to the work done by the Commission and on receipt of such report the President shall cause a copy thereof together with a memorandum explaining, as respects the cases, if any, where the advice of the Commission was not accepted, the reasons for such non-acceptance to be laid before each House of Parliament.

(2) It shall be the duty of a State Commission to present annually to the Governor¹[] of the State a report as to the work done by the Commission, and it shall be the duty of a Joint Commission to present annually to the Governor¹[] of each of the States the needs of which are served by the Joint Commission a report as to the work done by the Commission in relation to that State, and in either case the Governor²[] shall, on receipt of such report, cause a copy thereof together with a memorandum explaining, as respects the cases, if any, where the advice of the Commission was not accepted, the reasons for such non-acceptance to be laid before the Legislature of the State.

PART XIV-A

TRIBUNALS

323A. Administrative tribunals.—(1) Parliament may, by law, provide for the adjudication or trial by administrative tribunals of disputes and complaints with respect of recruitment and conditions of service of persons appointed to public services and posts in connection with the affairs of the Union or of any State or of any local or other authority within the territory of India or under the control of the Government of India or of any corporation owned or controlled by the Government.

(2) A law made under clause (1) may.—

- (a) provide for the establishment of an administrative tribunal for the Union and separate administrative tribunal for each State or for two or more States;
 - (b) specify the jurisdiction, powers (including the power to punish for contempt) and authority which may be exercised by each of the said tribunals;
 - (c) provide for the procedure (including provisions as to limitation and rules of evidence) to be followed by the said tribunals;
 - (d) exclude the jurisdiction of all courts, except the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under article 136, with respect to the disputes or complaints referred to in clause (1);
 - (e) provide for the transfer to each such administrative tribunal of any cases pending before any court or other authority immediately before the establishment of such tribunal as would have been within the jurisdiction of such tribunal if the cause of action on which such suits or proceedings are based had arisen after such establishment;
 - (f) repeal or amend any order made by the President under clause (3) of article 371D;
 - (g) contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to fees) as Parliament may deem necessary for the effective functioning of, and for the speedy disposal of cases by, and the enforcement of the orders of, such tribunals.
- (3) The provisions of this article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in another provision of this Constitution or in any other law for the time being in force.

Notes on Article 323A

The Administrative Tribunals Act, 1985 is legislation in terms of article 323A. By setting up a tribunal under that Act, for the resolution of service disputes, the jurisdiction of the High Court in regard to such matters is intended to be taken away and is intended to be vested in the Tribunal. In S.P. Sampath Kumar v. Union of India, AIR 1987 SC 386 : (1987) 1 SCC 124.

See also notes to article 311.

Under section 14(2) of the Administrative Tribunals Act (as amended) cooperative societies can be added to the list by notification. But until they are so notified by Government jurisdiction of the courts in regard to service matters relating to such societies remains unaffected. See the undermentioned cases:

(i) Ashwani v. P.C.D.F., (1992) 4 SCC 17.

Supreme Court

The Administrative Tribunal will not interfere with an order of rejection, by the Tribunal, of an application for reinstatement on the grounds of inordinate and unexplained delay; Bhoop v. Union of India, AIR 1992 SC 1414, paragraph 2.

The Tribunal would not ordinarily interfere with the decision of the competent authority to compulsorily retire an employee on the ground of unsuitability, in the absence of mala fides, or arbitrariness, or in the absence of any material on the record to show that compulsory retirement of the petitioner was not in the public interest.

Principles of natural justice are not attracted in the case of compulsory retirement under the relevant Rules; Baikuntha v. C.D.M.O., AIR 1992 SC 1020, paragraphs 29, 32 and 33 (3 Judges).

323B. Tribunals for other matters.—(1) The appropriate Legislature may, by law, provide for the adjudication or trial by tribunals of any disputes complaints, or offences with respect to all or any of the matters specified in clause (2) with respect to which such Legislature has power to make laws.

(2) The matters referred to in clause (1) are the following, namely:—

- (a) levy, assessment, collection and enforcement of any tax;
- (b) foreign exchange, import and export across customs frontiers;
- (c) industrial and labour disputes;
- (d) land reforms by way of acquisition by the State of any estate as defined in article 31A or of any rights therein or the extinguishment or modification of any such rights or by way of ceiling on agricultural land or in any other way;
- (e) ceiling on urban property;
- (f) elections to either House of Parliament or the House or either House of the Legislature of a State, but excluding the matters referred to in article 329 and article 329A;
- (g) production, procurement, supply and distribution of food-stuffs (including edible oilseeds and oils) and such other goods as the President may, by public notification, declare to be essential goods for the purpose of this article and control of prices of such goods;

¹[(h) rent, its regulation and control and tenancy issues including the right, title and interest of landlords and tenants;]

²[(i)] offences against laws with respect to any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to ³[(h)] and fees in respect of any of those matters;

²[(j)] any matter incidental to any of the matters specified in sub-clauses (a) to ³[(i)].

(3) A law made under clause (1) may,—

- (a) provide for the establishment of a hierarchy of tribunals;
- (b) specify the jurisdiction, powers (including the power to punish for contempt) and authority which may be exercised by each of the said tribunals;

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Seventy-fifth Amendment) Act, 1993.

2. Clauses (h) and (i) relettered as clauses (i) and (j) by the Constitution (Seventy-fifth Amendment) Act, 1993.

3. Subs. by the Constitution (Seventy-fifth Amendment) Act, 1993.

- (c) provide for the procedure (including provisions as to limitation and rules of evidence) to be followed by the said tribunals;
- (d) exclude the jurisdiction of all courts, except the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court under 136, with respect to all or any of the matters falling within the jurisdiction of the said tribunals;
- (e) provide for the transfer to each such tribunal of any cases pending before any court or any other authority immediately before the establishment of such tribunal as would have been within the jurisdiction of such tribunal if the causes of action on which such suits or proceedings are based had arisen after such establishment;
- (f) contain such supplemental, incidental and consequential provisions (including provisions as to fees) as the appropriate Legislature may deem necessary for the effective functioning of, and for the speedy disposal of cases by, and the enforcement of the orders of, such tribunals.

(4) The provisions of this article shall have effect notwithstanding anything in any other provision of this Constitution or in any other law for the time being in force.

Explanation—In this article, “appropriate Legislature” in relation to any matter, means Parliament or, as the case may be, a State Legislature competent to make laws with respect to such matter in accordance with the provisions of Part XI.]

Notes on Article 323B

Appeal lies to the Supreme Court from orders of an Administrative Tribunal, by special leave under 136 on the following grounds inter alia--

Error of law, e.g. in the matter of determining the proper date of confirmation or seniority or age of retirement of the appellant. See the undermentioned cases:

Union of India v. Sharma, AIR 1992 SC 1188, paragraphs 5 and 8.

Union of India v. Pratap, AIR 1992 SC 1363, paragraph 8, 14 .

Appeal lies to the Supreme Court from orders of an Administrative Tribunal, by special leave under Article 136, on the grounds inter alia that finding of the Tribunal was perverse; Tamilmani v. Union of India, AIR 1992 SC 1120, paragraph 2.

Service Tribunals have been set up under the Administrative Tribunals Act. The words 'all courts' in article 323A (2)(d) and article 323B (3)(d) include the High Court and the jurisdiction of the High Court under Articles 226-227 has been exclusively vested in the Administrative Tribunals set up under the Act; Union of India v. Deep, (1992) 4 SCC 432, paragraph 3 and 6 (3 Judges).

Service Tribunals have been set up under the Administrative Tribunals Act. The words 'all courts' in article 323A(2)(d) and article 323B(3)(d) include the High Court and the jurisdiction of the High Court under articles 226-227 has been exclusively vested in the Administrative Tribunals setup under the Act. No challenge to any decision of an Administrative Tribunal, relating to a service matter can be made before the High Court; Patro v. Ministry of Information and Broadcasting, (1992) Supp (1) SCC 550.

The State of West Bengal enacted the W.B. Taxation Tribunal Act, 1987, and set up a Tribunal with exclusive jurisdiction to adjudicate disputes or complaints or offences with respect to taxation under any of the State Acts specified therein. The Calcutta High Court has, however, struck down this Act in so far as it dealt with the case levied on the basis of the value of coal raised by mining companies under the W.B. Primary Education Act, 1991, W.B. Rural Employment and Production Act, 1976, and the Bengal Cess Act, 1880 on the ground that the power to legislate relating to case on coal or other minerals belonged to the Union Parliament and not the State Legislature.

The Explanation to Article 323B makes it clear that the distribution of legislative powers as between the Union and the State Legislatures, in Part XI of the Constitution, is not in any way to be affected by the insertion of Article 323B. Hence, a State Legislature shall be competent to set up a Tribunal under clause (a) of sub-section (2) of article 323B only if the State Legislature has jurisdiction to legislate with respect to the assessment, collection or enforcement of the particular tax in relation to which the Tribunal is sought; Kesoram Industries v. Union of India, AIR 1993 Cal 78, paragraph 34 (DB).

ELECTIONS

324. Superintendence, direction and control of elections to be vested in an Election Commission.—(1) The superintendence, direction and control of the preparation of the electoral rolls for, and the conduct of, all elections of Parliament and to the Legislature of every State and of elections to the offices of President and Vice-President held under this Constitution¹[] shall be vested in a Commission (referred to in this Constitution as the Election Commission).

(2) The Election Commission shall consist of the Chief Election Commissioner and such number of other Election Commissioners, if any, as the President may from time to time fix and the appointment of the Chief Election Commissioner and other Election Commissioners shall, subject to the provisions of any law made in that behalf by Parliament, be made by the President.

(3) When any other Election Commissioner is so appointed the Chief Election Commissioner shall act as the Chairman of the Election Commission.

(4) Before each general election to the House of the People and to the Legislative Assembly of each State, and before the first general election and thereafter before each biennial election to the Legislative Council of each State having such Council, the President may also appoint after consultation with the Election Commission such Regional Commissioners as he may consider necessary to assist the Election Commission in the performance of the Functions conferred on the Commission by clause (1).

(5) Subject to the provisions of any law made by Parliament, the conditions of service and tenure of office of the Election Commissioners and the Regional Commissioners shall be such as the President may by rule determine:

Provided that the Chief Election Commissioner shall not be removed from his office except in like manner and on the like grounds as a Judge of the Supreme Court and the conditions of service of the Chief Election Commissioner shall not be varied to his disadvantage after his appointment:

Provided further that any other Election Commissioner or a Regional Commissioner shall not be removed from office except on the recommendation of the Chief Election Commissioner.

(6) The President, or the Governor²[] of a State, shall, when so requested by the Election Commission, make available to the Election Commission or to a Regional Commissioner such staff as may be necessary for the discharge of the functions conferred on the Election Commission by clause (1).

Notes on Article 324

Abolition of post of Election Commissioners by the President and consequential termination of the service of the incumbent of the abolished post, cannot be made a ground of action. There is no illegality in such termination of service; S.S. Dhanoa v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1745.

1. The words "including the appointment of election tribunals for the decision of doubts and disputes arising out of or in connection with elections to Parliament and to the Legislatures of States" omitted by the Constitution (Nineteenth Amendment) Act, 1966, sec. 2.
2. The words "or Rajpramukh" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

However wide the powers of the Election Commission relating to direction and control may be, its orders must be traceable to some existing law and cannot violate the provisions of any law including State Acts. But precautionary measures which can be taken without violating any statutory provision would not be illegal; Dasappa v. Election Commission, AIR 1992 Kant 230, paragraph 10.

No election can be invalidated on the ground that the Electoral Officer failed to comply with the non-statutory directions issued by the Commission even though they are administratively binding upon the Electoral Officer; Narayan v. Purshotam, (1993) 1 UJSC 297, paragraph 37.

In October 1989 the President notified that besides the Chief Election Commissioner the Commission should have two other members called 'Election Commissioners' with co-ordinate powers. On January 1, 1990 the President revoked his Notification of 1989 as a result of which, the two Election Commissioners who had been appointed, lost their office as Election Commissioners. One of them challenged the revocation of the Notification on various grounds. The Supreme Court rejected the petition under article 324 holding as under—

- (i) Even though it was desirable that the highly vital functions of the Election Commission should be exercised by more than one individual, the creation and abolition of posts was a prerogative of the Executive and article 324(2) left to the President to fix and appoint such number of Election Commissioners as he may, from time to time determine. Hence, the abolition of the post of Election Commissioners, which was a consequence of such abolition gave rise to no cause of action.
- (ii) While it was obligatory to appoint the Chief Election Commissioner, the appointment of other Election Commissioners [cl.(2)] or Regional Commissioners [cl.(4)] was left by the Constitution to the discretion of the President.
- (iii) In the absence of any evidence that the abolition of the posts and the removal of the incumbents there of was made on the recommendation of the Chief Election Commissioner, it could not be held that the President or the Chief Election Officer was actuated by malice; Dhanoa v. Union of India, AIR 1991 SC 1745.

325. No person to be ineligible for inclusion in, or to claim to be included in a special electoral roll on grounds of religion, race, caste or sex.—There shall be one general electoral role for every territorial constituency for election to either House of Parliament or to the House or either House of the Legislature of a State and no person shall be ineligible for inclusion in any such roll or claim to be included in any special electoral roll for any such constituency on grounds only of religion, race, caste, sex or any of them.

326. Elections of the House of the People and to the Legislative Assemblies of States to be on the basis of adult suffrage.—The elections to the House of the People and to the Legislative Assembly of every State shall be on the basis of adult suffrage; that is to say, every person who is a citizen of India and who is not less than ¹[eighteen years] of age on such date as may be fixed in that behalf by or under any law made by the appropriate Legislature and is not otherwise disqualified under this Constitution or any law made by the appropriate Legislature on the ground of non-residence, unsoundness of mind, crime or corrupt or illegal practice, shall be entitled to be registered as a voter at any such election.

1. Subs. by the Constitution (Amendment) Act, 1988, sec. 2.

327. Power of Parliament to make provision with respect to elections to Legislatures.—Subject to the provisions of this Constitution, Parliament may from time to time by law make provision with respect to all matters relating to, or in connection with, elections to either House of Parliament or to the House or either House of the Legislature of a State including the preparation of electoral rolls, the delimitation of constituencies and all other matters necessary for securing the due constitution of such House or Houses.

328. Power of Legislature of a State to make provision with respect to elections to such Legislature.—Subject to the provisions of this Constitution and in so far as provision in that behalf is not made by Parliament, the Legislature of a State may from time to time by law make provision with respect to all matters relating to, or in connection with, the elections to the House or either House of the Legislature of the State including the preparation of electoral rolls and all other matters necessary for securing the due Constitution of such House or Houses.

329. Bar to interference by courts in electoral matters.—¹[Notwithstanding anything in this Constitution²[]

- (a) the validity of any law relating to the delimitation of constituencies or the allotment of seats to such constituencies, made or purporting to be made under article 327 or article 328 shall not be called in question in any court;
- (b) no election to either House of Parliament or to the House or either House of the Legislature of a State shall be called in question except by an election petition presented to such authority and in such manner as may be provided for by or under any law made by the appropriate Legislature.

Notes on Article 329

Under article 323(b) election petitions are at present heard by the High Court under the Representation of the People Act, 1981, Special Election Tribunals having been abolished.

Under article 323B(3) such Tribunals can be constituted but none were constituted upto 1993. See Nawab v. Vishwanath, AIR 1993 All 104, paragraphs 9-10.

333. 334. Reservation of seats and special representation to cease after³ [fifty years].—Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing provisions of this Part, the provisions of this Constitution relating to—

- (a) the reservation of seats for the Scheduled Castes and the Scheduled Tribes in the House of the People and in the Legislative Assemblies of the States; and shall cease to have effect on the expiration of a period of³ [fifty years] from the commencement of the Constitution:

Notes on Article 335

Article 335 is to be read with article 46, which provides (as a directive principle) that the State shall promote with special care the educational and economic interests of the weaker sections of the people and, in particular, of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and shall protect them from social injustice and all forms of exploitation; Comptroller v. Jagannathan, AIR 1987 SC 537, paragraphs 21 and 22.

1. The words "or Rajpramukh" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.
2. Subs. by the Constitution (Twenty-third Amendment) Act, 1969, sec. 4 for "nominate such number of members of the community to the Assembly as he considers appropriate".
3. Subs. by the Constitution (Sixty-second Amendment) Act, 1989, sec. 2, for "forty years" (w.e.f. 25-1-1990).

In the leading case on Mandal Commission, relating to other backward classes the implications of articles 14, 15, 16, 335 etc. have been examined at length. According to the majority judgment, there is need to maintain a balance between reservation and efficiency has to be maintained not only with reference to Scheduled Casts and Scheduled Tribes but also with reference to other backward classes. Since sacrifice of merit may have to be made for social justice; Indra Sawhney v. Union of India, (1992) Supp (3) 217, paragraphs 417, 434, 836 and 859.

Whether a particular class is adequately represented in the services under the State is a matter within the subjective satisfaction of the appropriate Government based on the materials in the possession of the Government and the existing conditions in the society; Indra Sawhney v. Union of India, (1992) Supp (3) SCC 217.

336. Special provision for Anglo-Indian community in certain services.—(1)
During the first two years after the commencement of this Constitution, appointments of members of the Anglo-Indian community to posts in the railway, customs, postal and telegraph services of the Union shall be made on the same basis as immediately before the fifteenth day of August, 1947.

During every succeeding period of two years, the number of posts reserved for the members of the said community in the said services shall, as nearly as possible, be less by ten per cent, than the numbers so reserved during the immediately period of two years:

Provided that at the end of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution all such reservations shall cease.

(2) Nothing in clause (1) shall bar the appointment of members of the Anglo-Indian community to posts other than, or in addition to, those reserved for the community under that clause if such members are found qualified for appointment on merit as compared with the members of other communities.

337. Special provision with respect to educational grants for the benefit of Anglo Indian community.—During the first three financial years after the commencement of this Constitution, the same grants, if any, shall be made by the Union and by each State¹[] for the benefit of the Anglo-Indian community in respect of education as were made in the financial year ending on the thiry-first day of March, 1948.

During every succeeding period of three years the grants may be less by ten per cent than those for the immediately preceding period of three years:

Provided that at the end of ten years from the commencement of this Constitution such grants, to the extent to which they are a special concession to the Anglo-Indian community, shall cease:

Provided further that no educational institution shall be entitled to receive any grant under this article unless at least forty per cent of the annual admissions therein are made available to members of communities other than the Anglo-Indian community.

(b) to inquire into specific complaints with respect to the deprivation of rights and safeguards of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes;

(c) to participate and advise on the planning process of socio-economic development of the Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes and to evaluate the progress of their development under the Union and any State;

(d) to present to the President, annually and at such other times as the Commission may deem fit, reports upon the working of those safeguards;

Finality of Presidential Order

Migrants

Bhils are recognized as Scheduled Tribes in Gujarat and Maharashtra. Petitioner's father was migrated to Bombay from Gujarat in 1961. There was reservation for Scheduled Tribes in medical colleges. But the petitioner was refused the facility of reservation, on the ground that Government Instruction 17(a) disallowed reservation for migrants from other States. It was held that the relevant clauses of the instruction were violative of articles 14, 15, 16, 19 and 342 of the Constitution; Rajesh Arjunbhai Patel v. State of Maharashtra, AIR 1990 Bom 114, 117, 118.

Conversion

A person who is converted to another religion cannot claim Scheduled Caste status; Soosai v. Union of India, AIR 1986 SC 733.

Finality

The entries in the Presidential Order have to be taken as final. It is not open to the court to make any addition or subtraction from the Presidential Order. Enquiry is contemplated before the Presidential Order is made but any amendment to the Presidential Order can only be by legislation. The court cannot assume jurisdiction and enter into an enquiry to determine whether the three terms indicated in the Presidential Order, viz. Tripura/Tripuri/Tippera in Entry 15 includes Deshi Tripura which according to some Government Circulars includes the Laskar Community.

The Order is made after detailed inquiry as to the economic status, the level of education and the necessity of protection, inclusion into or exclusion from the Order is made. The material relating to the Laskar tribe in 1930 or 1941 may not have been considered sufficient before the respective Orders were made for including the Laskars, said to have been covered by the description of Deshi Tripura. Therefore, even if historically this tribe was covered by the general description of Tripura that by itself may not justify its inclusion in the Order as a Scheduled Tribe; Srish v. State of Tripura, AIR 1990 SC 91, paragraphs 15-20.

It is open to the President to declare that a caste or sub-caste shall be deemed to be a Scheduled Caste in a particular part of a State and not in another part. It follows that a person who wants to be elected from a Scheduled Caste constituency must show that he has been registered as a Scheduled Caste in his electoral roll; the fact that his caste is recognised as a Scheduled Caste in the constituency from which he is seeking election is of no avail.

Conversely, where the President's Notification declares a caste to be a SC for the purposes of certain specified States, no Court will direct that caste, to be declared SC in relation to another State; Virendra v. Union of India, AIR 1992 AH 147, paragraph 6.

Where the President's Order specifies 'Dhoba' as a Scheduled Caste in Orissa, its literal synonym 'Rajaka' would also be admitted in that S.C.; R.O. v. Prafulla, AIR 1990 SC 727, paragraph 12A.

Under a Circular of the Government of India, dt. 6-8- 1984, a person who is a Scheduled Tribe in a State, according to the President's Order, continues to be a Scheduled Tribe in another State to which he has migrated; State v. Patel, AIR 1992 Guj 42, paragraph 4.

In one case Scheduled Caste status was found to have been fraudulent the State was directed to ensure that prescribed procedure for scrutiny be followed strictly, so that unscrupulous persons do not claim the benefit; Madhuri Patel v. Additional Commissioner Tribal Development, JT (1994) 5 SC 488.

347. Special provision relating to language spoken by a section of the population of a State.—On a demand being made in that behalf the President may, if he is satisfied that a substantial proportion of the population of a State desire the use of any language spoken by them to be recognised by that State, direct that such language shall also be officially recognised throughout that State or any part thereof for such purpose as he may specify.

CHAPTER III—LANGUAGE OF THE SUPREME COURT, HIGH COURTS, ETC.

(i) of all Bills to be introduced or amendments thereto to be moved in either House of Parliament or in the House or either House of the Legislature of a State,

Provided that nothing in this clause shall apply to any judgment, decree or order passed or made by such High Court.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in sub-clause (b) of clause (1), where the Legislature of a State has prescribed any language other than the English language for use in Bills introduced in, or Acts passed by, the Legislature of the State or in Ordinances promulgated by the Governor¹[] of the State or in any order, rule, regulation or bye-law referred to in paragraph (iii) of that sub-clause, a translation of the same in the English language published under the authority of the Governor¹[] of the State in the Official Gazette of that State shall be deemed to be the authoritative text thereof in the English language under this article.

349. Special procedure for enactment of certain laws relating to language.—During the period of fifteen years from the commencement of this Constitution, no Bill or amendment making provision for the language to be used for any of the purposes mentioned in clause (1) of article 348 shall be introduced or moved in either House of Parliament without the previous sanction of the President, and the President shall not give his sanction to the introduction of any such Bill or the moving of any such amendment except after he has taken into consideration the recommendations of the Commission constituted under clause (1) of article 344, and the report of the Committee constituted under clause (4) of that article.

CHAPTER IV—SPECIAL DIRECTIVES .

(2) It shall be the duty of the special officer to investigate all matters relating to the safeguards provided for linguistic minorities under this Constitution and report to the President upon those matters at such intervals as the President may direct, and the President shall cause all such reports to be laid before each House of Parliament, and sent to the Government of the States concerned.]

EMERGENCY PROVISIONS

352. Proclamation of Emergency.—(1) If the President is satisfied that a grave emergency exists whereby the security of India or of any part of the territory thereof is threatened, whether by war or external aggression or ¹[armed rebellion], he may, by proclamation, make a declaration to that effect ²[in respect of the whole of India or of such part of the territory as may be specified in the proclamation].

³[Explanation]—A Proclamation of Emergency declaring that the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by war or by external aggression or by armed rebellion may be made before the actual occurrence of war or of any such aggression or rebellion, if the President is satisfied that there is imminent danger thereof.]

⁴[(2) A Proclamation issued under clause (1) may be varied or revoked by a subsequent Proclamation.

(3) The President shall not issue a Proclamation under clause (1) or a Proclamation varying such Proclamation unless the decision of the Union Cabinet (that is to say, the Council consisting of the Prime Minister and other Ministers of Cabinet rank appointed under article 75) that such a Proclamation may be issued has been communicated to him in writing.

(4) Every Proclamation issued under this article shall be laid before each House of Parliament and shall, except where it is a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation, cease to operate at the expiration of one month unless before the expiration of that period it has been approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament:

Provided that if any such Proclamation (not being a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation) is issued at a time when the House of the People has been dissolved, or the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during the period of one month referred to in this clause, and if a resolution approving the Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States, but no resolution with respect to such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People before the expiration of that period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution, unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People.

(5) A Proclamation so approved shall, unless revoked, cease to operate on the expiration of a period of six months from the date of the passing of the second of the resolutions approving the Proclamation under clause (4):

Provided that if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of such a Proclamation is passed by both Houses of Parliament the Proclamation shall,

 - 2 Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 48 (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).
 - 3 Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 37 (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).
 - 4 Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 37, for clauses (2), (2A) and (3), (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).

Provided further that if the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during any such period of six months and a resolution approving the continuance in force of such Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States but no resolution with respect to the continuance in force of such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People during the said period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days, a resolution approving the continuance in force of the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People.

(6) For the purposes of clauses (4) and (5), a resolution may be passed by either House of Parliament only by a majority of the total membership of that House and by a majority of not less than two-thirds of the members of that House present and voting.

(7) Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing clauses, the President shall revoke a Proclamation issued under clause (1) or a Proclamation varying such Proclamation if the House of the People passes a resolution disapproving, or, as the case may be, disapproving the continuance in force of, such Proclamation.

(8) Where a notice in writing signed by not less than one-tenth of the total number of members of the House of the People has been given, of their intention to move a resolution for disapproving, or, as the case may be, for disapproving the continuance in force of, a Proclamation issued under clause (1) or a Proclamation varying such Proclamation:

(a) to the Speaker, if the House is in session; or

(b) to the President, if the House is not in session, a special sitting of the House shall be held within fourteen days from the date on which such notice is received by the Speaker, or, as the case may be, by the President, for the purpose of considering such resolution.]

¹[²(9)] The Power conferred on the President by this article shall include the power to issue different Proclamations on different grounds, being war or external aggression or ³[armed rebellion] or imminent danger of war or external aggression or ³[armed rebellion], whether or not there is a Proclamation already issued by the President under clause (1) and such Proclamation is in operation.

⁴[]

353. Effect of Proclamation of Emergency.—While a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, then—

(a) notwithstanding anything in this Constitution, the executive power of the Union shall extend to the giving of directions to any State as to the manner in which the executive power thereof is to be exercised;

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Thirty-eighth Amendment) Act, 1975, sec. 5 (retrospectively).

2. Clause (4) re-numbered as clause (9) by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 37 (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).

3. Subs. by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 37, for "internal disturbance" (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).

4. Clause (5) omitted by the Constitution (Forty-fourth Amendment) Act, 1978, sec. 37 (w.e.f. 20-6-1979).

(b) the power of Parliament to make laws with respect to any matter shall include power to make laws conferring powers and imposing duties, or authorising the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties, upon the Union or officers and authorities of the Union as respects that matter, notwithstanding that it is one which is not enumerated in the Union List:

¹[Provided that where a proclamation of Emergency is in operation only in any part of the territory of India—

(i) the executive power of the Union to give directions under clause (a), and

(ii) the power of Parliament to make laws under clause (b), shall also extend to any State other than a State in which or in any part of which the Proclamation of Emergency is in operation if and in so far as the security of India or any part of the territory thereof is threatened by activities in or in relation to the part of the territory of India in which the Proclamation of Emergency is in operation.]

354. Application of provisions relating to distribution of revenues while a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation.—(1) The President may, while a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, by order direct that all or any of the provisions of articles 268 to 279 shall for such period, not extending in any case beyond the expiration of the financial year in which such Proclamation ceases to operate, as may be specified in the order, have effect subject to such exceptions or modifications as he thinks fit.

(2) Every order made under clause (1) shall, as soon as may be after it is made, be laid before each House of Parliament.

355. Duty of the Union to protect States against external aggression and internal disturbance.—It shall be the duty of the Union to protect every State against external aggression and internal disturbance and to ensure that the government of every State is carried on in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution.

356. Provisions in case of failure of constitutional machinery in States.—(1) If the President, on receipt of a report from the Governor²[] of a State or otherwise, is satisfied that a situation has arisen in which the Government of the State cannot be carried on in accordance with the provisions of this Constitution, the President may by Proclamation—

(a) assume to himself all or any of the functions of the Government of the State and all or any of the powers vested in or exercisable by the Governor³[] or any body or authority in the State other than the Legislature of the State;

(b) declare that the powers of the Legislature of the State shall be exercisable by or under the authority of Parliament;

(c) make such incidental and consequential provisions as appear to the President to be necessary or desirable for giving effect to the objects of the Proclamation, including provisions for suspending in whole or in part the operation of any provisions of this Constitution relating to any body or authority in the State:

1. Ins. by the Constitution (Forty-second Amendment) Act, 1976, sec. 49 (w.e.f. 3-1-1977).

2. The words "or Rajpramukh" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

3. The words "or Rajpramukh, as the case may be" omitted by the Constitution (Seventh Amendment) Act, 1956, sec. 29 and Sch.

Provided that nothing in this clause shall authorise the President to assume to himself any of the powers vested in or exercisable by a High Court, or to suspend in whole or in part the operation of any provision of this Constitution relating to High Courts.

(2) Any such Proclamation may be revoked or varied by a subsequent Proclamation.

(3) Every Proclamation under this article shall be laid before each House of Parliament and shall, except where it is a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation cease to operate at the expiration of two months unless before the expiration of that period unless it has been approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament:

Provided that if any such Proclamation (not being a Proclamation revoking a previous Proclamation) is issued at a time when the House of the People is dissolved or the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during the period of two months referred to in this clause, and if a resolution approving the Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States, but no resolution with respect to such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People before the expiration of that period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People.

(4) A Proclamation so approved shall, unless revoked, cease to operate on the expiration of a period of ¹[six months from the date of issue of the Proclamation]:

Provided that if and so often as a resolution approving the continuance in force of such a Proclamation is passed by both Houses of Parliament, the Proclamation shall, unless revoked, continue in force for a further period of ²[six months] from the date on which under this clause it would otherwise have ceased to operate, but no such Proclamation shall in any case remain in force for more than three years:

Provided further that if the dissolution of the House of the People takes place during any such period of ²[six months] and a resolution approving the continuance in force of such Proclamation has been passed by the Council of States, but no resolution with respect to the continuance in force of such Proclamation has been passed by the House of the People during the said period, the Proclamation shall cease to operate at the expiration of thirty days from the date on which the House of the People first sits after its reconstitution unless before the expiration of the said period of thirty days a resolution approving the continuance in force of the Proclamation has been also passed by the House of the People:

(a) a Proclamation of Emergency is in operation, in the whole of India or, as the case may be, in the whole or any part of the State, at the time of the passing of such resolution, and

(a) for Parliament to confer on the President the power of the Legislature of the State to make laws, and to authorise the President to delegate, subject to such conditions as he may think fit to impose, the power so conferred to any other authority to be specified by him in that behalf;

(b) for Parliament, or for the President or other authority in whom such power to make laws is vested under sub-clause (a), to make laws conferring powers and imposing duties, or authorising the conferring of powers and the imposition of duties, upon the Union or officers and authorities thereof;

Notes on Articles 356 and 357

Judicial Review

Dr. Basu, in the Constitutional Law of India (1988), pages 403, 404, has pointed out that judicial review of a proclamation under article 356 would lie on any of the grounds upon which any executive determination which is founded on subjective satisfaction can be questioned. By way of example he has cited the following grounds:—

(a) That the Proclamation has been made upon a consideration which is wholly extraneous or irrelevant to the purpose for which the power under 356 had been conferred by the Constitution, namely, a breakdown of the constitutional machinery in a State, or, in other words, where there is no 'reasonable nexus' between the reasons disclosed and the satisfaction of the President, because in such a case, it can be said that there has been no 'satisfaction' of the President which is a condition for exercise of the power under article 356.

(b) That the exercise of the power under article 356 has been mala fide, because a statutory order which lacks bona fides has no existence in law; State of Rajasthan v. Union of India, AIR 1977 SC 1361, paragraph 124 (Chandrachud, J., paragraph 144 Bhagwati and Gupta, JJ.) (allowed in Roy v. Union of India, AIR 1982 SC 710, paragraph 27; State of Rajasthan v. Union of India, AIR 1977 SC 1351, paragraph 123 (Chandrachud, J.), 170 (Goswami, J.) 178-179 (Untwalia, J.), 203, 206, 208 (Fazl Ali, J.).

In the absence of mala fides etc. court cannot grant relief in law. But as a matter of propriety a Minister should not be unseated without giving to the Legislative Assembly an opportunity expressing its confidence (or want of confidence) in the ministry; Bommai v. Union of India, AIR 1990 Karn 5, paragraph 33 (FB).

Mere dissolution of the Assembly on the advance of the Chief Minister does not bring the case within article 356 of the Constitution; Arun v. Union of India, AIR 1992 All 1, paragraph 7.

The following propositions have been laid down by the Supreme Court in a very important judgement dealing with article 356:—

- (i) Presidential Proclamation dissolving a State Legislative Assembly is subject to judicial review.
- (ii) Burden lies on the Government of India to prove that relevant material existed (to justify the issue of Proclamation).
- (iii) Courts would not go into the correctness of the material.
- (iv) If the court strikes down the proclamation it has power to restore the dismissed State Government to office.
- (v) A State Government pursuing anti-secular policies is liable to action under article 356; S.R. Bommai v. Union of India, JT (1994) 2 SC 215.

358. Suspension of provisions of article 19 during emergencies.—²[(1)] ³[While a Proclamation of Emergency declaring that the security of India or any part of the terri-

Some recent judgements deal with the following as basic features:—

- (i) Elections free and fair; Kihota Hollohon v. Zachilhu, AIR 1993 SC 412, paragraphs 18, 46 and 104.
- (ii) The principle of equality, not every feature of equality, but (the quintessence of equal justice); Raghunathrao v. Union of India, AIR 1993 SC 1267, paragraphs 96, 176, 185 and 186 (CB).

Article 368(2)

According to Proviso (b), an amendment of the Constitution which takes away the powers of the Supreme Court (say, under article 136) or of a High Court (e.g. under article 226) shall be void unless it is ratified by the legislatures of not less than $\frac{1}{2}$ of the States before being presented to the President for his assent.

The object of this Proviso (Proviso to clause 2) is to give effect to the federal principle.

The word 'change' at the beginning of the Proviso means a change in the remedy while the right remains intact. But such change may not be a direct change in the language of any of the provisions specified in clauses (a)-(e) of the Proviso, but may be a change 'in effect'.

An instance of a Constitution Amendment 'in effect' changing articles 136, 226, 227 is to be found in the judgment of the Constitution Bench where the validity of para 7 inserted into Sch. X of the Constitution, by the Constitution (Fifty-second Amendment) Act, 1985 was challenged; Kishora v. Zachilnu, (1992) Supp 2 SCC 651, paragraphs 61-62.
